

Rhodesian Aid Sought

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The United States has asked South Africa to join an international consortium to help whites and blacks in Rhodesia after that country achieves statehood under black rule, and South African Prime Minister John Vorster's government is pondering the request.

The disclosures by a senior official aboard Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's plane came on the eve of a meeting Tuesday in Pretoria between the prime ministers of South Africa and Rhodesia — Vorster and Ian D. Smith.

Kissinger paused Monday night in this Swiss city before starting his mission to defuse racial conflict in southern Africa. He continues Tuesday to Tanzania to begin a series of meetings with black African leaders, followed by talks with Vorster and possibly Smith.

The U.S. request for South African support presumably was made when Kissinger met Vorster in Zurich about 10 days ago. The South African leader neither accepted nor rejected the idea, the senior official said.

Broadly, it would aim at insuring Rhodesia's 270,000 whites against loss of assets when black rule is established and would offer a black Rhodesian regime massive investment funds from various governmental and private institutions to develop the country's rich resources.

Kissinger is on his way to southern Africa hoping to check the escalation of black-white warfare that he says already has begun in and around Rhodesia, South Africa and Namibia, formerly South-West Africa.

To achieve that aim, the secretary thinks he has to swing Vorster behind him. South Africa has played the major role in sustaining the white regime of landlocked Rhodesia since it proclaimed independence from Britain in 1965.

South Africa also has defied United Nations demands to confer statehood on Namibia, a former German colony under Pretoria's rule for 56 years.

Kissinger plans to confer all day Wednesday in Tanzania with President Julius Nyerere. He goes on to Zambia next for talks with President Kenneth Kaunda — then on to Pretoria to find out if Vorster has managed to persuade Smith to accept that the days of white government in Rhodesia must be numbered.

U.S. Embassy sources said Kissinger's stay of about 12 hours on Swiss soil would be "purely a rest stop," that he planned to meet no one while here and was not expected to venture outside his hotel.

The proposals Kissinger is expected to be pushing on his journey through Tanzania, Zambia, South Africa and possibly other points revolve around these short-term goals:

Rhodesia:

To set up a negotiating forum in which Rhodesia's white rulers would arrange peacefully to transfer power to the black majority within two years. The United States and a consortium of other friendly nations would underwrite this process with a multibillion-dollar program to guarantee Rhodesia's 270,000 whites against loss of assets and to help the six million black Rhodesians with an investment program.

Namibia: or South-West Africa:

To organize a meeting to write a constitution leading to independence for the territory, a former German colony now held by South Africa. Kissinger's proposal envisions participation in the constitution talks by exiled black political groups such as the South-West Africa People's Organization. South Africa has already agreed to give the territory independence by the end of 1978, but it wants to hand over power to handpicked tribal chiefs.

South Africa:

To urge the government of Prime Minister John Vorster to recognize that its policy of apartheid, or separation of the races, is "incompatible with any concept of human dignity." Referring to the more than 300 deaths since June in South Africa's racial upheaval, Kissinger has said: "No system that leads to periodic upheavals can possibly be just — nor can it last."

PSC Scrutinizes Own Accountability

By DICK HOLMAN
Staff Writer

The Nebraska Public Service Commission made two major consumer-oriented moves Monday.

First the PSC initiated a self-study leading to increased public accountability legislation in the 1977 Legislature. That was a response to the failing grade the national citizen lobby Common Cause assigned the Nebraska regulatory agency.

Then commissioners approved a 1977-78 proposed budget that's about 4% less than the total recommended, and about 2% smaller than the current total budget. They also chopped out about 5% of the anticipated need from the PSC 1978-79 budget request.

The public accountability study was Omaha Commissioner James Munnely's idea, with his colleagues enthusiastically joining in. The PSC flunked Common Cause standards on lobby disclosure and preventing conflicts of interest.

The commission complies with all state laws but not with Common Cause expectations because the two areas are now "beyond our control," Munnely said, citing lack of statutes.

Despite that, he proposed the staff examination because "we're tainted with noncompliance and our accountability is challenged." Munnely said that "maybe we ought to go beyond what is necessary" in drafting a bill.

Chairman Duane Gay of Columbus agreed, broaching a requirement for filing "full disclosure of all (personal) income" by each commissioner to erase questions of "any influences." Munnely cited the "value to people and to ourselves."

Commissioners agreed that simply adopting a PSC rule wouldn't ensure the accountability a law will provide. "It's necessary and it's time that it was done," Gay said.

The chairman added that he's "open to any suggestions" for a bill. At the last minute, he directed no reference to Common Cause in the motion to proceed.

The afternoon budget cuts came only after commissioners wrangled through a maze of personal character snipes and a fog of parliamentary procedure stumbling.

They finally cut four PSC staff positions that would have cost at least $48,258 in 1977-78, plus fringe benefit payouts and Social Security. Axd were an economist, two grain warehouse inspectors and a stenographer position.

Deleting those jobs simultaneously eliminated more than $55,000 from the 1978-79 budget document, from which commissioners also whittled a pickup truck replacement, saving another $4,400.

The current agency budget is $1,217,456. The 1977-78 proposal began at $1.24 million and ended up at $1,196,558. That includes state-ordered salary increases for the six commissioners themselves. Their pay will rise from $18,750 to $20,000.

They also allotted $11,500 for their own expenses, up $500. Without the 5% pay boost the Legislature ordered, the PSC budget would have undercut current expenses.

But emotions flared in the dollar deductions. Jack Romans of Ord proposed the staff reductions, at first including getting rid of one staff attorney. Service could be maintained while saving taxpayers about $75,000, he said. Gay also objected to the "grow, grow, grow" in state government.

But Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont fought for the attorney position and the $13,700 economist. Munnely bristled with him, saying the budget paring wasn't well thought out and posts were picked "just for political expediency."

Munnely said the PSC has a "responsibility to serve the public in depth, not just the status quo." He said PSC staff is time well used. Gay accused employees of spending their time reading newspapers. Munnely retorted that commissioners themselves are to blame for any such management problems.

Romans suggested they "flip a coin" to see which "unjustified" budget line went — the economist or the attorney. Rasmussen replied hotly that this was "not Las Vegas." An amendment to cut the attorney post died 2-2.

Romans compromised, agreeing to keep the attorney but eliminating the economist. Then Gay tried to slice funds for a pickup and state car. Romans: "Why don't you compromise and just knock out the pickup?" Gay: "OK, the pickup."

The 1978-79 budget total approved is approximately $1,104,311.

Police Catch Jumper In Time

Tiny Mars Pebble Jams Earthly Robot's Backhoe

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A tiny pebble jammed in Viking 2's soil-sampling arm may be jeopardizing a crucial experiment in the billion-dollar Viking mission to find life on Mars.

The malfunction has indefinitely delayed the experiment most likely to show whether there is life on Mars. Three less critical experiments received their Martian soil and were working normally, scientists said.

The arm made a successful plunge into the red soil on Sunday, but after delivering a sample to the lander's three biology probes, it got stuck, preventing a delivery of soil to chemical experiments on board the miniature laboratory.

Project manager James Martin said a tiny Martian rock may have become stuck in the backhoe, a device on the swiveling sampler head used to dig trenches in the Martian soil.

"We have what's called a 'no-go,'" said Martin. "We don't know exactly what the problem is." A "no-go" is a built-in command that halts the arm when something out of the ordinary occurs.

If a pebble was jammed in the backhoe, he said, the hoe would protrude in an awkward position and likely get hung up on some of the lander's hardware, as the arm made its soil-delivery rounds.

Further complicating matters is the fact that the arm is stuck in the one position that can't be seen by either of the lander's two cameras. So, scientists were to command the arm to extend itself about 16 inches, take a picture of the sample scoop and then check their hypothesis about the pebble.

If they see a pebble in the claw, Martin said, scientists would order the arm back down to the surface. It is hoped that in the process of acquiring the new sample, the pebble would fall free.

If earthbound repairmen cannot get the collector head to rotate, Martin said, "Then we have a real problem."

The mechanical arm on Viking 1 also jammed at one time during last month's experiments, but scientists were able to diagnose the trouble and get it working again.

A Ride Or Two Is More Than Enough, Right? Well, Usually

New Orleans (UPI) — For most people, one or two rides on a rollercoaster is enough — or more than enough. Dan Whelan rode the Pontchartrain Beach "Zephyr" 313 times during the weekend.

He stayed on the ride from noon until midnight Saturday and Sunday, with a five-minute break each hour for rest and refreshment.

Whelan's stunt was part of a Loyola University alumni weekend at the beach.

"He was jubilant," said university spokesman Gene Katsanis after Whelan completed his feat. "He was extremely tired, but the old adage 'one more was flowing and he was jubilant. Physically, he was in good condition."

Whelan made 156 trips Saturday and 157 Sunday. There was added excitement at one point Sunday when the cars did not stop at the passenger station and proceeded without stop to the first hill.

Attendants halted the coaster halfway up the climb to check on the other passengers. They let one youth get off and walk down a catwalk before the ride lurched forward to finish the trip.

Whelan's only moment of doubt came Saturday after five hours of pitching and rolling in the Zephyr's first car. Attendants said he looked exhausted when he stepped off the ride for his five-minute break, but an ice cream cone renewed his spirits.

Whelan practiced for the marathon by riding the Zephyr continuously for 90 minutes in late August. He also avoided heavy foods during the exercise.

"He ate cheese, drank juices, and he ate plain hamburgers," Katsanis said. "We give him small plain hamburgers, just the meat patty and the bun. He had some gum that he chewed periodically and he ate ice cream cones."

"This food was designed to be light on his stomach, and it worked."

How Much For A Sniffensnerfer?

Salina, Kan. (UPI) — Anybody wanna buy a gitzensnorker?

At least two people indicated tongue-in-cheek interest when the Salina Journal decided to run the following ad to find out whether folks really were reading its classified ad section:

"For sale — One gitzensnorker (green) with power flaker, 2 matching frammelmists including automatic bleem. Recently overhauled from side to side. Sacrifice for quick sale, $77.75."

Two readers with a sense of humor quickly answered the bogus ad.

"Your ad sounds just like what we need," wrote Robert F. Frobenius of Salina, who described himself as a "purchasing swap skeller."

Frobenius said, "We will trade two antiques but fanning mill fingpong manipulator broken on one and shakeling strawmolling parts missing on the second prize model. Desperately need substitution for nostalgia room we are building from leftover Salina garage sales. Does your dream have a long stoke gismokitcher?"

Mrs. Jack Zvolanek of Solomon, Kan., responded, "Re: Your ad in Sunday's paper, for one green gitzensnorker, etc., etc. I'm interested, but I think your price is way too high for a used one."

Patrol Spent $110,571 From Drug Cash Fund

By JIM CAMDEN
Staff Writer

The State Patrol spent $110,571 from the special drug cash fund during the 1975-76 fiscal year, figures released Monday show.

The drug cash fund has been the focus of some questions and criticism lately in discussions of the drug enforcement program.

In a report to the Legislature's Judiciary Committee, Lincoln attorney Kirk Naylor suggested senators set up a system to check expenditures by agents and informers. An instance where an informant bought cocaine and used the drug himself was cited in the report.

After some deliberation over whether such data was public record, the patrol released a breakdown of expenditures for the last three years.

Patrol officers and civilian workers called "cooperating individuals" (CIs) spent $88,717 to buy drugs in the last three years. The patrol said it would not break that figure down to reveal how much was spent by officers and how much was spent by CIs.

During 1974-75, the patrol reported it had seized drugs with an illegal value of $4.9 million. Lt. Bob Clinkenbeard, head of the drug division, explained there was a large difference between the amount of drugs seized and the money spent on drug purchases.

Almost $4.8 million of that amount came from arrests involving large quantities of marijuana, Clinkenbeard said. Cases where harvesting operations are discovered or vehicles transporting the weed are stopped net large quantities with little expenditure from the drug fund.

The patrol spent $34,502 to buy drugs last year. Clinkenbeard said that figure does not include cases where patrol money, spent on a drug purchase, is recovered in an arrest. Between $10,000 and $15,000 is recovered and used again for drug buys each year, he said.

The patrol also spent $51,272 last year on salaries for CIs and to buy information. Investigative expenses, which pay for mileage, meals and other case-related activity for CIs, accounted for $24,796.

In 1974-75, the patrol spent $26,801 for drug purchases, $23,498 for salaries and $18,855 for expenses. In 1973-74, the figures were $27,414, $32,714 and $22,287.

The patrol was allocated $100,000 a year for each of the last two fiscal years for the drug cash fund. In 1973-74, the allocation was $75,000.

Careless Driving Law Ruled Too Vague

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Staff Writer

Municipal Court Judge Donald Grant dismissed charges Monday against a Lincoln man charged in a traffic fatality, contending that the state law on careless driving is unconstitutional.

In a rare move for a municipal court judge, Grant struck down the state law as being "vague and indefinite." The statute "Fails to give adequate warning of conduct proscribed," Grant wrote in a lengthy opinion.

At the center of the controversy was Montee Garvia, 18, who was charged with manslaughter motor vehicle homicide after the car he was driving struck a motorcyclist at 31st and O St.

Barbara Downey, 23, died from injuries she received in the accident on June 27.

Grant said the state law defining careless driving is unconstitutional because the statute doesn't define what the term means.

The law reads, "Any person who operates a vehicle in a manner so as to endanger or be likely to endanger any person or property shall be guilty of careless driving."

Quoting extensively from four other cases, Grant said an Idaho court overturned a similar law because the statute failed "to prescribe any comprehensive standard of negligent driving sufficient to constitute an offense."

A North Dakota court noted that a North Dakota law requires driving "in a careful and prudent manner," as well as specifying certain conditions which must be taken into account. That court said Nebraska's law doesn't include those prohibitions against driving carelessly.

Grant cited a Nebraska case in which a court observed that in a broad sense "the mere operation of a motor vehicle endangers the safety of others to some extent."

Even though, Grant figured, the Legislature probably didn't intend such a broad application of the law, there is no language in the statute limiting it.

Although the State of Nebraska argued that the term "careless driving" has an accepted connotation, Grant said it does not.

The state "has failed to perceive the true meaning" of two cases studied "by the state's apparent reliance on some kind of 'magic' which is deemed attached to the term 'careless driving.'"

Grant also disagreed with the contention that the law adequately defines careless driving.

"Merely adding a term which is actually being defined (careless driving) does not and cannot enhance the quality of the words constituting the definition anymore than a river can rise above its source," Grant wrote.

Grant, who noted that the other Lincoln Municipal Court judges concur in his opinion striking down the statute, said he expects his ruling will be appealed to district court.

Grid Parking Price Cut Not Tied To Tie

Mayor Helen Boosalis is releasing.

Instead of $4 for Big Red football game parking at Haymarket Square the city will charge $2.

Mrs. Boosalis said that at that rate the city will break about even, since a full-time attendant will be on duty to direct parkers.

The $4 rate Mrs. Boosalis said, resulted in some people charging that it was a "scalper's price."

The Haymarket Square parking lot is located at the southeastern corner of 10th and Q.

There is no indication that the Huskers' 6-6 tie with LSU prompted the price cut.

Rhodesian Aid Sought

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The United States has asked South Africa to join an international consortium to help whites and blacks in Rhodesia after that country achieves statehood under black rule, and South African Prime Minister John Vorster's government is pondering the request.

The disclosures by a senior official aboard Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's plane came on the eve of a meeting Tuesday in Pretoria between the prime ministers of South Africa and Rhodesia — Vorster and Ian D. Smith.

Kissinger paused Monday night in this Swiss city before starting his mission to defuse racial conflict in southern Africa. He continues Tuesday to Tanzania to begin a series of meetings with black African leaders, followed by talks with Vorster and possibly Smith.

The U.S. request for South African support presumably was made when Kissinger met Vorster in Zurich about 10 days ago. The South African leader neither accepted nor rejected the idea, the senior official said.

Broadly, it would aim at insuring Rhodesia's 270,000 whites against loss of assets when black rule is established and would offer a black Rhodesian regime massive investment funds from various governmental and private institutions to develop the country's rich resources.

Kissinger is on his way to southern Africa hoping to check the escalation of black-white warfare that he says already has begun in and around Rhodesia, South Africa and Namibia, formerly South-West Africa.

To achieve that aim, the secretary thinks he has to swing Vorster behind him. South Africa has played the major role in sustaining the white regime of landlocked Rhodesia since it proclaimed independence from Britain in 1965.

South Africa also has defied United Nations demands to confer statehood on Namibia, a former German colony under Pretoria's rule for 56 years.

Kissinger plans to confer all day Wednesday in Tanzania with President Julius Nyerere. He goes on to Zambia next for talks with President Kenneth Kaunda — then on to Pretoria to find out if Vorster has managed to persuade Smith to accept that the days of white government in Rhodesia must be numbered.

U.S. Embassy sources said Kissinger's stay of about 12 hours on Swiss soil would be "purely a rest stop," that he planned to meet no one while here and was not expected to venture outside his hotel.

The proposals Kissinger is expected to be pushing on his journey through Tanzania, Zambia, South Africa and possibly other points revolve around these short-term goals:

Rhodesia:

To set up a negotiating forum in which Rhodesia's white rulers would arrange peacefully to transfer power to the black majority within two years. The United States and a consortium of other friendly nations would underwrite this process with a multibillion-dollar program to guarantee Rhodesia's 270,000 whites against loss of assets and to help the six million black Rhodesians with an investment program.

Namibia: or South-West Africa:

Kissinger's proposal envisions participation in the constitution talks by exiled black political groups such as the South-West Africa People's Organization. South Africa has already agreed to give the territory independence by the end of 1978, but it wants to hand over power to handpicked tribal chiefs.

South Africa:

To urge the government of Prime Minister John Vorster to recognize that its policy of apartheid, or separation of the races, is "incompatible with any concept of human dignity." Referring to the more than 300 deaths since June in South Africa's racial upheaval, Kissinger has said: "No system that leads to periodic upheavals can possibly be just — nor can it last."

Grant cited a Nebraska case in which a court observed that in a broad sense "the mere operation of a motor vehicle endangers the safety of others to some extent." Even though, Grant figured, the Legislature probably didn't intend such a broad application of the law, there is no language in the statute limiting it.

Although the State of Nebraska argued that the term "careless driving" has an accepted connotation, Grant said it does not.

The state "has failed to perceive the true meaning" of two cases studied "by the state's apparent reliance on some kind of 'magic' which is deemed attached to the term 'careless driving'."

Grant also disagreed with the contention that the law adequately defines careless driving.

"Merely adding a term which is actually being defined (careless driving) ... does not and cannot enhance the quality of the words constituting the definition anymore than a river can rise above its source," Grant wrote.

Grant, who noted that the other Lincoln Municipal Court judges concur in his opinion striking down the statute, said he expects his ruling will be appealed to district court.

Grid Parking Price Cut Not Tied To Tie

Mayor Helen Boosalis is relenting.

Instead of $4 for Big Red football game parking at Haymarket Square the city will charge $2.

Mrs. Boosalis said that at that rate the city will break about even, since a full-time attendant will be on duty to direct parkers.

The $4 rate, Mrs. Boosalis said, resulted in some people charging that it was a "scalper's" price.

The Haymarket Square parking lot is located at the southeastern corner of 10th and Q.

There is no indication that the Huskers' 6-6 tie with LSU prompted the price cut.

Aerosol Spray Ban Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Academy of Sciences said Monday that fluorocarbons in aerosol sprays are damaging the earth's ozone shield and may have to be regulated or banned within two years to guard against higher skin cancer rates and potentially serious climate changes.

"Selective regulation of CFM (chlorofluoromethane, or fluorocarbon) uses and releases is almost certain to be necessary at some time and to some degree of completeness," said a new academy report.

Two academy panels concluded that fluorocarbons are destroying the ozone umbrella high above the earth that shields out dangerous ultraviolet radiation. They said excessive radiation could increase the rate of human skin cancers, depress food production and seriously change the planet's climate.

Academy President Philip Handler told the White House in a letter accompanying the reports that the rate of ozone reduction is relatively small at present and that "a one- or two-year delay in actual implementation of a ban or regulation would not be unreasonable."

One of the panels recommended, however, that the government immediately overhaul its legal regulatory machinery to be prepared for action and that aerosol spray cans containing fluorocarbons be labeled so that consumers could avoid them if they wished.

The Du Pont Co., the major fluorocarbon manufacturer, and the Aerosol Education Bureau, which represents the aerosol spray can industry, both applauded the panel's recommendation to delay regulatory decisions until more studies on the ozone problem have been conducted.

"We think they made the correct decision in saying that there is no significant risk to taking 18 to 20 months for more research," a Du Pont spokesman said. "There is ongoing research by industry and government to make a fuller assessment of any possible need for regulation within two years." The research is costing up to $20 million a year.

If regulatory action proves to be necessary, the panel recommended that the government first ban fluorocarbons in most consumer aerosol sprays, and impose controls to prevent release of fluorocarbons from auto air conditioners. Oregon has banned fluorocarbons in aerosol sprays effective March 1, 1977.

Aerosol spray cans accounted for 74 per cent of the nearly 1.5 billion pounds of F-11 and F-12 Du Pont fluorocarbons used worldwide last year, the report said. Aerosol hair sprays and antiperspirant-deodorant sprays alone consumed 58 per cent.

"The impact on the world of waiting a couple of years before deciding whether or not to regulate the uses and releases of F-11 and F-12 is small although we are uncertain just how small," the academy report said. "The impact on industry of a ban on uses of F-11 or F-12 in most types of spray cans would be appreciable."

Less than one per cent of the ozone layer has been depleted by fluorocarbons so far, the academy said, and it will be 40 to 50 years at present fluorocarbon releases before half the maximum damage of about seven per cent ozone depletion occurs. But once the ozone layer is significantly damaged, it added, the process of natural restoration will take much longer.

Ozone is produced naturally by the action of sunlight on oxygen in the atmosphere. Ozone is a form of oxygen with a different molecular structure.

Ford Signs Bill Requiring Meat Packer To Post Bond

Washington (UPI) — Calling it "a sensible and rapid response to a clearly demonstrated need," President Ford Monday signed a bill requiring meat packers to post bonds to help assure that farmers get paid for livestock they sell.

The bill, passed by big Senate and House majorities, requires all packers who buy $500,000 or more worth of livestock annually to post "reasonable" bonds for protection of farmer-sellers.

Congressional officials said the Agriculture Department indicated it will require bonds equal to the value of two days of normal purchases by individual packers.

Passage of the amendments to the packers and stockyard act was spurred by the bankruptcy in 1975 of one of the nation's largest packing firms, American Beef Packers Inc. of Omaha, Neb.

The Financial troubles of the firm, which operated packing plants in several states, left farmers in several Midwestern states holding millions of dollars worth of temporarily worthless checks.

Citing that episode, Ford said the new bill will prevent such losses in the future and that it would "reassure producers, provide stability in the marketplace and help to ensure an adequate supply of meat for America's consumers."

Ford speaking at a Cabinet Room ceremony attended by congressmen as well as farm and industry representatives, said the bill was "a sensible and a rapid response to a clearly demonstrated problem."

Without creating excessive restrictions on any segment of the industry, without creating a superfluous new government agency and without significantly modifying our federal bankruptcy laws, this legislation provides reasonable protection in the best interests of producers, packers and consumers.

In addition to the bonding feature, the bill has a second-stage protective device for farmers. A section of the measure provides that livestock and meat will be considered legally held in trust for a farmer-seller until paid by the packer.

Other significant features of the law include a legal requirement that packers pay for purchased livestock by close of the business day following the sale.

It also authorized the secretary of agriculture to levy civil penalties up to $10,000 for violations of the federal packers and stockyards act, and he will be given jurisdiction for the first time over business practices of meat brokers.

U.S. To Veto Viets' U.N. Application

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will veto Vietnam's application for membership in the United Nations because of Hanoi's inadequate response to demands for information about Americans missing in action in Indochina, Ambassador William Scranton said Monday.

Scranton, chief U.S. representative at the U.N., said President Ford told him to cast the veto when Vietnam's membership application comes up at an expected meeting of the Security Council on Tuesday.

The 14 other members of the Security Council are expected to vote in favor of admitting Vietnam to the U.N.

After meeting with Ford at the White House, Scranton told reporters the U.S. action was based on the fact that there had been "very little" response so far from the Vietnamese on demands for information about some 800 Americans still listed as missing in Southeast Asia.

Denying that election year politics played a part in the President's decision, Scranton said that Vietnam failed to meet two criteria for admission to the U.N. — "peace loving" and "humanitarian."

Carter Favors Tough Law

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Jimmy Carter said Monday he favors a toughening of law enforcement by removing technical obstacles that "obviously prevent the conviction and punishment of those who are guilty" of crimes.

The Democratic presidential nominee, arriving here on the first day of a new campaign swing, told a group of state and local officials he thought the present U.S. Supreme Court was moving to tighten up law enforcement and was right to do so.

"We went too far. It got so that sincere, honest, dedicated, competent law enforcement officers found it almost impossible to comply with all the technicalities that might be raised in court or on appeal, and obviously guilty people were released unpunished."

Carter gave no specific examples of court decisions of which he approved or disapproved. But it was the strongest comment he has made in praise of the Burger court or implying any criticism of its predecessor, the Warren court that was responsible for a number of decisions broadly interpreting the rights of accused persons.

The remarks were, however, in keeping with Carter's current laying of new emphasis on conservative themes, an effort he acknowledges he is making because of possible voter perception that he is too liberal.

The Democratic candidate began his day in Alabama, where he appeared with Gov. George C. Wallace, his one-time primary election rival, and attacked the Ford administration for mistreating small business and President Ford personally for failing to demonstrate any capacity for leadership.

Carter's remarks on law enforcement followed a bus ride from Norman to Oklahoma City, after addressing several thousand persons, mostly students, at the University of Oklahoma fieldhouse.

Aboard the bus, he talked with about 20 wheat farmers who asked his views and offered complaints about current federal farm policies.

Calling on his own experience as a peanut farmer, Carter criticized what he called the "unpredictability" of farm policies written in Washington. "I've learned from experience how badly farmers suffer when farm policy is unpredictable and when farmers don't have any input," he said.

Carter reiterated his opposition to grain embargoes, except in the case of "some absolute catastrophe in the production of food or seed."

Ford Vetoes Electric Car Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford cast his 58th veto Monday, rejecting a bill under which the federal government would develop an electric car as a possible alternate to the gasoline-powered automobile.

The bill would have established a five-year, $160 million research program under the Energy Research and Development Administration.

"I am not prepared to commit the federal government to this type of a massive spending program which I believe private industry is best able to undertake," the President said in a veto message.

Nixonite Offered Pressure For Price, Cheatham Says

Washington (UPI) — A White House aide offered presidential pressure on Japan's prime minister to buy Grumman aircraft if the company contributed $1 million to Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign, a former Grumman president told Congress Monday.

Dr. Thomas B. Cheatham, ex-president of Grumman International, testified Nixon White House aide Richard Allen promised the campaign donation would be followed by the president's intercession with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka to buy Grumman's E2C early warning aircraft.

Grumman Chairman John C. Bierworth released a statement later Monday saying the corporation did not contribute to Nixon's 1962 campaign "or to any other campaign at any time."

Bierworth said E. Clinton Tole, who was then Grumman's chairman, "did speak with Richard Allen on Nixon's staff at a meeting arranged by Dr. Cheatham. However, no discussion of political contributions took place. Grumman Corp. never contributed to Mr. Nixon's campaign or to any other campaign at any time."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of a Senate foreign relations subcommittee on multinational corporations, asked "if it had happened anywhere else, would it be a shakedown?" Cheatham replied, "Well, there are various terms in Washington," but agreed "shakedown" was an apt description.

Peter Oram, current president of Grumman International, and Joseph G. Gavin, president of Grumman Corp., testified they had never heard of the alleged Allen proposition until Cheatham testified. Allen was to

UAW Rejects Ford's Third Offer

Detroit (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. offered the United Auto Workers union a third contract proposal late Monday. The union quickly rejected it and UAW President Leonard Woodcock said there is only a "one in 100 chance" of avoiding a strike at 11:59 p.m. Tuesday.

Woodcock said the union refused to extend the contract covering Ford's 170,000 workers and that negotiators "are a long way apart."

For the first time, Ford addressed a top priority union demand for more paid days off. But the UAW rejected the company plan as "essentially unresponsive to putting new workers into the labor force."

It would give workers with 25 years of seniority up to 40 hours — a full work week — of extra time off if they maintained a perfect attendance record during a full year's period. The "time bank" would begin with workers who have three years' seniority and would give them 20 hours off.

Based on Ford's latest proposal, Woodcock said, "there is much too big a gap to bridge in the short time left."

Asked the chances of avoiding a strike, Woodcock replied, "I'd say about 1 in 100."

The unusual third offer was made public by Sidney McKenna, Ford's labor vice president, who said the new proposal answered all of the key economic issues raised by the UAW.

Normally, bargainings already would have been engrossed in marathon sessions.

Warnaco Took Payments

Washington — Warnaco Inc. has made what is believed to be the first admission by a company that it was on the receiving end of questionable payments, according to a document made available by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Warnaco said an investigation uncovered some $400,000 paid by an ocean carrier to one of its subsidiaries and "one or more employees of that subsidiary. The transactions occurred in 1970-74."

'Subversive' Lists Used

Washington — The Civil Service Commission has routinely used the "subversive" intelligence files of local police departments in its background investigations of federal job applicants, according to a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Bella S. Abzug.

'Night-Club Priest' Homosexual

The Rev. Malcolm Boyd, known in the 1960's as a "night-club priest," has declared himself publicly as a homosexual. The 53-year-old Episcopalian, an author and former peace activist, urged last month that his church "reform its anti-human and anti-Christian treatment" of homosexuals and acknowledge "the ministry of its gay people."

"I don't know why everybody isn't asking to see the Thermogram for their house. It sure showed me I was wasting money on my heating bills."

Improper insulation in your attic could end up costing you a great deal of money over the years.

But now there's no guessing if you need more insulation. Cengas can offer you proof by means of a special device called a Thermogram, recorded early last year during airplane flyovers.

A Thermogram simply shows the heat sensed measurement of rooftops. If your rooftop shows up light on a Thermogram, you are losing heat. If it shows up dark, your insulation is doing a good job.

It's that simple! And Thermograms are now available for all residents of Lincoln, Beatrice, Columbus, Norfolk and Sioux Falls. There's no charge for this service, nor do you need to be a customer of Cengas.

Nixonite Offered Pressure For Price, Cheatham Says

Washington (UPI) — A White House aide offered presidential pressure on Japan's prime minister to buy Grumman aircraft if the company contributed $1 million to Richard Nixon's 1972 campaign, a former Grumman president told Congress Monday.

Thomas B. Cheatham

Dr. Thomas B. Cheatham, ex-president of Grumman International, testified Nixon White House aide Richard Allen promised the campaign donation would be followed by the president's intercession with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka to buy Grumman's E2C early warning aircraft.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of a Senate foreign relations subcommittee on multinational corporations, asked "if it had happened anywhere else, would it be a shakedown?" Cheatham replied, "Well, there are various terms in Washington" but agreed "shakedown" was an apt description.

Peter Oram, current president of Grumman International, and Joseph G. Gavin, president of Grumman Corp., testified they had never heard of the alleged Allen proposition until Cheatham testified. Allen was to appear before the committee later this month.

Grumman Chairman John C. Bierworth released a statement later Monday saying the corporation did not contribute to Nixon's 1962 campaign "or to any other campaign at any time."

Bierworth said E. Clinton Tole, who was then Grumman's chairman, "did speak with Richard Allen on Nixon's staff at a meeting arranged by Dr. Cheatham. However, no discussion of political contributions took place. Grumman Corp. never contributed to Mr. Nixon's campaign or to any other campaign at any time."

Japan did not buy the Grumman system, but shortly after the Nixon-Tanaka meeting in Hawaii the Japanese government accepted a Lockheed Aircraft Corp. contract.

UAW Rejects Ford's Third Offer

Detroit (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. offered the United Auto Workers union a third contract proposal late Monday. The union quickly rejected it and UAW President Leonard Woodcock said there is only a "one in 100 chance" of avoiding a strike at 11:59 p.m. Tuesday.

Woodcock said the union refused to extend the contract covering Ford's 170,000 workers and that negotiators "are a long way apart."

For the first time, Ford addressed a top priority union demand for more paid days off. But the UAW rejected the company plan as "essentially unresponsive to putting new workers into the labor force."

It would give workers with 25 years of seniority up to 40 hours — a full work week — of extra time off if they maintained a perfect attendance record during a full year's period. The "time bank" would begin with workers who have three years' seniority and would give them 20 hours off.

Based on Ford's latest proposal, Woodcock said, "there is much too big a gap to bridge in the short time left."

Asked the chances of avoiding a strike, Woodcock replied, "I'd say about 1 in 100."

The unusual third offer was made public by Sidney McKenna, Ford's labor vice president, who said the new proposal answered all of the key economic issues raised by the UAW.

Normally, bargainers already would have been engrossed in marathon sessions.

Warnaco Took Payments

Washington — Warnaco Inc. has made what is believed to be the first admission by a company that it was on the receiving end of questionable payments, according to a document made available by the Securities and Exchange Commission. Warnaco said an investigation uncovered some $400,000 paid by an ocean carrier to one of its subsidiaries and "one or more" employees of that subsidiary. The transactions occurred in 1970-74.

'Subversive' Lists Used

Washington — The Civil Service Commission has routinely used the "subversive" intelligence files of local police departments in its background investigations of federal job applicants, according to a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Bella S. Abzug.

'Night-Club Priest' Homosexual

The Rev. Malcolm Boyd, known in the 1960's as a "night-club priest," has declared himself publicly as a homosexual. The 53-year-old Episcopalian, an author and former peace activist, urged last month that his church "reform its anti-human and anti-Christian treatment" of homosexuals and acknowledge "the ministry of its gay people."

Police Fire Birdshot

Johannesburg — Police fired birdshot at crowds of demonstrators attempting to enforce a work boycott among Soweto's commuters Monday, but half of the township's 320,000 commuters were persuaded to stay away from their jobs in Johannesburg.

Sunshine Bill Signed

Washington — President Ford has signed the "sunshine" bill under which about 50 federal agencies will be required to conduct most of their business in public.

NU Comparisons Not Valid?

A committee appointed by University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner has concluded that the Omaha campus is underfunded by about $1 million compared to the university at Lincoln, and it recommends that UN-O receive at least an additional $500,000 in the next fiscal year to begin to make up the funding disparity.

Not surprisingly, there is disagreement over the alleged inequity in support for the two NU campuses and over any attempt to achieve funding parity.

Dr. Henry Baumgarten, UN-L Faculty Senate president, questions the formula used by the Equity Policy Committee in determining that a funding disparity exists. Baumgarten says that there is no current evidence showing that a funding inequity either exists or doesn't exist. And he further suggests that the differences in the missions of the two schools should be recognized when determining adequate levels of funding for both. Baumgarten is on target, as far as we're concerned.

The "missions" of UN-O and of the home campus at Lincoln which has served higher education needs across Nebraska for more than a century, have largely been forgotten since the time the Legislature rescued Omaha's municipal university in the 1960s.

UN-L's mission, according to Baumgarten, is to "provide the entire state including Omaha with the best education the state can afford at the undergraduate and all graduate levels." The UN-O mission, he says, "should be to serve the most essential higher education needs (not necessarily all the desires) of the Omaha community at the undergraduate level and in a few selected graduate areas."

There is undoubtedly disagreement with those definitions of the missions of the two NU elements.

There is a growing political force in the state which tends to disregard "missions" and sees UN-O as an institution which must be nourished with tax dollars until it is equal or better in every respect than the Lincoln campus. The aim may not be a divided state with two mediocre major state universities with overlapping functions, but that very well may be the result.

Talk about funding inequities or the need for funding parity can be meaningless if the missions of the two campuses are considered.

Perhaps the prevailing sentiment now favors no distinction between the missions of the two schools. Perhaps it favors out-and-out competition between the two campuses with identical programs seeking sufficient funding and with political power the final arbiter in dispensing funds.

For a long while there have been indications that is the case. We have felt for some time that the university community and friends of all its components, the regents and the Legislature should take a rational look at the system and determine what UN-L and UN-O are to be. When the missions of the two schools are firmly re-established, perhaps it will be possible to discern funding balance or imbalance.

School Interests Secondary

The feeling persists that what is best for Southeast Technical Community College and its students is not at the heart of the controversy now boiling over the intention of the college's own board to build a central campus for the school near 86th and O.

Arguments by supporters of the chosen site that a location that far east in Lincoln is the best that can be found for students ring hollow.

What we have here is, pure and simple, a knock-down and drag-out fight between the friends and foes of Stevens Creek development.

Those pro-86th and O feel that a college campus there would spur development in the nearby Stevens Creek watershed and they're tickled about that prospect. Those opposed to 86th and O likewise feel development would be spurred in that area and they're not happy about it. Additionally, there are those folks who think the college board should recognize community policy toward development in that area and should go through the same planning procedure as private land developers.

Those naive enough to think this is just an education question need only listen to the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce beat the drums and lead the cheers for 86th and O and in the same breath knock "head in the sand" attitudes of those opposing development in Stevens Creek.

JAMES RESTON

China And America

WASHINGTON — Watching China in her recent adversity and bereavement reminds us of the wisdom of very old societies. Politics aside, they have learned in their thousands of years a great deal about the mysteries of life and death and the triumphs and disasters in between.

During the recent earthquakes in China, Secretary of State Kissinger, with the approval of the President, asked the Peking government through various channels what the United States could do to help. The reply was courteous but brief. They were grateful for our concern, but they would deal with the problem on their own.

When Chairman Mao Tse-tung died, it was widely assumed that there would be a great ceremony of mourning in Peking, attended by the political leaders, philosophers, and television cameras of the world — as at the graves of Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin, De Gaulle, and the other fallen giants of the 20th Century. China said no. This would have turned a national funeral into an international political and propaganda spectacle, with presidents, prime ministers, and commissars using it for their own political advantage at home. They were not invited.

This is very Chinese. Long before Mao Tse-tung captured power in China, even before the beginning of this century, the French poet and historian, Paul Valery, defined in an essay called "The Yali" the difference between the Oriental and the Occidental mind.

Valery's Chinese philosopher speaks to the Western world: "Think of the web of our race. Our empire is woven of the living, the dead, and Nature. It exists because it sets all things in order. Here everything is a part of history: a certain flower, the sweetness of a turning moment, the delicate flesh of the lakes laid bare by a sunbeam, a stirring eclipse.

"In these things, the spirits of our fathers meet our own . . . Being so we seem asleep and are despised. Yet all things dissolve in our magnificent mass. Conquerors lose their way in our yellow water. Foreign armies are drowned in the flood of our descendants . . .

"Our politics, therefore, must be infinite, reaching to both ends of time and leading a thousand million men from their fathers to their sons, in lines neither broken nor tangled. There lies direction without desire . . . Gentle, cruel, subtle, or barbarous, we have been what was needed at the time . . ."

There is, in this fascinating and brilliant essay by Valery, a paradox which is particularly interesting just when both China and the United States are trying to determine the future leadership of their two nations.

Valery's Chinese philosopher condemns the Western mind for its "raging science," its fascination with the immediate, its preoccupation with time — what he calls "the intoxication that destroys wisdom.

"You (in the Occident) who know so many things," he says, "do not know the most ancient and powerful, and you rage with desire for what is immediate, and you destroy your fathers and your sons together."

But for all this majestic talk about the importance of history, philosophy, and continuity, the practical and critical fact in China today after the death of Chairman Mao is that he was not able to organize a system of political succession that would assure the continuity of his philosophy.

China is deeply divided now over this "raging science" of the West. The struggle for power after Mao has to do precisely with whether China should develop primarily on its own, or whether it should trade for the inventions, and risk the contaminations of the West, in order to become a modern industrial and scientific society by the end of 'ae century.

"And now remember," says Valery's Chinese philosopher, "that your great inventions in the West had their origin with us. Do you understand now why we did not develop them further? To have singled them out for development would have spoiled the slow grandeur of our existence . . . You can see that we are not to be despised: We invented gunpowder — but for shooting fireworks in the evening."

But no longer. Like America, the Chinese have found that the philosophic dream of isolation, with over a million Russian soldiers on their northern border, and a population growing faster than their industrial and agricultural production, is not a practical proposition, but a threat to the continuity of their dream.

We in the United States are still fussing over inflation versus unemployment, President Ford versus Governor Carter, and a lot of other issues like abortion, taxes, etc., but there is general agreement here about the place of America in the world, and there is a political system of succession that will be accepted after the vote in November.

China represents much that we respect and much that we detest, but for all its long history, it still does not know how or who will carry on Chairman Mao's philosophy.

HO-BOY! THEY ALL SOUND THE SAME —

POLITICIANS SYNONYMOUS —

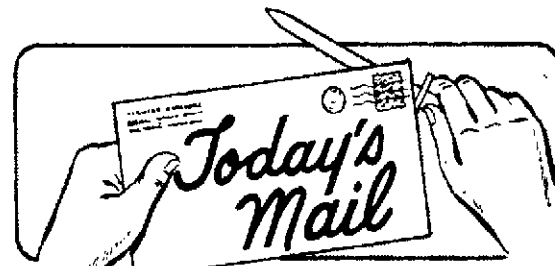

TOM WICKER

MOYNIHAN

NEW YORK — Anyone who has been watching American politics for a long time probably should have stopped expecting much — for example, that those who intelligently discuss "the issues" should win over those who play instead on emotions, fears, antagonisms and myths. It's just too hard to separate "the issues" from the way voters feel about life and their circumstances and the men and women who ask for their votes.

Nevertheless, things have been happening in the world of politics that might logically have given the optimistic some grounds to look for a new seriousness of purpose, a new sense of value, perhaps a more restrained offering from the politicians and a more rational response from the voters.

The Real Needs

Lincoln, Neb.
This is an open letter to the U.S. Senate, the House and Nebraska's Unicameral:

Why are you crying for salary raises instead of courage and common sense to help this great nation cut its staggering financial burden?

Saddle progress with justice, courage and common sense — or can you?

MARY PARTINGTON

No More Blue Stamps

Lincoln, Neb.
I was very irritated by the open letter from Ben Simon's to the people of Lincoln telling that they would no longer give blue stamps.

It was not that fact that bothered me. It was their way of trying to make us believe it was the people's wish.

Why not tell the truth. "This change of policy will benefit and please" only Ben Simon's.

A. G.

He's For Carter

McCook, Neb.
I am one of the Nebraska farmers who will vote for Jimmy Carter for president, and Ed Zorinsky for senator in November. Republican farm policy has allowed farmers to work harder, spend more for expenses and to receive less. Not exactly the kind of program one wants for another four years.

It appears that under Nixon-Ford-Butz, no one has been a winner — the Republican farm policy has whip-sawed the consumer and given the farmer declining prices, with speculators and middlemen as the only beneficiaries.

I like Jimmy Carter's goal of developing a coherent, stable food and fiber policy that will insure farmers a loan price that will cover the cost of production. When farmers go to the polls, they want to remember this is what President Ford vetoed in the Emergency Farm Bill during May, 1975.

ERV FRIEHE

Care Of The Elderly

Barneston, Neb.
Our governor and state senators are doing a fine job of fighting for the rights of the mentally retarded, but what about the rights of our old folks — or do they have any?

Our retarded are not to be restrained regardless of the harm they do to others. Yet our old folks can be locked in chairs, tied in bed and chairs, even if they can walk. The reason given is that they run off, so it is the doctors' orders. Some are so over-medicated they can hardly hold their heads up, and one hears that this is also doctors' orders.

I have a dear friend in a large nursing home in Beatrice. When a resident was falling out of a chair, I looked for an employee and saw none. I was told they were having a water fight somewhere in the building, and found this to be true. At another time two residents were fighting, and no one was on the floor. There were at least a dozen employees in a room, all smoking.

I asked about the physical therapist mentioned in an article, and was told they had none.

They are asking for volunteers all the time. That would be wonderful, as most of the old folks never get out of the building. All activities seem to be inside. I have been told it is almost impossible to get medical help for these people. Still the Beatrice home has the finest medical care.

Perhaps the senators and governor should read the book, "Tender Loving Greed."

CONCERNED CITIZEN

Lincoln, Neb.
This is in regard to a statement about "Another Nixon" in the Sept. 4 Star. The writer let loose with a diatribe against Bob Dole and the Republican Party in general. If taking hold of an issue such as amnesty and telling it like it is, instead of playing a game of semantics with the public and the press like our Democratic folksy Li'l Abner of the South, constitutes being a hatchet man, then our system is in trouble.

I'd worry far less about a man like Dole who speaks his mind than one who runs around with his shirt-sleeves rolled up and bare feet on the desk in the South — but perfectly groomed in business attire while courting the East Coast. This country is looking for a messiah — but believe me, that shrewd, smooth-talking peanut-butter kid isn't it.

To think that J. Carter had the audacity to refer to Ronald Reagan as an actor. After watching and listening to Mr. Carter for the past months, I believe he more than qualifies to give Reagan lessons in acting — and manipulating. Perhaps Jerry Ford lacks the charisma of a Robert Redford, but his record of service to this country should stand for something. He is steady and stable, and under his direction we have seen a degree of normalcy returning in government. Politicians tell us we have a choice in November. In my opinion, we really do not. The only man worth voting for is Jerry Ford.

B. D. SCHIRALLI

Bella vs. Pat: Sound And Fury

There was, above all, Watergate and its sobering message that American democracy had given the biggest landslide in history to two candidates who later resigned their offices in the face of pending criminal charges.

The "dirty tricks" and vituperation of the 1972 campaign, on the one hand, the increased participation of women and the enfranchisement of young people, on the other, reforms in the financing of candidates and campaigns, and in voter registration procedures in many states, the greater opening of delegate selection procedures, at least within the Democratic Party — all might have been expected by the incautious to result in a higher level of politics in America.

Maybe that will prove to be the case at the national level — although the current flap over the politically irrelevant issue of abortion is not encouraging. But if the senatorial primary campaign being waged by New York Democrats is evidence, the old strident politics of charge and blast and dodge and point is still very much with us.

The two acknowledged front-runners in this unedifying spectacle are the two noisiest candidates, Daniel P. Moynihan and Bella Abzug. Despite their substantive differences, their basic campaign issue appears to be no more than which is likeliest to defeat Republican conservative Sen. James Buckley, if Buckley is renominated in his own primary contest with Peter Peyser. This issue, while real enough, merely begs the question whether either the Moynihan or the Abzug campaign has given anyone cause to choose one of these over Buckley.

Ms. Abzug's campaign has concentrated, to the diminution of her own assets, on the sweeping assertion that Moynihan is, or ought to be, disqualified as a Democratic nominee because he served in three different positions under Presidents Nixon and Ford.

For his part, Moynihan has lumped Ms. Abzug into what he calls a group of Democrats showing "an incredible degree of insensitivity" to New York City's ethnic variety, and supporting "a new system of discrimination" backed by federal agencies. When she blundered by saying she would not support Moynihan if he were nominated, he translated this into "a corruption of liberalism" by "elements in our party that prefer to ruin if they cannot rule."

When Ms. Abzug withdrew a radio commercial harshly critical of Moynihan but containing an error, he made this offense sound as heinous as the Watergate burglary, and he has been given to such roundhouse swings as that Ms. Abzug in Congress had "never voted a dollar for American defense."

Meanwhile, as one of the most noted American intellectuals and perhaps its best known elected woman revile each other as their main contributions to the campaign, another candidate, Abraham Hershfeld, has campaigned almost entirely through television commercials he pays for himself.

That has left useful campaigning to the other two candidates, Ramsey Clark and Paul O'Dwyer. Clark, who came close to defeating Sen. Jacob Javits two years ago, has been particularly notable — steadily putting forward sensible or at least provocative proposals on an enormous range of issues, avoiding personal attacks, appealing quietly to the common sense, moderation, even idealism of the voters, honoring them and himself by his faith in that kind of politics.

His reward, according to the pros and the taxi drivers, is that Moynihan and Ms. Abzug are the front-runners. Perhaps that tells no more about any of them than it does about us, the voters, who like to complain about nothing so much as the quality of our political leadership.

WILLIAM V. SHANNON

The JFK Model

PLAINS, Ga. — If Jimmy Carter wins in November, he will be the first Democratic presidential candidate since John F. Kennedy in 1960 to dislodge an incumbent Republican administration. It is no easy task to defeat the party in power whether its nominee is an unelected president like Gerald Ford or a highly publicized vice president as Richard Nixon was in 1960.

Carter, like Kennedy, is an outsider who won the Democratic nomination by a bold, single-minded display of intelligence, will and cool nerve. Neither was the candidate of the congressional insiders, the party establishment or most liberals.

Once nominated, these comparative outsiders began to conciliate the interest groups and espouse some liberal ideas, to invoke the party's past and identify themselves with party heroes.

Reciting the litany of liberal, activist presidents — Carter has added Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson — is a necessary rallying cry to old loyalties. It is, too, an inescapable reflection of the inner logic of the Democratic Party coalition. The pressures inside the party tend to push its leader leftward. Kennedy became more discernibly and committedly liberal the longer he was in national politics. Carter, another centrist, is responding to the same natural momentum.

Carter began with the same non-ideological posture as Kennedy and perceived his central problem in similar terms. Now as in 1960, the country is eager for a change and a little afraid of it, dissatisfied with the status quo and yet fearful that change may lead to something worse. The problem then is how to excite interest and arouse hope but not in such a way as to stir devastating, disruptive anxieties.

A conservative candidate is, in effect, saying the future will be much the same as the present. A candidate of a party offering change is, in effect, proposing a venturesome journey into unknown territory. Such a candidate has to be careful that his journey conjures up positive, not fearful associations.

Speaking last month at the Town Hall in Los Angeles, Carter spoke explicitly about this quality.

"I think that most Americans are not very ideological. Most Americans share a deep-seated desire for two goals that might, to an ideological person, seem contradictory. They want both progress and preservation."

"... To walk the line between progress and preservation, between too much change and too little, is no easy task . . . it can be accomplished only by leaders who are independent and imaginative and flexible in their thinking and are guided not by closed minds but by common sense."

In 1960, Kennedy had an easier time because, after the tranquil Eisenhower years, many social problems were emerging, but few were at the boiling point. He could therefore sketch out the path to a "New Frontier" in generalized terms and still sound credible. Carter is running after years of turmoil, demagoguery and distrust. Major issues such as crime, inflation, unemployment, health insurance, welfare and tax reform have been repeatedly and angrily thought out and repeatedly stalemated.

In these circumstances, it is harder to avoid specifics and to strike a plausible balance between liberal innovation and conservative caution. Too many issues are too sharply defined.

An accomplished broken-field runner, however, Carter hits hard on unemployment and also promises a balanced budget, pledges a national health care program and also denounces inflation, manages to sound both tough and compassionate on welfare, gives tax reform a soak-the-rich overtone and also promises a thrifty, businesslike administration. There are no necessary inconsistencies in these objectives, but each of them obviously has different weight and a different resonance for various groups of voters.

There are two risks in this strategy. On the liberal side, the risk is that Carter's balancing may send confusing signals to the voters, deflating the enthusiasm of liberal voters. On the conservative side, the risk is that the signals of aggressive change may come through too loud and clear. Doubtful moderates might then flee back to President Ford.

In the closing days of the 1960 campaign, President Eisenhower made his too-long-delayed round of campaign speeches. As Eisenhower shed his benign reassuring glow on Nixon's pallid candidacy, a worried Jack Kennedy said privately: "Every day like is out there, I can just see those votes falling away from me like autumn leaves."

If he can come across in the debates as a credible executive, President Ford has the hope that uneasy voters may turn to him as a second-rate Eisenhower, amiable, dull and, above all, safe.

China And America

WASHINGTON — Watching China in her recent adversity and bereavement reminds us of the wisdom of very old societies. Politics aside, they have learned in their thousands of years a great deal about the mysteries of life and death and the triumphs and disasters in between.

During the recent earthquakes in China, Secretary of State Kissinger, with the approval of the President, asked the Peking government through various channels what the United States could do to help. This is very Chinese. Long before Mao Tse-tung captured power in China, even before the beginning of this century, the French poet and historian, Paul Valery, defined in an essay called "The Yalu" the difference between the Oriental and the Occidental mind.

Valery's Chinese philosopher speaks to the Western world:

"Think of the web of our race . . . Our empire is woven of the living, the dead, and Nature. It exists because it sets all things in order. Here everything is a part of history: a certain flower, the sweetness of a turning moment, the delicate flesh of the lakes laid bare by a sunbeam, a stirring eclipse.

"In these things, the spirits of our fathers meet our own . . . Being so we seem asleep and are despoiled. Yet all things dissolve in our magnificent mass. Conquerors lose their way in our yellow water. Foreign armies are drowned in the flood of our descendants . . .

"Our politics, therefore, must be infinite, reaching to both ends of time and leading a thousand million men from their fathers to their sons, in lines neither broken nor tangled. There lies direction without desire . . . Gentle, cruel, subtle, or barbarous, we have been what was needed at the time . . ."

There is, in this fascinating and brilliant essay by Valery, a paradox which is particularly interesting just when both China and the United States are trying to determine the future leadership of their two nations.

Valery's Chinese philosopher condemns the Western mind for its "raging science," its fascination with the immediate, its preoccupation with time — what he calls "the intoxication that destroys wisdom."

"You (in the Occident) who know so many things," he says, "do not know the most ancient and powerful, and you rage with desire for what is immediate, and you destroy your fathers and your sons together."

But for all this majestic talk about the importance of history, philosophy, and continuity, the practical and critical fact in China today after the death of Chairman Mao is that he was not able to organize a system of political succession that would assure the continuity of his philosophy.

China is deeply divided now

over this "raging science" of the West. The struggle for power after Mao has to do precisely with whether China should develop primarily on its own, or whether it should trade for the inventions, and risk the contaminations of the West, in order to become a modern industrial and scientific society by the end of the century.

"And now remember," says Valery's Chinese philosopher, "that your great inventions in the West had their origin with us. Do you understand now why we did not develop them further? To have singled them out for development would have spoiled the slow grandeur of our existence . . . You can see that we are not to be despised: We invented gunpowder — but for shooting fireworks in the evening."

But no longer. Like America, the Chinese have found that the philosophic dream of isolation, with over a million Russian soldiers on their northern border, and a population growing faster than their industrial and agricultural production, is not a practical proposition, but a threat to the continuity of their dream.

We in the United States are still fussing over inflation versus unemployment, President Ford versus Governor Carter, and a lot of other issues like abortion, taxes, etc., but there is general agreement here about the place of America in the world, and there is a political system of succession that will be accepted after the vote in November.

China represents much that we respect and much that we detest, but for all its long history, it still does not know how or who will carry on Chairman Mao's philosophy.

TOM WICKER

MOYNIHAN

NEW YORK — Anyone who has been watching American politics for a long time probably should have stopped expecting much — for example, that those who intelligently discuss "the issues" should win over those who play instead on emotions, fears, antagonisms and myths. It's just too hard to separate "the issues" from the way voters feel about life and their circumstances and the men and women who ask for their votes.

Nevertheless, things have been happening in the world of politics that might logically have given the optimistic some grounds to look for a new seriousness of purpose, a new sense of value, perhaps a more restrained offering from the politicians and a more rational response from the voters.

The Real Needs

This is an open letter to the U.S. Senate, the House and Nebraska's Unicameral.

Why are you crying for salary raises instead of courage and common sense to help this great nation cut its staggering financial burden?

Saddle progress with justice, courage and common sense — or can you?

No More Blue Stamps

I was very irritated by the open letter from Ben Simon's to the people of Lincoln telling that they would no longer give blue stamps.

It was not that fact that bothered me. It was their way of trying to make us believe it was the people's wish.

Why not tell the truth. "This change of policy will benefit and please" only Ben Simon's.

A. G.

He's For Carter

I am one of the Nebraska farmers who will vote for Jimmy Carter for president, and Ed Zorinsky for senator in November. Republican farm policy has allowed farmers to work harder, spend more for expenses and to receive less. Not exactly the kind of program one wants for another four years.

It appears that under Nixon-Ford-Butz, no one has been a winner — the Republican farm policy has whip-sawed the consumer and given the farmer declining prices, with speculators and middlemen as the only beneficiaries.

I like Jimmy Carter's goal of developing a coherent, stable food and fiber policy that will insure farmers a loan price that will cover the cost of production. When farmers go to the polls, they want to remember this is what President Ford vetoed in the Emergency Farm Bill during May, 1975.

ERV FRIEHE

Care Of The Elderly

Our governor and state senators are doing a fine job of fighting for the rights of the mentally retarded, but what about the rights of our old folks — or do they have any?

Our retarded are not to be restrained regardless of the harm they do to others. Yet our old folks can be locked in chains, tied in bed and chairs, even if they can walk. The reason given is that they run off, so it is the doctors' orders. Some are so over-medicated they can hardly hold their heads up, and one hears that this is also doctors' orders.

I have a dear friend in a large nursing home in Beatrice. When a resident was falling out of a chair, I looked for an employee and saw none. I was told they were having a water fight somewhere in the building, and found this to be true. At another time two residents were fighting, and no one was on the floor. There were at least a dozen employees in a room, all smoking.

I asked about the physical therapist mentioned in an article, and was told they had none.

They are asking for volunteers all the time. That would be wonderful, as most of the old folks never get out of the building. All activities seem to be inside. I have been told it is almost impossible to get medical help for these people. Still the Beatrice home has the finest medical care.

Perhaps the senators and governor should read the book, "Tender Loving Greed."

CONCERNED CITIZEN

The Peanut-Butter Kid

This is in regard to a statement about "Another Nixon" in the Sept. 4 Star. The writer let loose with a diatribe against Bob Dole and the Republican Party in general. If taking hold of an issue such as amnesty and telling it like it is, instead of playing a game of semantics with the public and the press like our Democratic, folksy Li'l Abner of the South, constitutes being a hatchet man, then our system is in trouble.

I'd worry far less about a man like Dole who speaks his mind than one who runs around with his shirt-sleeves rolled up and bare feet on the desk in the South — but perfectly groomed in business attire while courting the East Coast. This country is looking for a messiah — but believe me, that shrewd, smooth-talking peanut-butter kid isn't it.

To think that J. Carter had the audacity to refer to Ronald Reagan as an actor. After watching and listening to Mr. Carter for the past months, I believe he more than qualifies to give Reagan lessons in acting — and manipulating. Perhaps Jerry Ford lacks the charisma of a Robert Redford, but his record of service to this country should stand for something. He is steady and stable, and under his direction we have seen a degree of normalcy returning in government. Politicians tell us we have a choice in November. In my opinion, we really do not. The only man worth voting for is Jerry Ford.

B. D. SCHIRALLI

Bella vs. Pat: Sound And Fury

There was, above all, Watergate and its sobering message that American democracy had given the biggest landslide in history to two candidates who later resigned their offices in the face of pending criminal charges.

The "dirty tricks" and vituperation of the 1972 campaign, on the one hand, the increased participation of women and the enfranchisement of young people, on the other; reforms in the financing of candidates and campaigns, and in voter registration procedures in many states, the greater opening of delegate selection procedures, at least within the Democratic Party — all might have been expected by the incautious to result in a higher level of politics in America.

Maybe that will prove to be the case at the national level — although the current flap over the politically irrelevant issue of abortion is not encouraging. But if the senatorial primary campaign being waged by New York Democrats is evidence, the old strident politics of charge and blast and dodge and point is still very much with us.

The two acknowledged front-runners in this unifying spectacle are the two noisiest candidates, Daniel P. Moynihan and Bella Abzug. Despite their substantive differences, their basic campaign issue appears to be no more than which is likeliest to defeat Republican conservative Sen. James Buckley, if Buckley is renominated in his own primary contest with Peter Peyser. This issue, while real enough, merely begs the question whether either the Moynihan or the Abzug campaign has given anyone cause to choose one of these over Buckley.

Ms. Abzug's campaign has concentrated, to the diminution of her own assets, on the sweeping assertion that Moynihan is, or ought to be, disqualified as a Democratic nominee because he served in three different positions under Presidents Nixon and Ford.

For his part, Moynihan has lumped Ms. Abzug into what he calls a group of Democrats showing "an incredible degree of insensitivity" to New York City's ethnic variety, and supporting "a new system of discrimination" backed by federal agencies. When she blundered by saying she would not support Moynihan if he were nominated, he translated this into "a corruption of liberalism" by "elements in our party that prefer to ruin if they cannot rule."

When Ms. Abzug withdrew a radio commercial harshly critical of Moynihan but containing an error, he made this offense sound as heinous as the Watergate burglary, and he has been given to such roundhouse swings as that Ms. Abzug in Congress had "never voted a dollar for American defense."

Meanwhile, as one of the most noted American intellectuals and perhaps its best known elected woman revile each other as their main contributions to the campaign, another candidate, Abraham Hershfeld, has campaigned almost entirely through television commercials he pays for himself.

That has left useful campaigning to the other two candidates, Ramsey Clark and Paul O'Dwyer. Clark, who came close to defeating Sen. Jacob Javits two years ago, has been particularly notable — steadily putting forward sensible or at least provocative proposals on an enormous range of issues, avoiding personal attacks, appealing quietly to the common sense, moderation, even idealism of the voters, honoring them and himself by his faith in that kind of politics.

His reward, according to the pros and the taxi drivers, is that Moynihan and Ms. Abzug are the front-runners. Perhaps that tells no more about any of them than it does about us, the voters, who like to complain about nothing so much as the quality of our political leadership.

WILLIAM V. SHANNON

The JFK Model

PLAINS, Ga. — If Jimmy Carter wins in November, he will be the first Democratic presidential candidate since John F. Kennedy in 1960 to dislodge an incumbent Republican administration. It is no easy task to defeat the party in power whether its nominee is an unelected president like Gerald Ford or a highly publicized vice president as Richard Nixon was in 1960.

Carter, like Kennedy, is an outsider who won the Democratic nomination by a bold, single-minded display of intelligence, will and cool nerve. Neither was the candidate of the congressional insiders, the party establishment or most liberals.

Once nominated, these comparative outsiders began to conciliate the interest groups and espouse some liberal ideas, to invoke the party's past and identify themselves with party heroes.

Reciting the litany of liberal, activist presidents — Carter has added Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson — is a necessary rallying cry to old loyalties. It is, too, an inescapable reflection of the inner logic of the Democratic Party coalition. The pressures inside the party tend to push its leader leftward. Kennedy became more discernibly and committedly liberal the longer he was in national politics. Carter, another centrist, is responding to the same natural momentum.

Carter began with the same non-ideological posture as Kennedy and perceived his central problem in similar terms. Now as in 1960, the country is eager for a change and a little afraid of it, dissatisfied with the status quo and yet fearful that change may lead to something worse. The problem then is how to excite interest and arouse hope but not in such a way as to stir devastating, disruptive anxieties.

A conservative candidate is, in effect, saying the future will be much the same as the present. A candidate of a party offering change is, in effect, proposing a venturesome journey into unknown territory. Such a candidate has to be careful that his journey conjures up positive, not fearful associations.

Speaking last month at the Town Hall in Los Angeles, Carter spoke explicitly about this duality.

"I think that most Americans are not very ideological. Most Americans share a deep-seated desire for two goals that might, to an ideological person, seem contradictory. They want both progress and preservation."

"... To walk the line between progress and preservation, between too much change and too little, is no easy task . . . it can be accomplished only by leaders who are independent and imaginative and flexible in their thinking and are guided not by closed minds but by common sense."

In 1960, Kennedy had an easier time because, after the tranquil Eisenhower years, many social problems were emerging, but few were at the boiling point. He could therefore sketch out the path to a "New Frontier" in generalized terms and still sound credible. Carter is running after years of turmoil, demagoguery and distrust. Major issues such as crime, inflation, unemployment, health insurance, welfare and tax reform have been repeatedly and angrily thought out and repeatedly stalemated.

In these circumstances, it is harder to avoid specifics and to strike a plausible balance between liberal innovation and conservative caution. Too many issues are too sharply defined.

An accomplished broken-field runner, however, Carter hits hard on unemployment and also promises a balanced budget, pledges a national health care program and also denounces inflation, manages to sound both tough and compassionate on welfare, gives tax reform a so-called rich overtones and also promises a thrifty, businesslike administration. There are no necessary inconsistencies in these objectives, but each of them obviously has different weight and a different resonance for various groups of voters.

There are two risks in this strategy. On the liberal side, the risk is that Carter's balancing may send confusing signals to the voters, deflating the enthusiasm of liberal voters. On the conservative side, the risk is that the signals of aggressive change may come through too loud and clear. Doubtful moderates might then flee back to President Ford.

In the closing days of the 1960 campaign, President Eisenhower made his too-long-delayed round of campaign speeches. As Eisenhower shed his benign reassuring glow on Nixon's pallid candidacy, a worried Jack Kennedy said privately: "Every day like is out there, I can just see those votes falling away from me like autumn leaves."

If he can come across in the debates as a credible executive, President Ford has the hope that uneasy voters may turn to him as a second-rate Eisenhower, amiable, dull and, above all, safe.

AND OVER YOU GO . . . at 72 Rickell helps teach judo.

Who Says Age Has To Slow A Body Down?

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

"There are no small actors, only small parts" — The Fantasticks
Clair Rickell has been mama's baby boy, the abominable snowman, an angel. He's fallen out of a closet, played a dead man. He's been poisoned. He's been an Indian, a doctor.
Rickell has had the role of just about every character imaginable — everyone but Frankenstein.
The charming gentleman, now 72, has been in who knows how many productions — plays, musicals, dramas, pageants. About 70, he says for the record. "When I got up to 70 I quit counting."

Rickell had no idea he'd get into acting. "I didn't think I was interested."
But then there was college at Nebraska Wesleyan University. It was 1941 and the war came, most of the young men left campus to join the service. When the plea was out for male voices, Rickell found himself signing up — to sing up a storm.
That was just the beginning.
More than an actor, Rickell wears many hats. He's a foodshelver, turned bookshelver. He's a carillonneur. He's a judo instructor. He's a student of Hebrew.
I once heard someone say he did a new thing every year, Rickell said. But let's not talk about the other years. What am I doing this year? I decided to quit everything," he deadpanned. "Then I changed my mind."

Rickell pulled his cart between the shelves at the Bennett Martin Public Library where he's called a page — "when I put down my occupation on any forms I always say I'm a bookshelver," he said.
There's more involved to this than just putting the books back on the shelves, Rickell said. "You have to get them in the right places, and make sure the right card is in the book."
He's been shelving books four hours a day, five days a week for six or seven years. Before that he was a foodshelver at Leon's. "I'm still a foodshelver food for thought, you know," he said in that gruff tone of voice that gets to be commonplace the more you're around him.

He reflected back on his years in the performing arts. His first on-stage part was in Victor Herbert's operetta "The Red Mill." "They don't do it any more," he said, with a tinge of nostalgia, "because they're going for more sophisticated productions."
If he had his druthers, he'd see a revival of the oldies but goodies — "Camelot," "Kiss Me Kate."
Rickell was the first recipient of Lincoln's Thespi Award, presented for "significant contributions to the art of theater." Of the recipient, it was said, "This person has probably stood on every stage which the City of Lincoln has ever had."

"It's almost time to quit," he said, thumbing through his sheet music. "I have a bus to catch." Another chorale later, he gathered the music and began the long descent down the winding stairs.
"Did I tell you this year I am studying Hebrew?" said Rickell. It's hard, it's an entirely different alphabet and reads right to left.
Say something in Hebrew, he was asked.
"Erevtov," he said. "That means good evening. I say it to my Jewish friends usually in the evening," he said, that devilish tone returning.

In a tiny dressing room in the basement of the Hilton Hotel, Rickell sat patiently in a chair, a towel clutched to his bare chest.
He was getting the treatment. Marie Muffley, president of Theater, Inc., was making him up for that evening's mellerdrammer. Rickell has been in mellerdrammers nearly a dozen years.
Mrs. Muffley grabbed an eyebrow pencil off the counter laden with fake hair, rouge, all the little theatrical makeup touches. "He's been in the business so long there's nothing to make him up," she said, beginning a running dialogue between the two.
The makeup artist smeared glue all over Rickell's shiny bald dome. This is the fun part, she said, preparing to apply his curly hairpiece.
They reminisced about his roles, large and small, through the years.
Rickell was the abominable snowman in a library play, she recalled.
"I can't remember all that stuff," he said, gruff again.
"Should I mention the time I was mama's baby boy?" he asked, a bit sheepishly.
"He came out with a diaper and a bonnet and baby shoes, and that's all," Mrs. Muffley laughed. "Oh, shut up," he gruffed.
Then it was time to don the crumpled black suit, pick up the black bag and complete the transformation into the mellerdrammer's doctor.
"Of course I don't have the energy I used to have," he said.
But he seems to have tried everything, at least once.
"Well I have never been skung," he retorted. Just give him time. Just give him time.

EASY TO MAKE UP . . . Mrs. Muffley kids Rickell.

Opening lead - two of spades.
Let's say you're in three no-trump and West leads a spade. You win East's jack with the ace and the problem is what to do next.

Actually, there's only one correct way to play the hand and, if you find it, you come home safe and sound. You lead a low club at trick two and, after West follows low, play the ten from dummy. As the cards lie, this somewhat irregular finesse makes the contract. You eventually score four club tricks, two spades, two diamonds and a heart.
But if you go up with the king of clubs at trick two, instead of playing the ten from dummy, you are almost sure to finish down one.
The great advantage of playing the ten from dummy is that you make four club tricks not only when the suit is divided 3-3, but also when the suit is divided 4-2 and West holds either Q-x, J-x, or Q-J-x-x.

These possibilities cannot be lightly brushed aside. Thus, if you played simply for the clubs to be divided 3-3 — by playing the king and then the ace and another club — you would have only a 36 per cent chance of finding the suit evenly divided.
But if you make the ten play from dummy at trick two, you increase your chances of finding a favorable club division to about 56 per cent — because of the possibility of finding West with either a doubleton honor or both honors.
Basically, the outcome of the hand rests on whether or not you make four club tricks. In line with that, you should therefore finesse the ten at trick two because that is the method of play that offers the best chance to get them. In the actual hand, the ten play works like a charm.

DEAR ABBY I know you'll never print this, but I just want you to know that your advice has ruined one life. Mine.
Ten years ago I was going with Paul, a guy I really loved. He wanted me to go all the way with him, and I really wanted to, but I had it drummed into me that I should save myself for marriage, so I wrote to you for advice. You told me that if I lost Paul because I wouldn't give in, he wasn't worth having.
Well, Paul met another girl who gave him what he wanted, and he married her. They've been married for eight years and have a great marriage.
If I had given in to Paul, he'd have married me instead. I'm married to a nice guy but I still love Paul and always will. I wish I hadn't taken your advice. Thanks for nothing.

DEAR ABBY I am a diabetic and should not have sugar. My problem is how to stay on my restricted diet and still enjoy some kind of social life.
I belong to a club and a church circle, and the refreshments they serve are loaded with sugar. I've been eating the refreshments, even though I know I shouldn't, because I don't want to advertise the fact that I'm diabetic, and I feel awkward refusing refreshments while everyone else is eating.
I don't know how to handle this situation. I suppose the simplest solution would be to stay away from the meetings, but isn't there another answer?

dear abby

DEAR ABBY I was amused to see in your column the letter from "TRAVELIN' MAN" who said that years ago, bums and drifters would stop by the back door of the undertaker's to try on used choppers for size. You replied, "Recycled dentures? You're puttin' me on!"
Abby, he was not puttin' you on. Back in the 30s, there was a general merchandise store in Barnhart, Mo. (20 miles south of St. Louis) that featured a wastebasket full of used dentures for sale. People would come in and try them on for size — germs and all.
The store has since burned down but I can vouch for the fact that there was such a place.

Round and round he went. Finally, he reached the top of the bell tower at First Plymouth Congregational Church.

"From the street there are 152 steps," Rickel said, hardly winded. This man is in shape. He gets weekly workouts teaching judo; he holds a brown belt in the martial art.

Rickel emptied his pockets — "It's more comfortable to play when unencumbered," he noted, stuffily — and hung his watch on a metal bar suspended over the carillon. He sat down at the keyboard and immediately turned to his practice.

"I have to play Sunday so you'll have to pardon me," he said as he launched into his carillon version of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." His hands flew across the keyboard, pulled levers. The clicking, clanking of the keys filled the bell tower, drowned out the bells. But the carillon was heard all over the neighborhood; Rickel was giving another free afternoon concert.

He looked like a little boy squirming in church. His feet dangled short of the floor, then shuffled across the footboard.

He practices once a week . . . "not often enough."

This little man, bald of pate, white hair flowing over his shirt collar, sideburns creeping to the jawline, took up the carillon two years ago. He claims to have never played the piano; now he's worked his way into playing the carillon two Sundays a month and subbing for the regular carillonneur.

"It's almost time to quit," he said, thumbing through his sheet music. "I have a bus to catch." Another chorale later, he gathered the music and began the long descent down the winding stairs.

"Did I tell you . . . this year I am studying Hebrew," said Rickel. It's hard; it's an entirely different alphabet and reads right to left.

Say something in Hebrew, he was asked.

"Erevtov," he said. "That means good evening. I say it to my Jewish friends, usually in the evening," he said, that devilish tone returning.

In a tiny dressing room in the basement of the Hilton Hotel, Rickel sat patiently in a chair, a towel clutched to his bare chest.

He was getting the treatment. Marie Muffley, president of Theater, Inc., was making him up for that evening's mellerdrummer. Rickel has been in mellerdrummers nearly a dozen years.

Mrs. Muffley grabbed an eyebrow pencil off the counter laden with fake hair, rouge, all the little theatrical makeup touches. "He's been in the business so long there's nothing to make him up," she said, beginning a running dialogue between the two.

The makeup artist smeared glue all over Rickel's shiny, bald dome. This is the fun part, she said, preparing to apply his curly hairpiece.

They reminisced about his roles, large and small, through the years.

Rickel was the abominable snowman in a library play, she recalled.

"I can't remember all that stuff," he said, gruff again.

"Should I mention the time I was mama's baby boy?" he asked, a bit sheepishly.

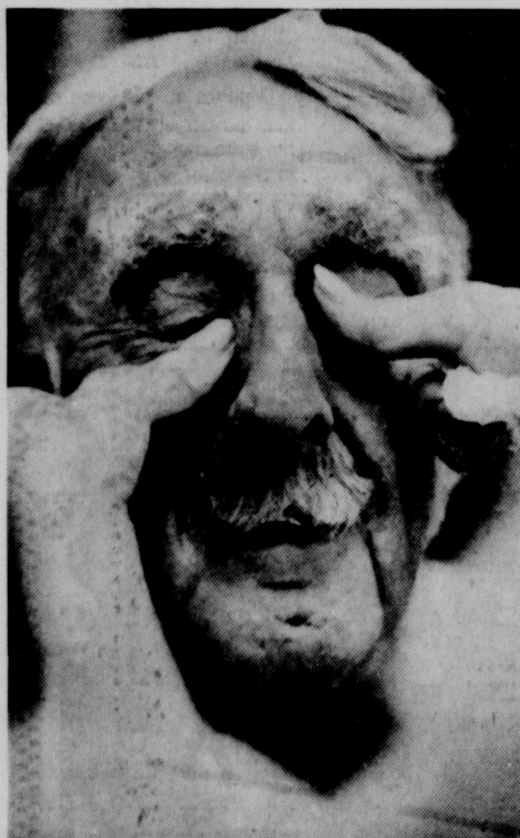

"He came out with a diaper and a bonnet and baby shoes, and that's all," Mrs. Muffley laughed. "Oh, shut up," he gruffed.

Then it was time to don the crumpled black suit, pick up the black bag and complete the transformation into the mellerdrummer's doctor.

"Of course I don't have the energy I used to have," he said.

But he seems to have tried everything, at least once.

"Well, I have never been skiing," he retorted. Just give him time. Just give him time.

EASY TO MAKE UP . . . Mrs. Muffley kids Rickel.

Opening lead - two of spades.
Let's say you're in three notrump and West leads a spade. You win East's jack with the ace and the problem is what to do next.

Actually, there's only one correct way to play the hand and, if you find it, you come home safe and sound. You lead a low club at trick two and, after West follows low, play the ten from dummy. As the cards lie, this somewhat irregular finesse makes the contract. You eventually score four club tricks, two spades, two diamonds and a heart.

But if you go up with the king of clubs at trick two, instead of playing the ten from dummy, you are almost sure to finish down one.

The great advantage of playing the ten from dummy is that you make four club tricks not only when the suit is divided 3-3, but also when the suit is divided 4-2 and West holds either Q-x, J-x, or Q-J-x-x.

These possibilities cannot be lightly brushed aside. Thus, if you played simply for the clubs to be divided 3-3 — by playing the king and then the ace and another club — you would have only a 36 per cent chance of finding the suit evenly divided.

But if you make the ten play from dummy at trick two, you increase your chances of finding a favorable club division to about 58 per cent — because of the possibility of finding West with either a doubleton honor or both honors.

Basically, the outcome of the hand rests on whether or not you make four club tricks. In line with that, you should therefore "finesse" the ten at trick two because that is the method of play that offers the best chance to get them. In the actual hand, the ten play works like a charm.

Reader Regrets Following Advice

DEAR ABBY: I know you'll never print this, but I just want you to know that your advice has ruined one life. Mine.

Ten years ago I was going with Paul, a guy I really loved. He wanted me to go all the way with him, and I really wanted to, but I had it drummed into me that I should save myself for marriage, so I wrote to you for advice. You told me that if I lost Paul because I wouldn't give in, he wasn't worth having.

Well, Paul met another girl who gave him what he wanted, and he married her. They've been married for eight years and have a great marriage.

If I had given in to Paul, he'd have married me instead. I'm married to a nice guy, but I still love Paul and always will. I wish I hadn't taken your advice. Thanks for nothing.

SORRY

DEAR SORRY: When a girl asks me if she should go all the way, I advise against it on the theory that she lacks the maturity to handle that kind of relationship, or she wouldn't be asking.

P.S. How do you know how "great" Paul's marriage is? And how can you be sure he would have married you had given in?

DEAR ABBY: I am a diabetic and should not have sugar. My problem is how to stay on my restricted diet and still enjoy some kind of social life.

I belong to a club and a church circle, and the refreshments they serve are loaded with sugar. I've been eating the refreshments, even though I know I shouldn't, because I don't want to advertise the fact that I'm diabetic, and I feel awkward refusing refreshments while everyone else is eating.

I don't know how to handle this situation. I suppose the simplest solution would be to stay away from the meetings, but isn't there another answer?

DIABETIC

DEAR DIABETIC: Your problem is being embarrassed about a condition over which you have no control. You need not "advertise" it, but you could let your hostess know in advance that you can't tolerate sugar. You are foolish to hide it, and even more foolish to go off your diet and upset your sugar level.

DEAR ABBY: I was amused to see in your column the letter from "TRAVELIN' MAN" who said that years ago, bums and drifters would stop by the back door of the undertaker's to try on used choppers for size. You replied, "Recycled dentures? You're puttin' me on!"

Abby, he was not puttin' you on. Back in the 30s, there was a general merchandise store in Barnhart, Mo., (20 miles south of St. Louis) that featured a washtub full of used dentures for sale. People would come in and try them on for size — germs and all.

The store has since burned down, but I can vouch for the fact that there was such a place.

LOU FROM ST. LOUIS

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old boy and, believe it or not, I have never gone all the way with a girl.

I am going with a girl now, and I don't know whether she's a virgin, but here's the problem. We've done a lot of making out together. I mean we have done just about everything BUT.

If she has V.D., could she give it to me without going all the way? Please answer in the paper because my family is very nosy, and I don't want them to know my business. Thank you.

WORRIED IN AMSTERDAM, N.Y.

DEAR WORRIED: It is possible to contract V.D. without going all the way if one of the two parties has it. A free examination (and treatment if necessary) is available through your county Department of Health.

DEAR ABBY: I know I'm not perfect when it comes to grammar and pronunciation, but I have this friend who is an absolute disgrace in that department.

She still says "Woolsworth" and I must have corrected her a hundred times. Another mistake she has made for years is saying "Eximo Pie" instead of "Eskimo Pie." Abby, in a way you are a teacher, so I'm calling on you to take over my job.

Why do people insist on saying they had their dog "Spaded," and a man has "prostrate" trouble, after being corrected a dozen or more times?

SICK OF TEACHING

DEAR SICK: Some people don't want to learn, and others are simply ineducable. Don't sweat it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO PERSEVERING IN LOUISVILLE: Perseverance isn't always the answer. I was recently informed that a young lover in Taiwan wrote over 700 letters in two years to his lady love. The romance ended when she fell in love with the postman!

Hate to write letters? Send 1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24c) envelope.

Nudists Banned From Sri Lanka

Colombo, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Nudist camps could tarnish the image of Sri Lanka, according to the chairman of the state-controlled tourist board.

"We cannot allow nudist camps even in a minor way around our tourist resorts, or anywhere else," Dharmasiri Senanayake said.

He said nudist camps were "quite foreign to the island's culture and traditions and their existence could tarnish the country's image."

West Bypass Words Exchanged

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Threats of delay to the West Bypass highway around Lincoln were traded Monday in front of the City Council.

Marge Schlitt of Citizens to Preserve Wilderness Park said the group is prepared to go to court to stop the project from taking a portion of the park at the southwest edge of the city.

Ray Hogrefe of the Federal Highway Administration countered with the claim that trying to find a different location for the bypass now will result in an additional delay of perhaps two years.

The exchange came Monday morning as state and federal highway officials told the council they want a green light to proceed with the $60 million project.

Hogrefe said the bypass is ready to enter the final design stage. The bypass would connect Interstate 80 with Hwy. 77 at the south edge of the city. It would also have a link, much of it elevated in a viaduct, with K and L Sts. at 9th.

"We need concurrence of the County Board and the City Council that the concept is right, that we're on the right track, so we can protect this corridor," Nutter said.

"We are bombarded almost daily by people who want to develop the area."

Councilman Bob Jeambey objected to the proposed route of the bypass, which he said would isolate a portion of land lying between it and Salt Creek.

Both he and Mrs. Schlitt supported moving the bypass route west of the Regional Center. Nutter and Hogrefe, however, said that route was opposed by the neighborhood, a school district and the regional center.

Nutter noted that the proposed bypass route was approved by the politicians who were serving on the County Board and City Council several years ago.

"We could start over again," Hogrefe said, although "we went through the full process, a very detailed process" to arrive at the presently proposed route.

Mrs. Schlitt, however, argued that on the basis of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling, parkland is more important than homes when the government is thinking of appropriating it for a road.

Council Chairman Max Denney said that if elected officials decide the proposed route should be changed, there is no assurance that people objecting to the new route would not go to court.

Denney Again Asks Look At Loop

City Council Chairman Max Denney Monday reiterated his request that the new downtown bus loop system be evaluated after 90 days.

The Lincoln Transportation System is planning to wait twice that long before holding a public hearing and deciding whether the route should be continued.

Denney's statement came as 23 pages of signatures opposing the loop were turned into LTS Manager Jim Donaghy. The pages apparently carried more than 500 signatures.

The petitions bore the statements that the route of west on N and east on P "seemed to serve us well" and that the rest of the new loop from 14th to 11th and continuing to J could also be incorporated.

Denney argued that the LTS board should hold a public hearing earlier than planned to "at least give the people a chance to be heard."

"They're being ignored," he said.

Mayor Helen Boosalis reacted coolly to Denney's repetition of a request he made earlier.

"Anytime you try something new it's hard to get people to adjust to it," she said. "I would submit that experts in the field are more knowledgeable about what the right length is for a trial period."

She also noted that downtown street work has complicated bus travel and hindered buses from running on time.

Accompanying the petitions given to Donaghy was a letter from Jeanne Patach, a department manager at Miller and Paine, who apparently was instrumental in gathering the signatures.

Firefighters Offer To Settle With City

Lincoln firefighters, in a letter to the City Council, have made an offer for a wage settlement, thereby bypassing the city's administration negotiating team.

"We feel that the facts concerning negotiations have not come through to the council and that there is a breakdown in communication," said union president Hobart Boswell in the firefighter's letter.

The union move, however, is resulting in little reaction from city officials.

City Personnel Director Walt Mitchell said the firefighters' offer was made two or three weeks ago and was studied by the City Council at that time.

"We have been in close contact with the council all the way along," he said.

The council Monday discussed the letter only briefly and took no action. A discussion, however, is set for next week on the merits of the city's present system of wage negotiation.

The fire fighters' offer would accept the 6% wage hike that has been given to other city employees, but would call for a substantial increase in fringe benefits.

Although stressing that the figure was only a "very rough estimate," Mitchell said the fringe benefit package apparently would constitute a 7% increase. Other city employees have received a fringe benefit package of 1%.

In addition to that cost-of-living wage, most city employees also receive a 5% merit wage increase during the year.

The fringe benefit being sought by the firefighters includes a food allowance of $20 a month, an increase in the annual clothing allowance from $108 to $175 and free bedding with cleaning service.

In addition, the firefighters ask that they be allowed to stop driving the mayor's car.

The settlement agreement would also settle a court suit stemming from the firefighter's rejection of the city's offer last year, with the provision the amount of the 10% wage increase given to other city employees be given to the fire fighters retroactively with 8% interest.

Council Picks 10 To Review Liquor Policy

The City Council Monday tentatively selected 10 Lincolmites to review the city's controversial liquor policies.

The city has a quota of 135 liquor licenses which is not being upheld by the State Liquor Control Commission.

In addition, the City Council is attempting to design standards to regulate outdoor beer gardens or sidewalk cafes where drinks could be served.

The 10 people are: Ellis C. Dann, vice-president and manager of Citibank Depot Drive-up; the Rev. Glover A. Leitch, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church; Kenneth M. Brown, president of National Account Systems; Richard L. White, president of Baker Hardware; and Paul Galter, an attorney.

Also named were Thomas E. Fricke, manager of the Lincoln Hilton; Arthur H. Craft, real estate salesman; Larry Boehmer, manager of The Zoo tavern; Terrence G. Doyle; state manager of the Ohio Casualty Insurance Group; and Dale

L. Young, vice president of the First National Bank and Trust.

On other matters the council:

- Annexe two parcels of land at S.W. 27th and South.
- Included additional benefited real estate in water district no. 999 at 70th and LaSalle.
- Denied deleting sidewalk on Lot 23, Block 7, Valley View Add.
- Vacated east 108 feet of east-west alley between A and Garfield from 2nd to 3rd.
- Approved plat of Bel-Mar Fifth Add. located east of 14th St. and south of Superior.
- Waived municipal code for requirement of 10-foot right-of-way at 33rd and Pioneers Blvd.
- Delayed action 30 days for special permit to amend community unit plan of Salt Valley View between Old Cheney Rd. and Hwy. 77.
- Approved special permit allowing Ivan R. Ingwersen to erect wood entrance marker with name Pinehurst to identify new condominium development at intersection of Pioneers Blvd. and Ridgeway Dr.
- Ordered construction of the following: sewer district No. 1020 in Lamont 1st Add.; sewer district No. 1021 in S. Coddington Ave. and West M to future S.W. 18th and West M; water district No. 1005 in Lamont 1st Add.; improvement district No. 130 in West Q between Brookside Dr. and N. Bell in Lamont 1st Add.

- Delayed action 30 days in approving preliminary plat of The Meadows at Hwy. 77 and Old Cheney Rd.
- Ordinances, First Reading
 - Request for change of zone by Northwest Investment Co. from D multiple to E-1 multiple on north side of M and east of 18th St.
 - Request by Glenn W. Chase for change of zone from N two-family to C multiple at 32nd and Starr.
 - Request for change of zone by Dale Bower from AA rural and public use to H-2 highway commercial at Pine Lake Rd. and S. 56th.
 - Request for change of zone by Bruce Forney from B two-family to D multiple at 32nd and Starr.
 - Request for change of zone by Margaret Opp from D multiple dwelling to I commercial at Prescott and 47th.
 - Request for change of zone by Irene Christensen from A-2 single family to C multiple dwelling on west side of Corner Blvd. between Lexington and Francis.
 - Amending municipal code to permit electrical shops or electrical contractors in I and II commercial.
 - Approving plat of Fox Hollow Add. south of Van Don at S. 74th.
 - Vacating M St. from S.W. 20th to Coddington Ave.
 - Vacating Glade St. from east edge of S. 52nd to west edge of S. 54th.

Lightening Hits House Starting Damaging Fire

It was truly a jolt when lightning struck the house of Roger Suhr, 5609 Salt Valley View, early Monday morning and started a fire that did considerable damage.

Fire department officials said the fire began when the house was struck by lightning at a downspout, blowing a hole in the side of the house.

The fire then spread between the inner and outer walls of the house, eventually requiring firefighters to cut a 30-inch wide hole in one wall from floor to ceiling to put out the flames. No one was injured in the fire.

Building Falls, 50 Die

Karachi, Pakistan (AP) — The collapse of a six-story building in a suburban slum has killed at least 50 persons and the final death toll may exceed 100, rescue officials said. More than 50 bodies have been recovered from the tons of rubble. Fifty persons were injured, officials said.

Two Sentenced To Seven Years For Bank Heist

Des Moines (UPI) — Two men were sentenced in U.S. District Court Monday for their role in the June 30 robbery of the Lovilia branch of the State Bank of Bussey.

Robert Ross, 21, Lovilia, and Darrell Burke, 19, Marysville, each were sentenced to seven years in federal prison. They earlier pleaded guilty to federal bank robbery charges in the $2,300 holdup.

A third man — Michael Laxson, 21, Knoxville — was sentenced to seven years in prison Aug. 23 in connection with the holdup.

Nationally Known Speed Reading Course To Be Taught In Lincoln

(Lincoln, Spec.) United States Reading Lab will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people in the Lincoln area.

This recently developed method of instruction is the most innovative and effective program available in the United States.

Not only does this famous course reduce your time in the classroom to just one class per week for 4 short weeks but it also includes an advanced speed reading course on cassette tape so that you can continue to improve for the rest of your life. In just 4 weeks the average student should be reading 4-5 times faster. In a few months some students are reading 20-30 times faster attaining speeds that approach 6000 words per minute. In rare instances speeds of up to 13,000 wpm have been documented.

Our average graduate could read 7-10 times faster upon completion of the course with marked improvement in comprehension and concentration.

For those who would like additional information, a series of free, one hour, orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one half the cost of similar courses. You may attend any of the meetings for information about the Lincoln classes.

These orientations are open to public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible.)

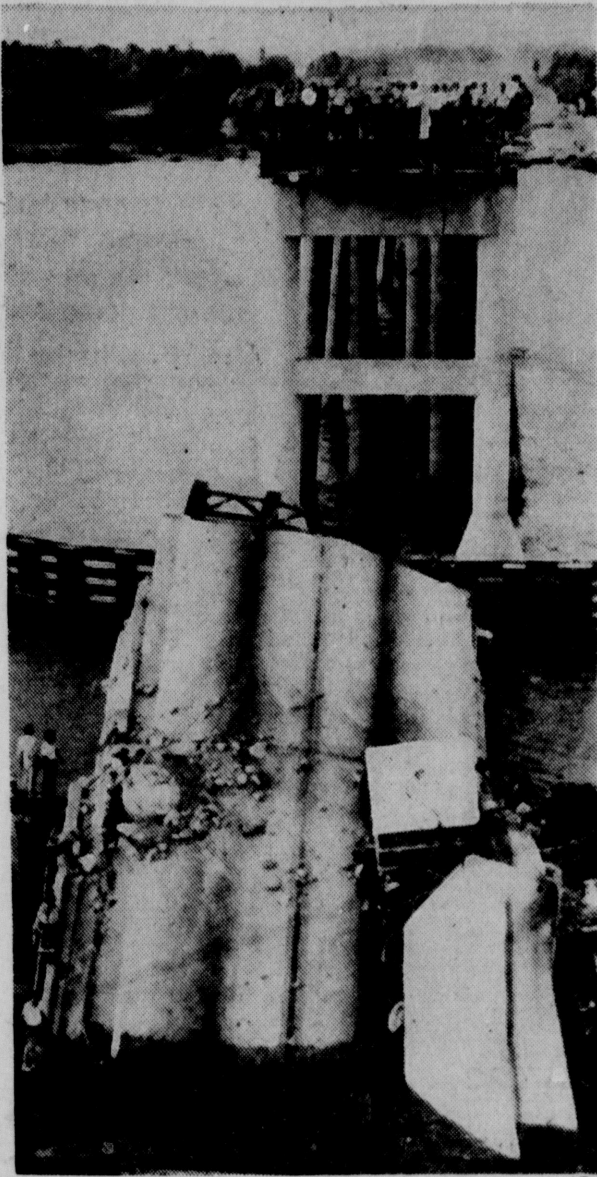

If you have always wanted to be a speed reader but found the cost prohibitive or the course too time consuming . . . now you can! Just by attending 1 evening per week for 4 short weeks you can read 7 to 10 times faster, concentrate better and comprehend more.

If you are a student who would like to make A's instead of B's or C's or if you are a business person who wants to stay abreast of today's everchanging accelerating world then this course is an absolute necessity.

These special one-hour lectures will be held at the following times and places:

Tuesday, September 14 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, September 15 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, September 16 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. Monday, September 20 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, September 21 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, September 22 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m. These free lectures will be held in the conference room of the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel, 13th and M Sts.

If you are a businessman, student, housewife or executive this course, which took 5 years of intensive research to develop, is a must. You can read 7-10 times faster, comprehend more, concentrate better, and remember longer. Students are offered an additional discount. This course can be taught to industry or civic groups at "Group rates" upon request. Be sure to attend whichever free orientation that fits best in your schedule.

Bridge Falls Under Traffic

A busy, high-rise bridge in Manchac, La., collapsed Monday when a barge hit a support, plunging a tractor-trailer truck and a car 56 feet down to the water. Two people who were in the car are presumed dead. Divers have been unable to find the vehicle. Two men in the truck were hospitalized with broken bones.

Park Backers Find Anti-Bypass Ammo

The Citizens To Preserve Wilderness Park believe they have gained more ammunition in their fight against the West Bypass highway project, members of the organization were told Monday evening.

One cause for their optimism was a recent meeting that three of the group's members — frequent spokeswoman Marge Schlitt, her husband Dan and attorney Ed Heilman — had with regional Federal Highway Administration representatives in Kansas City.

While they were unsuccessful in getting the federal officials to reopen the book on alternative sites for the bypass, it was admitted to the Lincoln delegation that the original environmental impact statement did not consider alternative routes.

Only a later State of Nebraska study considered any alternatives to the Wilderness Park site.

"To my mind, it is an insufficient study," said Heilman, adding that while the lawful requirement had been followed, the effort was not too substantial.

The citizens group has been fighting the proposed bypass, claiming it would ruin the day camp area of the park.

The next move for the group, said Heilman, is to send a delegation to Washington to meet with officials from both the Federal Highway Administration and the Department of Transportation, probably not until after the November election, Heilman said.

In the meantime, Mrs. Schlitt urged the group to write letters at the local level, saying it would be just as well if a court action could be avoided.

"If people who use the park, who use the day camp, would write letters — if they (city officials) each get 50 to 100 letters, they may drop the whole thing now," she said.

Omahan Returns From Skyjacking

Omaha AP — On the way to Iceland aboard a hijacked jet, William Knudsen of Omaha heard what he thought would be the last voice ever.

"Be prepared to meet your maker," said a Catholic bishop from Peoria, Ill., as he administered last rites over the public address system to some 50 passengers.

"I rested my head against the seat in front of me and said, 'Oh, God, this is how it's going to end.' I waited for the big bang," Knudsen said.

Knudsen was aboard a TWA Boeing 727 hijacked by five Croatian nationalists Friday on a New York to Chicago flight. He had a tearful reunion with his family at Eppley Airfield here Monday.

One of the hijackers, Mark Vlastic, 29, sat next to Knudsen before the hijacking. Knudsen said he does not know why the hijackers called him to the cockpit during the hijacking, as leaflets were dropped over London.

In Paris, Knudsen was ordered to leave the plane with one of the captors, a woman.

"I was told to get information about if the leaflets had been dropped and to come back and report. When I got off the plane, there must have been 250 French commandos out there."

He was ushered into the terminal, where he pleaded with the French to see the American ambassador. The reply, he said, was simply, "Don't speak English."

Finally, he met with Ambassador Kenneth Rush, who told Knudsen, "I'm sorry, there's nothing we can do. We are under French authority."

"You don't know what frustration was. I wanted to talk to someone for help. But there was nobody I could talk to," Knudsen said.

The hijackers were taken into custody after police let the air out of the 727's tires.

Indiana Man Held In Poodlenaping

Omaha (UPI) — A stolen French poodle, the object of four days of negotiations, was recovered Monday and an Indiana man was booked in connection with the alleged theft of the dog and an extortion attempt upon the dog's Omaha owner.

Chief Douglas County Deputy Sheriff Joseph Thornton said the dog was recovered about 6:30 p.m. at a rooming house occupied by a male friend of the suspect.

The suspect, Paul Collins, 22, of Terre Haute, Ind., was held without bond. Thornton said Collins will be booked on suspicion of burglary, attempted extortion and fleeing to avoid arrest.

Investigation showed Collins had stayed with friends in Omaha about a year and was unemployed, authorities said.

Thornton said the only way they could get a lead on where the dog was being held was to guarantee that the man's name would not be used.

He said the man was a "totally innocent party. He is an acquaintance of the suspect, and I think he got taken."

The dog, owned by Mary Ann White of Omaha, was taken Friday night from Mrs. White's apartment, authorities said, and initially held for $6,000 ransom.

Collins was arrested by Douglas County sheriff's deputies following a foot chase at Omaha's Westroads Shopping Center while allegedly attempting to pick up the ransom.

Thornton said the first contact was made with Mrs. White by telephone when a man told her a friend of hers had cheated him out of $6,000. The man wanted Mrs. White to put up the money in cash in return for her dog.

She told authorities she discovered the dog missing after she returned home from work Friday night. Investigators said entrance to her apartment was gained by using a ladder used for building maintenance.

"I don't feel like talking about it, right now," Mrs. White said Monday night. "It's been heart-breaking."

Authorities said the $6,000 ransom demand was reduced to $3,000 in a call made Monday during which arrangements were made to pick up a package containing the money at a Westroads department store.

Deputies at the scene said a man picked up the package in the store, but deputies declined to say if the package contained the money. The man was chased on two levels of the shopping center and dropped the package before he was caught by a department store detective and three sheriff's deputies.

Budget Approved By Health Board

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

The State Health Board Monday approved a 1977-78 proposed budget of $12,588,976 for the Nebraska Health Department.

An increase of $14 million over the 1976-77 budget of $11,529,296, the largest portion of the increase is in the form of anticipated federal money, said Dr. Henry Smith, health department director.

Approximately $715,000 in federal funds will be used for the department's emergency health services program, Smith explained.

The department also will ask the legislature for a $2,501,888 appropriation from the state's general fund. State money provided for the current year was $2,201,063, Smith said.

He added that the 1977-78 budget includes a 5 1/2 percent pay increase for the department's 300-plus employees.

Giving a report on the health department's Bureau of Vital Statistics Director Freda Theis said the division has accumulated over 4 million records since it began keeping birth records in 1904.

"We have records three times the population of the state," she said.

Miss Theis added that one of the recurring problems at the bureau is the determination of a child's legal surname at the time of birth.

Formerly when a child was born in wedlock, he was given the name of the father," she explained. Now the bureau is receiving requests from parents who want their child to be given the mother's maiden name or a hyphenated surname of both the father and mother's last names.

Also in the past years with out-of-wedlock births, a child was given the mother's name, she said. Now so many people are not getting married, but they want the child to have the surname of the father.

At the meeting, Smith indicated the board would seek legislation to clarify how to determine a child's legal last name.

Also because of increasing incidents of attempted fraudulent use of the bureau's records, Smith said the board should consider possible penalties for "the abuse of getting and using this information by fraudulent means."

In one such case, Miss Theis said a young girl wanted a copy of her birth certificate, but she asked for the certificate of a girl who had been dead for 15 years.

A man, who attempted to get the birth certificate of a stillborn child, said he got the idea from CBS' 60 Minutes, Miss Theis said.

Last season, the television program staff investigated the ease with which a person can establish a new identity by using someone else's name and records.

Also at the meeting, board Chairman Ken Witte announced the resignation of board member Mrs. Maxine Morrison. Mrs. Morrison, who is the wife of former Nebraska Gov. Frank Morrison, said she and her husband will be moving from Omaha to Whitefish, Mont.

Twice appointed to the State Board of Health, Mrs. Morrison's term was to expire in September 1977.

Landowners Win Suit In Army Dam Flooding

Washington (AP) — Federal judges have ruled in favor of Niobrara and Verdell landowners who sued the Army Corps of Engineers for flooding more than 2,800 acres of their land.

The original lawsuit, filed in 1971, was joined in later years by other plaintiffs. Eventually, 19 landowners claimed $2 million in damages from sustained high releases of water from Fort Randall Dam in South Dakota during 1969 through 1975.

A three-judge panel in the U.S. Court of Claims ruled the corps violated the 5th Amendment and took private property for public use without compensating the owners.

They ordered damages to be determined and paid at a later trial.

Inundated were 2,775 acres of bottom land along the Missouri River and 48 acres along the Niobrara River.

Representing the land owners were Omaha Attys. Richard Spellman and William Campbell. Spellman called the ruling a "very favorable determination."

More Money Sought For Library Unit

The state will be providing approximately $270,000 more to the Nebraska Library Commission if the commission's 1977-78 proposed budget is approved by the Legislature.

Monday the Library Commission okaved the proposed $1,792,464 budget which includes $1,271,041 in state funds and $521,423 in federal funds.

The commission's budget for the 1976-77 fiscal year totaled $1,523,423 of which $1,002,000 was supplied by the state's general fund.

According to Rod Wagner, commission deputy director, this year's funding increase includes $50,000 for additional office space to house the Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, $45,000 for the microfilming of state publications, $25,000 in state and funds for public libraries and $40,000 for additional regional library services.

Wagner added that the proposed budget increase also will provide a 5 percent salary increase to the commission's employees and necessary staffing, materials and equipment for the Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped.

PASTORS . . . Glen, Lora Gross-Thaemert.

Woman Ordained Lutheran Pastor

Omaha (AP) — The first woman was ordained Sunday in the ministry of the Nebraska Synod of the Lutheran Church in America.

Her husband, the Rev. Glen Gross-Thaemert, said people expect a lot from a woman "pioneer" regardless of her profession and he does not think things will be different for his wife.

Being the first Lutheran woman minister in Nebraska may be difficult, but it certainly is filled with possibilities," he said of the ordination of his wife.

She was installed as assistant pastor of Augustana Lutheran Church and assistant director of the Lutheran Metropolitan Ministries. He was installed as assistant pastor of Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Omaha.

The couple met in Indiana and when they were married, they decided to keep their last names (Gross-Thaemert) "to symbolically show how two people are united with two identities. Neither of us lost our name, but we both took on yet a new identity," he said.

Because the Missouri Synod does not permit the ordination of women, the Gross-Thaemerts joined the Lutheran Church in America. He is a graduate of the Missouri Synod's Concordia Seminary in St. Louis.

We have found that a woman pastor can relate to both women and men in unique ways not generally possible for men pastors," the Rev. Mr. Gross-Thaemert said.

Both plan to counsel young couples, and divorced and single persons. They have performed liturgies together, which is "visually uplifting couples into the congregation."

The Rev. Dr. Reuben Swanson, president of the Lutheran Church in America's Nebraska Synod, said the ordination is a "significant occasion in the life of our synod."

We welcome Lora as a colleague because of the added dimensions she will bring to the ministry of our church," he said.

Corn Harvest Is Two Weeks Early

Nebraska's corn harvest is underway in various parts of the state, at least a couple of weeks early, according to the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

In its weekly crop-weather report, the service said over 45% of all corn in the state is now mature compared to 35% at this time last year and a normal rate of 30%.

Irrigated corn declined slightly last week, but continues in mostly good condition across the state, the service stated.

Dryland corn remained the same as last week, in mostly poor condition statewide.

The recent rains received over the state improved surface moisture condition, but were "too late to improve crop conditions in most instances," according to the service.

However, the rains did improve conditions for seeding winter wheat beds, it was pointed out. Seeding in the Panhandle is well underway, while it has been a bit slower in the remainder of the state due to drier conditions.

Topsoil moisture supplies improved from last week with the recent moisture short in 87% of the counties reporting and adequate in 13%. Subsoil moisture supplies remained about the same as last week at 95% short and 5% adequate.

A year ago, topsoil moisture was short in 73% and subsoil short in 88%.

Sorghum and soybeans declined slightly last week, but still remain in mostly fair condition statewide.

Sorghum continues to mature ahead of normal with over 40% of the crop ripe compared to 20% for normal and 30% a year ago at this time. About 5% of the sorghum has been harvested, which is ahead of normal and last year.

Over 60% of the soybean leaves have turned to date, the same as normal but slightly behind a year ago.

Alfalfa and wild hay remain in mostly poor to fair condition. The third cutting of alfalfa is now practically completed

MIA Families Oppose Viets' U.N. Bid

Omaha (UPI) — The National League of Families of American Prisoners Missing in Southeast Asia said Monday it was "adamantly opposed" to admitting Vietnam into the United Nations.

In a statement, Mrs. Kay Bosiljevack, Omaha, the league's regional coordinator for the 13 Midwestern states, said the previous release of the names of 12 Americans who the Vietnamese claim died in the Vietnam War was "callous, cruel and inhumane."

It is a shabby and transparent effort to soften U.S. attitudes toward normalization of relations with their country," Mrs. Bosiljevack said. "This ploy to obtain diplomatic advantage can only be used to point out the real necessity for direct negotiations to actually find out what happened to these and over 1,300 other Americans still being held or missing in Indochina."

Mrs. Bosiljevack's husband, Michael, an Air Force captain, was shot down over North Vietnam in Sept. 1972.

Hanoi has once again proven to the world their total disregard for basic humanitarian principles while claiming they understand the feelings of the families on this matter," Mrs. Bosiljevack said. "Let them prove it by providing information and remains on all missing Americans, already withheld for years."

Budget Approved By Health Board

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

The State Health Board Monday approved a 1977-78 proposed budget of $12,588,976 for the Nebraska Health Department.

An increase of $1.4 million over the 1976-77 budget of $11,152,296, the largest portion of the increase "is in the form of anticipated federal money," said Dr. Henry Smith, health department director.

Approximately $715,000 in federal funds will be used for the department's emergency health services program, Smith explained.

The department also will ask the legislature for a $2,501,888 appropriation from the state's general fund. State money provided for the current year was $2,201,063, Smith said.

He added that the 1977-78 budget includes a 5% pay increase for the department's 300-plus employees.

Giving a report on the health department's Bureau of Vital Statistics, Director Freda Theis said the division has accumulated over 4 million records since it began keeping birth records in 1904.

"We have records three times the population of the state," she said.

Miss Theis added that one of the recurring problems at the bureau is the determination of a child's legal surname at the time of birth.

"Formerly, when a child was born in wedlock, he was given the name of the father," she explained. Now the bureau is receiving requests from parents who want their child to be given the mother's maiden name or a hyphenated surname of both the father and mother's last names. Also, in the past years with out-of-wedlock births, a child was given the mother's name, she said. "Now so many people are not getting married, but they want the child to have the surname of the father."

At the meeting, Smith indicated the board would seek legislation to clarify how to determine a child's legal last name.

Also, because of increasing incidents of attempted fraudulent use of the bureau's records, Smith said the board should consider possible penalties for "the abuse of getting and using this information by fraudulent means."

Crash With Train Kills Kearney Man

Kearney (AP) — A Kearney man was killed Monday when his empty gravel-grain truck slammed into a Union Pacific freight train at a crossing on Hwy. 10 about two miles north of here.

The victim was identified as William A. Shipley, 23, a former resident of Orleans.

Authorities said the crossing has flashing signals but no drop arms, and a witness said the signals were operating before the crash.

Mrs. Jim Richter of rural Kearney said she was approaching the crossing from the opposite direction when she saw the train and stopped.

Mrs. Richter said she flashed her headlights at Shipley to warn him the train was approaching.

After the accident, she alerted officials by using her citizens' band radio.

Investigators said Shipley's truck left 156 feet of skid marks prior to colliding with the train.

The train was made up of a switching engine, a caboose and eight hopper cars, and was on its tri-weekly run from Kearney to Stapleton when the accident occurred.

Shipley hit the train between the engine and the caboose, which was directly behind.

The impact sent the caboose up into the air and over on its side. The cab of the truck went under the caboose and wound up on the south side of the tracks.

In addition to the caboose, two other cars were derailed, blocking traffic for about 90 minutes. The engine derailed momentarily, but returned to the tracks under its own power.

The train's engineer, Arne O. Elsas, 59, of Brady, was not hurt but the conductor, Donald Pearce, 35, of Grand Island, sustained minor injuries.

Pearce, who was riding in the caboose, was taken to a local hospital for observation. Troopers said he was suffering from possible chest, side and back injuries.

It was the second fatality at the crossing on the spur line. Two years ago, a farmer was killed when his truck collided with a train.

Shipley's death raised the state's 1976 traffic toll to 271 compared with 251 on this date last year.

Zorinsky Fined $10 In Traffic Case

Omaha (AP) — Mayor Edward Zorinsky was fined $10 Monday in Municipal Court for following too closely. The charge stemmed from an Aug. 5 traffic accident in which Zorinsky crashed into the rear of another car while en route to a political speaking engagement. Zorinsky pleaded guilty to the charge and Judge Walter Cropper levied the fine after noting the mayor had no previous traffic record. The mayor paid a total of $18, which included $8 court costs.

Tribune Changes Front Page Policy

Hastings (AP) — The Hastings Daily Tribune broke Monday with a long-standing policy regarding front page news. Publisher Don Seaton said the Tribune's front page would no longer be devoted to new of national and international scope only. Seaton said local, area and state news stories will also now appear on the front page instead of being confined to the inside pages.

Omaha (UPI) — The driver of a City School Bus Service bus escaped injury Monday when he lost control of the vehicle and it turned over on its side into a southwest Omaha ditch.

Police said the driver, Kevin E. Lucas, 25, Omaha, was alone in the bus at the time of the accident. He was not ticketed, and a police spokesman said, "we're treating this as a routine property damage accident."

"We're just glad there were no children on the bus at the time," the spokesman said.

It was the first significant mishap involving a City School Bus Service vehicle since the first day of school last Tuesday.

Autopsy Slated For Man Who Died In Cell

Kimball (AP) — Robert D. Sexton, 24, Kimball, died Sunday in the Kimball County Jail. County Corner Jack Myers has ordered an autopsy.

Myers would not speculate on the cause of death until he gets the autopsy report.

Officials said Sexton was jailed at 2 a.m. Sunday after being arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated and possession of narcotics.

A fellow prisoner reported that Sexton became ill around 11 a.m. and authorities discovered he was dead.

Bomb Cases Probed In Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Police continued Monday their probe into two weekend incidents involving bombs.

An Omaha man, Melvin Gribbs, suffered a minor injury Saturday night when a bomb exploded in the parking lot of a North Omaha bar.

The blast did some structural damage to the outside of the bar and to a truck parked in the lot, police said.

Shortly before the explosion, police said they received an anonymous call from a man who reported a disturbance at the bar.

When officers arrived, the bomb had already gone off.

Police said they do not know who placed the bomb in the lot or what type of device was used.

Bar owner Bob Rodgers and his cocktail waitress said they did not call police.

Rodgers said a man called the bar shortly after the explosion, and laughed, then hung up.

Meanwhile, a 15-year-old boy was being questioned by police in connection with a small homemade bomb found late Sunday near the George Norris Junior High School.

Officials said the device looked like a large firecracker. It was made from a cardboard cylinder, which contained explosive power.

A detective discovered the bomb after getting a tip that the device had been planted by a 15-year-old boy.

Authorities said Monday that a decision had not been made on whether the suspect will be prosecuted.

4-H Beef Carcass Contest Dominated By Crossbreds

Crossbreds dominated the 4-H beef carcass contest held in conjunction with the Nebraska State Fair.

Crossbred steers and heifers captured 18 of the top 20 placings, a string interrupted only by two Herefords which placed 18th and 19th.

Champion honors went to Paula Nielsen of Eustis, whose 1,249-pound crossbred steer won a red ribbon in the live show. The carcass weighed 841 pounds and had a cutability of 54.60, giving it a yield grade of 1.084.

Quality grade of the champion carcass was low choice, loin eye area 19.1 square inches, fat thickness .40 inch and internal fat 2.5%.

The reserve champion carcass, also a crossbred, was shown by Tamara Forster of Smithfield.

Her 1,285-pound steer received a blue ribbon in the live show and had a carcass weight of 813 pounds for a cutability rating of 54.60.

The champion carcass was awarded $1,000 from a pool of donors, and the reserve champion received $500.

In the 4-H swine carcass contest, crossbred gilts captured the top four placings and half of the top 20. Last year only six crossbreds finished in the top 20.

Sharri Stedman of Palmyra won top honors with a crossbred gilt which won a blue ribbon in the live show and weighed 227 pounds. It produced a 167-pound carcass with 67.1% lean, backfat of .7 inch and a carcass length of 30.9 inches.

Miss Stedman received $175 for her first place entry.

The reserve champion carcass was another blue ribbon winning crossbred gilt, a 202-pounder shown by Bruce McDowell of Trumbull.

In the 4-H sheep carcass contest, two Suffolk market lambs won champion and reserve champion honors.

Becky Edgren of Holdrege captured first place with her 110-pound lamb, which received a red ribbon in the live show. The lamb yielded a 57-pound carcass with 1 inch backfat and a cutability rating of 46.76.

Reserve champion was a 106-pound Suffolk lamb shown by Tim Klopfenstein of Greenwood.

Farmfest Festivities Fizzle Out

A member of the Nicollet County Sheriff's Posse sought shelter at the Farmfest '76 site at Lake Crystal, Minn., as it was hit with almost an inch of rain. Farmfest officials were forced to cancel all events except an afternoon address by U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

State Ed Board Criticized

State Board of Education candidate Dee Everitt of Lincoln said Tuesday that the board cannot turn back the clock and force severely handicapped youngsters to leave their home communities for educational purposes.

Mrs. Everitt was commenting on the board's motion last Friday to ask the Legislature to reconsider "depopulation" of the State Development Center at Beatrice. She said the action indicates the board "grossly misunderstands the state and federal legal requirements for educating the severely retarded."

Local schools are "being successful in establishing high quality education programs at the local level," she added.

State Drug Unit Seeks Increase

The Nebraska Drug Commission is asking for a $7,000 increase in its state general fund budget for next year, according to budget documents on file Monday.

The commission this year received $203,118 from the general fund and is asking for $210,000 for next year. The increase was for operating expenses.

The agency also said it anticipated receiving the same amount in federal money as it did this year, $231,578.

Poison Necklaces Sold At Fair

Omaha (AP) — A jewelry vendor at the Nebraska State Fair in Lincoln was selling necklaces made of toxic beans, according to poison experts.

Mary Jane Heyne, who formerly headed the Poison Control Center at Omaha's Childrens Memorial Hospital, said she noticed the necklaces at the fair Friday. She said the orange beans, black on the top, have enough toxicity to kill a man.

Mrs. Heyne contacted John Furrer, agronomist and extension specialist in weed control at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. He said he went to the fair Saturday and agreed that the beans are poisonous.

"The beans were contained in a necklace made mostly of apple seeds, but for color the orange and black beans also were used," Furrer said.

"They (the beans) are called rosary peas or jequirity beans," he said. "I have been exposed to them before. The Food and Drug Administration is always on guard for them coming into the country."

Furrer said he contacted the fair office and officials there said the vendor was stopped from selling the 99-cent necklaces Sunday, the final day of the fair.

It's not known how many of the necklaces were sold.

"People should be warned of the highly poisonous quality of the jewelry and by all means, they should be kept out of the reach of children," Furrer said.

Kansan Questioned In Boys' Deaths

Lincoln police are questioning a Kansas native to determine if he was involved in the deaths of two Lincoln boys last year.

Assistant Police Chief Roger LaPage said Monday officers are holding a 54-year-old man for further questioning Tuesday for his possible involvement in the deaths of Jacob Surber and Jon Simpson. Both boys were found murdered after they disappeared from an outing to the State Fair a year ago.

The man, whom LaPage described as a transient, occasionally works at fairs across the country. The man was in Lincoln last year during the Nebraska State Fair, authorities said.

The man was contacted in Topeka, Kan., after Lincoln police received some information that the transient was seen in Lincoln a year ago. LaPage said the man agreed to come to Lincoln for questioning.

The man also resembles a composite drawing of a hobo seen around the fairgrounds last year who may have been known as David Dye, police said.

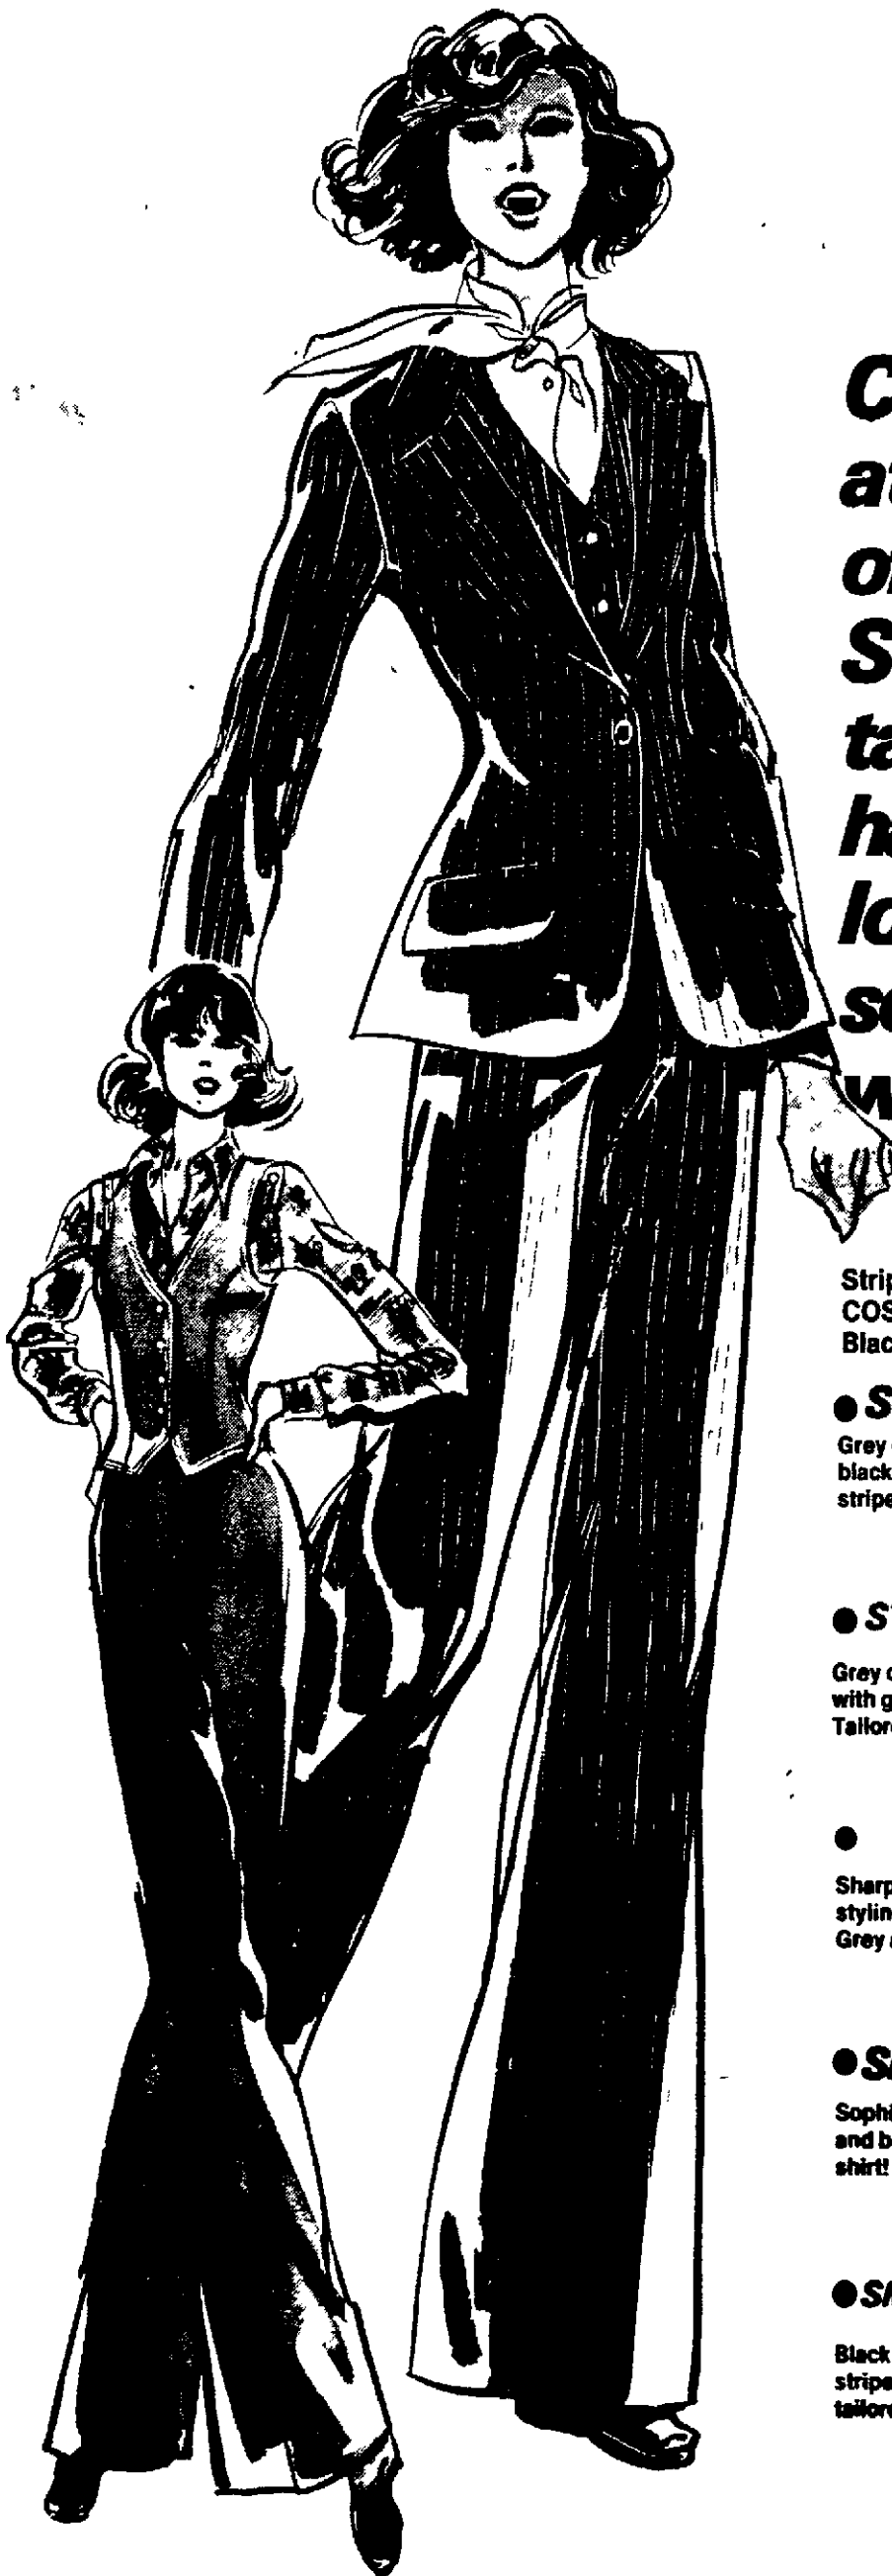

Authorities have been looking for the man who may have used that name for almost a year.

LaPage said police received information about the Kansas man as a result of an exhibit on the Surber-Simpson case police had at the fairgrounds last week.

Lack Of Enzymes Causes Diseases

New York (UPI) — Absence of certain enzymes in the body can cause allergies, nervous symptoms, insomnia, alcoholism, migraine symptoms and hyperactivity, according to Dr. Lendon H. Smith in his new book "Improving Your Child's Behavior Chemistry."

Enzymes, the tiny protein molecules which speed up chemical reactions, are found in all living organisms. In the human body, there are over 1,500 different enzymes which are essential to virtually all bodily processes. Some physicians now believe that certain enzymes may also affect human behavior.

Kearney Man's Death Probed

Kearney (AP) — Authorities here are investigating the death of a Kearney man found dead on the floor of his home Sunday morning.

The man was identified as Steve Andersen, 28, and a coroner's report tentatively listed the death as accidental.

However, the cause of death was not immediately revealed, officials saying they want to see the results of laboratory tests and a final autopsy report before making a judgment.

Banco! Robbers Steal $600,000

Deauville, France (UPI) — Four masked gunmen broke into the Deauville casino at closing time early Monday and took $600,000 from customers, croupiers and an open safe. They left one clue: the sound of their leader's voice.

Receptionist Maurice le Marchand, whose job it is to recognize regular customers at the seaside casino, told police, "I think I've heard that voice before."

The bandit chief said at one point when the cashier was slow in stepping aside from the unlocked safe, "maybe I'll have to shoot somebody, the way we did in Algeria."

This reinforced reports that he was a "pied noir" or "black foot," the nickname for former French residents of Algeria. Le Marchand said, however, "it was a musical Mediterranean voice, not really pied noir."

The heist was carefully planned. Police said it was evident the bandits had thoroughly cased the casino and knew its layout.

A few minutes after the 3 a.m. closing time, the four, dressed in blue jeans and boots with nylon stockings pulled tight over their faces, broke a window and entered the main gaming room holding pistols.

Seven customers were finishing dinner and cleaning women were tidying the roulette tables. Because the cashier and croupiers were still counting the day's receipts, the safe, containing an entire weekend take, was still open.

The gunmen bound and gagged some of their victims but not everyone — they hadn't brought enough cord and adhesive tape — and stole their valuables.

Cashier Jean Pierre Hervieu said the gunmen hit him over the head with a pistol, leaving him with a slight bump, when he didn't move fast enough.

Then they helped themselves to all the money in the safe.

Jacques Gilbert, manager of the seaside casino, said the robbers took receipts for the entire weekend, easily totaling $600,000.

Market Yields To Selling

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market yielded to some late selling Monday, displaying some uneasiness over the prospect of a possible strike at Ford Motor Co.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up 3 points after the first hour, was down 5.07 at 983.29 by the close of the New York Stock Exchange.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about an 8-7 margin among NYSE-listed issues after trailing by as much as 3 to 2 in the early going.

Big Board volume came to 16.10 million shares, down from 16.93 million Friday.

Brokers said the early gains reflected a carryover of buying from late Friday, when the Dow advanced 1.49 points.

But support for the upswing dwindled as the hours ticked by toward a United Auto Workers strike deadline of midnight Tuesday in the union's contract negotiations with Ford Motor.

The most recent reports from the contract talks said chances did not appear good for a settlement before the deadline.

Robert Stovall at Reynolds

Securities said there had been expectations earlier that a strike could be averted. However, he said, analysts now were leaning toward the belief that his year's lengthy rubber strike and the healthy pay increases ultimately won by workers in that industry might have increased auto workers' willingness to walk out.

Stovall pointed out that a lengthy auto strike could pose large problems for the economic recovery because of the pervasive importance of the auto business in the makeup of American business.

—Staying Ahead—

New Air Charter Plan May End Cheaper Flights

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — The Civil Aeronautics Board just announced a cheap new charter plan for air travelers. There's just one drawback: It will probably eliminate another form of charter that could cost even less. Here's the story:

The new plan is called the Advanced Booking Charter (ABC), good for trips within the U.S. and abroad. You don't have to belong to a club to use it, nor are hotel rooms included as part of the price. It's for air transportation only, and is open to anyone.

The only limitations are that you must sign up 45 days in advance for flights to Europe, and 30 days in advance for other destinations. In Europe you have to stay at least a week, but elsewhere there are no minimums. Charters might be sold for weekends in Disneyland or Puerto Rico.

For travelers who don't like packaged tours, the ABC plan is a great improvement over the One-Stop Tour Charter (OTC)—which includes hotel accommodations. OTCs will still be available for those who want them. But ABCs let you take advantage of a low charter fare while making whatever hotel arrangements you like.

So far, so good. But there's yet another charter plan available, called the Travel Group Charter. It, too, is for air fare only. You have to book 60 days in advance, but in return for planning that far ahead you get the lowest fare going. There is, however, an element of price risk that makes this plan unpopular with some travelers. If the tour operator doesn't fill up the plane, you have to pay extra for your ticket (up to a ceiling of 20%).

Both the CAB and the airlines think that the new ABC fare, with its shorter sign-up time and guaranteed price, will appeal to tour operators as being easier to sell. Consequently, it could make Travel Group Charters obsolete.

But look at the comparative prices: A one-week OTC, with hotels, New York to London, cost $399 this past summer. Pan American estimates the new ABC fare at around $350. But with a Travel Group Charter, you could fly for only $299. If the plane were so empty you had to pay the full 20% extra, the TGC fare would also run around $350. But at least you have a shot at flying for less.

ABCs are priced a little higher because the tour operator will normally shoulder the risk of flying with unsold seats, whereas with a Travel Group Charter, the risk is borne by the passengers.

On the other hand, the ABC plan has this advantage: If you have to cancel out, the tour operator can find a substitute (as long as substitutes don't exceed a specified number). That lets you get your money back rather than forfeit all or part of the fare. It also means that there will be places on some ABC charters for last-minute applicants.

ABCs will also appeal to passengers who used the airlines' APEX fare. APEX tickets must be bought two months in advance, and you have to stay for 22 to 45 days. The fare from New York to London is $410 — $60 more than the estimated ABC price.

But with an APEX ticket you can at least be sure of getting to your destination on the day you planned. Charter flights are sometimes elusive. If not enough people sign up, they may be canceled. Or they may be combined with another charter, taking off from a different city and on a different day than you'd planned.

ABC fares go into effect on Oct. 7. Given the advanced booking period and the time it takes to organize flights, it will probably be year-end before such flights are actually in the air. You buy charter seats from travel agents and tour operators, not from airlines, and they go only to the most popular destinations.

There's one more charter plan threatened by ABCs — the one for affinity groups (members of a specific organization). They, too, can be cheaper than ABCs, and may fly to a wider variety of destinations. But the CAB doesn't like the paperwork they require, and if the new ABC plan does well, affinities may be scratched.

Whenever the CAB tried to do this in the past, it was stopped by an avalanche of angry mail. So keep on writing — affinities may be one form of cheap, flexible charter you can keep.

Cattle Prices Hold Steady

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Despite large runs, cattle prices held steady, and hogs turned in a small gain on the Omaha livestock market Monday.

The day's hog run was estimated at about 6,000 head, and the trade on barrows and gilts was called fairly active.

The butcher trade was firm to largely 25-cents higher, with top-grading handweights bulking

from $41.75-$42.00 and 147 head pulling an outside top of $42.25.

There were an estimated 7,

500 cattle and calves on offer.

Slaughter steers and heifers trended steady in fairly active trade, while cows were called firm to 50-cents higher, again in fairly active trade.

There were about 1,200 sheep on offer. But the trade was not well established by late morning.

Healthy Child's Flu Shot Dosage Still Undetermined

Omaha (UPI) — The first recommendations on what swine flu shots "high risk" children should receive will be released Thursday, but a decision still hasn't been reached on the dosage requirement for the average healthy child.

The recommendations have been ironed out between the American Academy of Pediatrics, in Evanston, Ill., and the National Center for Disease Control, in Atlanta, Ga., officials of both agencies said Monday.

Although the dosage requirement has been determined for the adult, initial tests on children showed the serums tested either produced a negative reaction of were ineffective towards swine flu prevention.

"The vaccination of children has posed a very unique and complicated problem," said Dr. John J. Witte, the National Center for Disease Control's immunization director.

Witte said results of a second round of tests on children at various facilities throughout the United States, including one at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha, should be available within the next several weeks.

Witte said, however, recommendations on dosages for "high risk children" or those with heart of kidney conditions or diabetes were scheduled to be announced this week.

In Evanston, a spokesman for the Pediatrics' Academy said "there will be specific recommendations for specific groups of children" from 3 to 18 years of age.

"We are still in the process of nailing down the kind of wording we want to use in the recommendations," the spokesman said. "We'll have it down in black and white on Thursday."

Tentative contracts were signed by the government and three drug companies in Washington Monday for the purchase of the swine flu vaccine to begin immunization of adults in hopes of vaccinating all of them by Christmas.

However, in the case of children, Witte said it could be as long as November before the immunizations are started.

The most practical theory advanced to date is to give children two shots instead of the one received by an adult. Witte said the two-shot approach might be expanded to include those from 18 to 25 years of age.

If the two-shot theory is accepted, Witte acknowledged the vaccination of children

"would have to be very quickly and efficiently carried out to make it before the flu season" which could start as early as the Christmas holiday period or come as late as February.

Bill Pack, Nebraska immunization coordinator who accompanied Witte to a Creighton University news conference, said he hoped 45% of the vaccine allocated to Nebraska would be in the state by the end of next month.

Pack said receiving points for the vaccine have been established in Scottsbluff, North Platte, Omaha and through his office in Lincoln.

The first to be vaccinated, Witte said, will be "high risk" adults, including the elderly who will receive serum for protection against both the swine flu and the A-Victoria flu.

Witte said experts have yet to isolate the swine flu strain to determine if it has the lethal potential of previous flu epidemics, but sufficient evidence existed among medical professionals to recommend the $135 million national immunization program.

If such an epidemic occurs, Witte predicted the swine flu immunization program will "save many, many lives."

Cavanaugh Hits Terry's Estate Tax Plan

Omaha (AP) — State Sen. John Cavanaugh said Monday his Republican opponent for the 2nd Congressional District seat is guilty of "wild fiscal irresponsibility" in calling for the elimination of the estate tax.

Democrat Cavanaugh said he supports raising the current exemption of $60,000 to $200,000 in order to preserve family farms and small businesses.

But he said his opponent, former television newscaster Lee Terry, has suggested that the tax be eliminated. Cavanaugh said that suggestion is "an inflated political promise designed to gain the support of the very rich at the expense of the ordinary taxpayer."

Elimination of the estate tax would cost the federal treasury $5 billion a year, Cavanaugh said. He said that sum would have to be made up by middle income taxpayers.

Life Begins At Forty:

Elders Enjoy History Interviews

By JOANNE FARRIS
A READER WRITES: I liked your recent column about doing an oral history interview with elders. I work at a senior center, and you should hear the stories that come to my ears, most of them true. I have gotten the Historical Society in our city to come over and do a few interviews. It's just too bad there aren't more young persons to do the interviewing.

My feeling is that oral history is a very significant life review opportunity for an old person. As such, it has good therapeutic value.

Even more important is the feeling of: "I matter, I'm useful to someone, I'm wanted," which anyone gets who is asked to sit for an interview.

You are right, the elderly have much of value to tell us and show us. Not the least is the sense of joy in recollection. I have seen tears well up as they remember some incident, just as I've seen shoulders straighten with pride at other times.

Those of us who are younger gain from the history record itself; more than that, we can benefit from learning how old people feel about their present and their past and how they look ahead. If we younger ones are lucky enough, we'll be there someday ourselves.

COMMENT: You've said a great deal eloquently.

I had a class of college history students (all women) to whom I gave an assignment to interview an old woman and write it up as a term paper. The moment I saw the outcome, I realized that the whole course would have been better and richer if the interviews had been during the first month of the term instead of the last.

I was fascinated at what "old" signified to this group of teenagers; their interview subjects ranged in age from 42 to 104. The best interviews were with grandmothers and great grandmothers. The girls were able to compare their own and their mothers' lives with those of the old people, and some very exciting learning resulted.

Seven Arrested, Pot Seized In Saunders Raid

Four men and two women were arrested early Monday morning after a drug raid in Saunders County that confiscated 940 pounds of marijuana with an assessed street value of $376,000.

Charged Monday afternoon in Saunders County Court with possession with intent to manufacture and sell marijuana were Tom Syverson, 22, Wahoo; Harriet Syverson, 17, Wahoo; Jeffrey Notias, 26, New Jersey; Donn Marshall Davis, 22, Ceresco; Denise Winter, 26, Ceresco; and Eric Boyce, 19, New York.

The marijuana had been harvested in Saunders County, according to Saunders County Atty. Kirk Brom.

Pot Factory In Iowa Raided; Ten Arrested

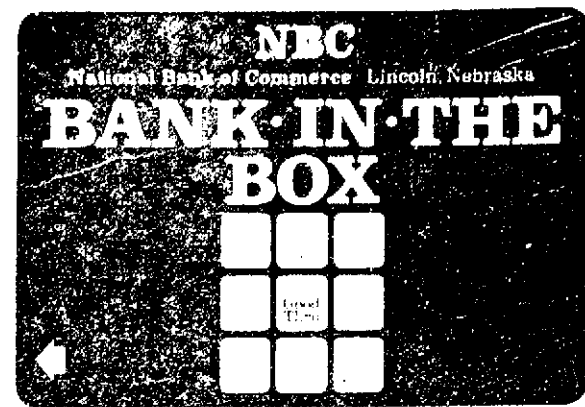

By The Associated Press
Seven men and three women were arrested on suspicion of dealing in drugs in a coordinated effort between Omaha police and Iowa authorities over the weekend.

Five men and three women were arrested in rural Mills County, Iowa during a raid on a suspected "marijuana factory" Sunday and face charges in Glenwood.

Two men were arrested at an Omaha residence late Saturday night. Police reports showed they found about 100 pounds of suspected marijuana in brick form. All were charged with possession of a controlled substance.

The men were held in the Mills County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond each and the women were released on their own recognizance.

Papeete — Below the equator, it's getting on toward spring. Warm blue sky days. A trade wind blowing through the coconut trees.

Occasionally, a coconut falls — thump! There's a saying in these French islands that no building may be taller than a coconut tree.

"Though that's not true. It's a story made up by you journalists."

Still no building tops the line of waving green coconut palms. There's one hotel of five stories and, from the top floor, you have to look up to see the coconuts.

A coconut, ripe and filled with coconut water, must weigh two solid pounds. When it drops that far — well, it's got to murder you. That's what I think.

I've asked about that a lot of times. Nobody — absolutely nobody has ever heard of a person being hit by a falling coconut.

"It's like shark attacks," said Muk, one of the owners of the Bah Hau hotel. "There's never been a shark attack in all these islands."

$104 Billion Defense Bill Sent To Ford

Washington (AP) — Congress on Monday sent President Ford a $104.3 billion defense appropriations bill that prevents him from ordering an immediate go-ahead or full-scale production of the B1 bomber.

There was no immediate indication from the White House whether the President would sign or veto the measure.

The bill that finally passed the House and Senate contained a compromise between supporters and opponents of the B1.

It contains funds for the supersonic bomber, but restricts spending between now and February to a limit of $87 million a month.

Opponents of the plane have fought to delay a final decision until the next administration takes over in January.

Ford supports going ahead with the plane, but his them the fallen nut goes — thump!

"Some months ago, Pacific Islands Monthly asked their readers if anyone had ever known of a person being hit by a falling coconut. Only one reader had heard of a man being hit. She said she heard it killed him."

The PIM goes all through the hundreds of South Sea islands. It reaches lonely atolls where lonely traders have nothing to do but write letters to the editor.

Mention anything — an obscure old-time shipwreck — and dozens of people write in.

"But on falling coconuts, they got only one letter."

A Samoan told me: "The people say the coconut has eyes." (You can see the three indented "eyes" at the top of the nut.) "The people say before the coconut drops, it looks. If a good person is underneath, it waits until he moves away."

"If it is a bad person — Well, I don't know."

(C) Chronicle Publishing Co. 1976

Democratic opponent Jimmy Carter had indicated he probably would scrap it.

The Air Force had planned to award contracts this fall for production of the first of 244 B1 bombers — at a total cost of an estimated $21.4 million.

The overall defense bill is 3.4% below what Ford requested, but 5.3% higher than last year's defense appropriation.

IU A Hungry Team

George Darlington, who coaches Nebraska's defensive ends, gave Extra Point Clubbers a report on his impressions of Indiana after a study of movies of the Hoosiers' 32-13 loss last Saturday to Minnesota.

Because of the loss of their top two tailbacks, however, Darlington said "your guess is as good as mine on what they'll do offensively" when the Cornhuskers go to Bloomington, Ind., for a Saturday afternoon date with the Hoosiers.

"Last year, they ran a lot more formations than they did against Minnesota," Darlington said. "They went into the game with the idea in their own mind they were as good as Minnesota. They ran from a very basic I pro formation."

Indiana coach Lee Corso, described by Darlington as a "real psyche artist who's liable to do anything," said from Bloomington his whole game plan against Minnesota "went out the window" when Courtney Snyder broke an ankle midway through the first period.

"Snyder had been the difference between these two teams the last two years," Corso said. "When he went out, it kind of dulled us." Corso's only victories against Big Ten teams in three seasons have been over Minnesota. His league record now is 2-22-1 while overall at IU his mark is 5-28-1.

Darlington expects Corso will deviate greatly from the pattern against Minnesota. "They'll probably use some unbalanced line which they did last year, go in motion some, and try to pick up a couple of things that hurt us down at LSU," he said. "They're a hungry team, obviously. They've been down a few years. I expect their offense will present us some problems."

Tall QB Is Bob Kramer

Indiana starts a 6-6 quarterback, Bob Kramer, described by Darlington as a classic dropback passer, and the Hoosiers have a couple of fine receivers in Keith Calvin and Don Burrell.

Darlington said Rik Enis, a 6-0, 196 junior, is "a real hard-nosed fullback" who also is a good blocker.

"We have to stop a fine quarterback who can throw, and stop Enis," he added. "And we can't let an inexperienced I-back have a good day against us." After Snyder broke his ankle and his replacement Darriek Burnett suffered a knee injury, the IU tailback became sophomore Tony Suggs.

Darlington said NU's defensive ends didn't play the way he had expected at LSU, especially in containment of the passer, but he thought Tony Samuels, starting his first game, and Ray Phillips played well in the other areas. Sophomore George Andrews, who is recovering from a broken hand, didn't play against the Tigers but is expected to see action against Indiana.

Nebraska returned to the AstroTurf of Memorial Stadium Monday afternoon after doing all their preseason work on grass (except for one scrimmage). The LSU stadium was natural grass and neatly manicured.

A pair of I-backs who missed the opener returned for the two-hour workout. They were Dave Gillespie and Curtis Craig. Coach Tom Osborne said starting I-back Monte Anthony suffered a knee strain and has some swelling in it.

"Craig has been out over a week and it's very doubtful what he's going to be able to do," Osborne said. "Gillespie has had only one scrimmage play this fall." So, the injury to Anthony intensifies an already serious problem for the Huskers.

Sorley To Make Trip

Osborne said quarterback Tom Sorley, who broke an arm last spring, hasn't scrimmaged yet and wasn't able to throw the ball hard until about a week ago. Ed Burns took Sorley's spot on the travel squad to LSU, but Osborne said Sorley would go to Indiana. He said the two are pretty even.

Suggestion: The microphone on the Elks Club for the Extra Point Club luncheons has been on the blink for three years and the screen for the NU movies has been too dark for a good picture. Somebody ought to donate a new mike and a couple of white sheets that could be sewn together to make a bright screen.

Curtis Brown of Missouri has been picked offensive player of the week in the Big Eight after scoring three touchdowns, rushing for 101 yards and gaining 245 yards in all-purpose running against Southern California. Others nominated were Iowa State's quarterback Wayne Stanley, Kansas State's kicker Bill Sinovic (58-yard field goal), Oklahoma State's running back Robert Turner, Colorado's tailback Tony Reed, Kansas' running back Laverne Smith, Oklahoma's guard Jaime Melendez and Nebraska's fullback Dodie Donnell.

Improvement Set For MU

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — The best thing about last weekend's 46-25 win over then-sixth-ranked Southern Cal as far as Missouri coach Al Onofrio was concerned was that he saw room for improvement in his team.

"You play a football game to win," Onofrio said. "Our defense did just that — played well enough to win. It couldn't stop people like USC's Ricky Bell but when we needed a big effort to keep him from making a big play we came up with it. Our defensive players realize they have room for improvement and we are going to strive for consistency."

Missouri's win was the biggest thing to happen to a Big Eight team in the first full weekend of college football. The worst thing was formerly top-ranked Nebraska's 6-6 tie at Louisiana State. The lone league loser was Colorado, a 24-7 victim of Texas Tech.

Other wins were Iowa State 58-14 over Drake; Kansas State 13-3 over Brigham Young; Oklahoma State 33-21 over Tulsa; Kansas 35-16 over Washington State and Oklahoma 24-3 over Vanderbilt.

The only serious injuries reported around the league following the first full weekend were a fractured arm suffered by Kansas defensive end Harry Murphy, which will keep him out two to three weeks and Oklahoma State backup quarterback Scott Burke, who suffered a broken wrist and may miss the rest of the year.

On the training front Monday, Kansas football coach Bud Moore moved three players up to the first team, including wide receiver Wadell Smith.

Smith moved ahead of Walt Little while offensive guard Roger Hammond moved ahead of Morris Pippin and Andy Reust replaced Caleb Rowe at cornerback.

Ramsberger ran his squad through a two-hour workout Monday, with emphasis on stunting up the offense because the Wildcats managed to score only 13 points Saturday.

The Wildcat defense held Brigham Young to only 3 points in KSN's season-opening win, but the offense managed only 142 yards total offense.

Huskers Drop To 8th In AP Poll

The Second Ten consists of Texas A&M, Arkansas, Kansas, Alabama, Boston College, Louisiana State, North Carolina, Arizona State, Texas and Mississippi.

The preseason Second Ten listed Notre Dame, Maryland, Arkansas, Texas A&M, California, Georgia, UCLA, Florida, Kansas and Miami of Ohio.

Florida fell out by losing to North Carolina 24-21 while Miami dropped its second in a row, 21-16 to Marshall.

Boston College made the rankings by edging Texas 14-13 while North Carolina ran its record to 2-0 by adding Florida to Miami of Ohio as its victims. Ole Miss made it by nipping Alabama 10-7, the Crimson

NU: Toward A Better Job

By BOB OWENS

Nebraska football coach Tom Osborne has set the same goal for the 1976 Cornhuskers as he did for last year's team and that is to improve every week.

"We're going to develop a sound football team," Osborne said at the Extra Point Club luncheon Monday. "I can't guarantee you we'll win the rest of our games, but we are determined to do a better job."

Osborne said a lesser team than the Huskers would have lost at Louisiana State, but they didn't do that. "So, we can take encouragement from that. I feel really bad that we didn't win. Yet, in some ways it wasn't all bad," he said. "I think both teams at the end of the game had a healthy respect for each other. There was a lot of fine football played and a lot of hard hitting."

Osborne said the game was the kind defensive coaches would put on the drawing board as the "ideal" game. "There was almost a total absence of field position from an offensive standpoint for both teams," he noted. "We had just one turnover (an interception) and they had one on the last play of the game. Our best field position was our own 39."

He said there were no return yards by either team on punts, which is something that sometimes gives a team a chance to improve field position.

"Overall, our defense played well except a few times in the fourth quarter when we let them control the ball," Osborne said. "The defensive coaches did a great job preparing for LSU in that at no time did we let anybody run loose with the football."

One of the reasons for Nebraska scoring just six points was the big, strong LSU linemen who came up with plays that didn't give the Huskers many good gains on first down. "There were too many second and nine and third and seven situations," Osborne said. "We're going to work hard coming off the ball. We can block better."

Quite A Few Medals

The U.S. Olympic boxing team captured just three fewer medals than the entire U.S. track and field team this summer, and won more gold than the last three American boxing teams put together.

One of the major reasons had to be the spirit and camaraderie of the boxing team, which included the Spinks brothers, Mike and Leon, Sugar Ray Leonard, Howard Davis, Leo Randolph, silver medalist Sgt. Charles Mooney and bronze medalist John Tate.

There might have been a gold medal for Army Sergeant Mooney had he not had an extra bout with the flu and five Communist judges during his finals fight with North Korean Yong Jo Gu.

"I was ripped off in that final bout and I know the judges, all Communist, didn't help one bit," said Mooney, who was in Lincoln for the Nebraska State Fair to help the Army's recruiting.

"I believe I won the fight, but then again, I believe I win any fight I'm in," Mooney said. "We had such a togetherness on our team and everybody was looking to each other and getting a lot of support, so getting the silver medal wasn't all that upsetting when you saw how good the whole team did."

Started 4 Years Ago

Mooney started boxing for the Army four years ago while at Ft. Riley, Kan., but learned how to fight in the streets as a youngster in the "nongovernment" part of Washington, D.C.

"You could say I came from a rough environment," said Mooney. "You had to have a pass of sorts to get down the street we lived on. And being the only boy in my family, I had to protect my sisters, too."

"I learned a lot about fighting on my own. But I still had an awful lot of learning to do about boxing," said Mooney. "So I joined the Army. I knew that was a good way to get into athletics and for the past four years I couldn't ask for much more."

"I actually started boxing when I was 16, but time, equipment and top coaching just isn't available to the average kid trying to start boxing," he added.

The Army Provides

In the Army, though, Mooney gets up at 6 a.m., has breakfast and works out until lunch. Then he works out again in the afternoon until 4. Then the rest of the day is his.

"They pay for your clothes, food, equipment and provide some of the best facilities for boxing and working out that's available. Boxing in the Army is not a bad job," said Mooney. "And if the U.S. is going to keep up with the Communists, it's a fine way for an athlete to go."

Mooney added that four things make a good boxer. "Sacrifice, discipline, heart and desire to learn are the ingredients for success. And in the Army discipline comes easy."

"You have to avoid the temptations of drinking, women and partying in order to be somebody," Mooney said. "But it's just like studying — you can't cram all the time or your eyes will pop out. You have to take some time off or what you're doing will get boring."

Visits Local Club

While in Lincoln, Mooney visited the Easterday Recreation Center, where Ray Menefee's Stan's Lounge boxing team was working out in preparation for the 1976-77 season.

"Menefee is an outstanding coach and seems to be a guy kids can learn from," Mooney said. "I think that all the boxers need that I saw was better competition. That's one of the main things in making a good boxer... competition."

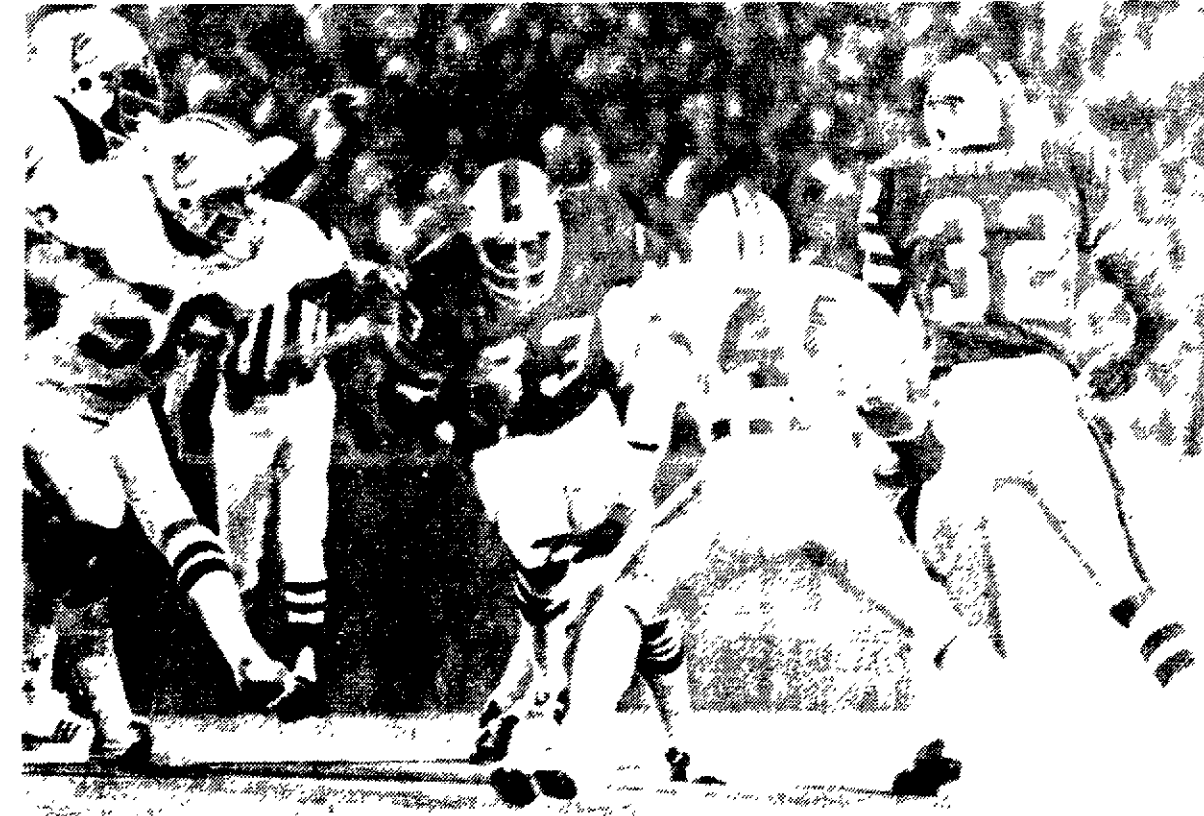

Mooney also visited the Nebraska State Penitentiary with the Stan's Lounge team and was impressed with the boxing program there.

"Boxing helps a guy on the inside because it gives him something to occupy his time. We can't punish a guy all the time and even if you're inside you need recreation. Those guys are God's children, too," Mooney said.

"There's a lot of good boxing potential, even though there's not much equipment in the pen. And with the inmates boxing against outside competition the sport has to improve overall," Mooney said. "Then you'll get some real competition and both sides are going to learn something about boxing."

Mooney, who said he will turn to coaching and retire from the ring, also mentioned that he was going to help the equipment problem at the pen, by sending some extra gloves from his current post in Ft. Bragg, N.C.

He may have gotten the discipline from the Army and learned sacrifice on the streets of Washington, D.C., but the heart is obviously from within.

Miami Sours Juice's Opener

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Bob Griese threw a 30-yard scoring pass to wide receiver Nat Moore early in the third quarter and Garo Yepremian kicked three field goals to give the Miami Dolphins 30-21 victory Monday night over the Buffalo Bills in the nationally-televised season opener for both clubs.

The Bills, buoyed by the return of premier running back O.J. Simpson, tied the powerful Dolphins twice at 7-7 and 14-14 in the first half, but a late second-quarter field goal by Yepremian and Griese's touchdown pass to Moore at 1:03 of the third quarter gave the Dolphins a 24-14 lead.

A 30-yard field goal by Yepremian with 5:42 left in the game clinched it for Miami after the Bills had closed the margin to 27-21.

Prep Grid Ties On Way Out?

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

If the Nebraska Coaches Association advisory group to the Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA) gets its way, ties will become a thing of the past in state high school football next fall.

"They very definitely will submit a proposal to the Board of Control," new NSAA executive secretary Jim Riley said Monday after attending meetings with the coaches at Kearney over the weekend.

Actually, the Board of Control could have incorporated a tie-breaker this season.

"The idea was presented to the board for consideration in June," Riley said, "but it was their feeling the schools should set things in motion. They decided it would be better to want and see how the majority of schools felt on the issue."

Lincoln Southeast, Fremont, Lincoln High and Grand Island probably would have preferred quicker action. Yet all own ratings distinction, yet each has experienced a tie.

Creighton Prep and Lexington, the No. 1 teams in the Sunday Journal and Star's preseason ratings, retain that honor after two weeks of the season.

The two clubs rated behind them — Omaha South in Class A and Lincoln Plus X in Class B — may not have to wait around to stake their own No. 1 claims.

South and Prep will collide on Sept. 24th while defending state Class B champion Plus X will visit Lexington on Oct. 15.

Prep coach Tom Jaworski and Lexington coach Dennis Thorell

can hardly keep a straight face upon mention of such No. 1 v. No. 2 potentialities.

"We've got Benson to play this week before even thinking about South," Jaworski said. "It's good to be 2-0, but it looks like everyone's season is a long way from being over."

That'll be great if everything comes out all right. Thorell said of playing Plus X. "But I think people like Cozad might have something to say before we can think about it."

Jaworski's headaches are multiple. His Junior Bluejays are locked in the same district with the Nos. 2, 3 and 4 rated teams in the Sunday Journal and Star.

South, Bellevue and Ralston join Prep with identical 42-point averages, according to the NSAA playoff point formula. It's based on wins over, ties with or losses to first division teams (those winning more than 50% of their games) or second division teams (those winning less than 50%).

"I know the districts are determined before the season starts, but I'd like to know what they are before the season starts," Jaworski said. "Because there might be a case where you're honestly better off to play for a tie."

Riley said a tie-breaker was not included in Nebraska's football playoff "because there was considerable opposition to it. I think the sentiment might be shifting now."

"The coaches advisory group cannot speak for all coaches in the state," added Riley, "but the district representatives seemed positive there would be a tie-breaker recommendation to the board of control. If it passes, it would go into effect next year."

IU A Hungry Team

George Darlington, who coaches Nebraska's defensive ends, gave Extra Point Clubbers a report on his impressions of Indiana after a study of movies of the Hoosiers' 32-13 loss last Saturday to Minnesota.

Because of the loss of their top two tailbacks, however, Darlington said "your guess is as good as mine on what they'll do offensively" when the Cornhuskers go to Bloomington, Ind., for a Saturday afternoon date with the Hoosiers.

"Last year, they ran a lot more formations than they did against Minnesota," Darlington said. "They went into the game with the idea in their own mind they were as good as Minnesota. They ran from a very basic I pro formation."

Indiana coach Lee Corso, described by Darlington as a "real psyche artist who's liable to do anything," said from Bloomington his whole game plan against Minnesota "went out the window" when Courtney Snyder broke an ankle midway through the first period.

"Snyder had been the difference between these two teams the last two years," Corso said. "When he went out, it kind of dulled us." Corso's only victories against Big Ten teams in three seasons have been over Minnesota. His league record now is 2-22-1 while overall at IU his mark is 5-28-1.

Darlington expects Corso will deviate greatly from the pattern against Minnesota. "They'll probably use some unbalanced line which they did last year, go in motion some, and try to pick up a couple of things that hurt us down at LSU," he said. "They're a hungry team, obviously. They've been down a few years. I expect their offense will present us some problems."

Tall QB Is Bob Kramer

Indiana starts a 6-6 quarterback, Bob Kramer, described by Darlington as a classic dropback passer, and the Hoosiers have a couple of fine receivers in Keith Calvin and Don Burrell.

Darlington said Rik Enis, a 6-0, 196 junior, is "a real hard-nosed fullback" who also is a block blocker.

"We have to stop a fine quarterback who can throw, and stop Enis," he added. "And we can't let an inexperienced I-back have a good day against us." After Snyder broke his ankle and his replacement Darrell Burnett suffered a knee injury, the IU tailback became sophomore Tony Suggs.

Darlington said NU's defensive ends didn't play the way he had expected at LSU, especially in containment of the passer, but he thought Tony Samuels, starting his first game, and Ray Phillips played well in the other areas. Sophomore George Andrews, who is recovering from a broken hand, didn't play against the Tigers but is expected to see action against Indiana.

Nebraska returned to the AstroTurf of Memorial Stadium Monday afternoon after doing all their preseason work on grass (except for one scrimmage). The LSU stadium was natural grass and neatly manicured.

A pair of I-backs who missed the opener returned for the two-hour workout. They were Dave Gillespie and Curtis Craig. Coach Tom Osborne said starting I-back Monte Anthony suffered a knee strain and has some swelling in it.

"Craig has been out over a week and it's very doubtful what he's going to be able to do," Osborne said. "Gillespie has had only one scrimmage play this fall." So, the injury to Anthony intensifies an already serious problem for the Huskers.

Sorley To Make Trip

Osborne said quarterback Tom Sorley, who broke an arm last spring, hasn't scrimmaged yet and wasn't able to throw the ball hard until about a week ago. Ed Burns took Sorley's spot on the travel squad to LSU, but Osborne said Sorley would go to Indiana. He said the two are pretty even.

Suggestion: The microphone at the Elks Club for the Extra Point Club luncheons has been on the blink for three years and the screen for the NU movies has been too dark for a good picture. Somebody ought to donate a new mike and a couple of white sheets that could be sewn together to make a bright screen.

Curtis Brown of Missouri has been picked offensive player of the week in the Big Eight after scoring three touchdowns, rushing for 101 yards and gaining 245 yards in all-purpose running against Southern California. Others nominated were Iowa State quarterback Wayne Stanley, Kansas State kicker Bill Sinovic (58-yard field goal), Oklahoma State running back Robert Turner, Colorado tailback Tony Reed, Kansas running back Laverne Smith, Oklahoma guard Jaime Melendez and Nebraska fullback Dottie Donnell.

Improvement Set For MU

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — The best thing about last weekend's 46-25 win over then-sixth-ranked Southern Cal as far as Missouri coach Al Onofrio was concerned was that he saw room for improvement in his team.

"You play a football game to win," Onofrio said. "Our defense did just that — played well enough to win. It couldn't stop people like USC's Ricky Bell but when we needed a big effort to keep him from making a big play we came up with it. Our defensive players realize they have room for improvement and we are going to strive for consistency."

Missouri's win was the biggest thing to happen to a Big Eight team in the first full weekend of college football. The worst thing was formerly top-ranked Nebraska's 6-6 tie at Louisiana State. The lone league loser was Colorado, a 24-7 victim of Texas Tech.

Other wins were Iowa State 58-14 over Drake; Kansas State 13-3 over Brigham Young; Oklahoma State 33-21 over Tulsa; Kansas 35-16 over Washington State and Oklahoma 24-3 over Vanderbilt.

The only serious injuries reported around the league following the first full weekend were a fractured arm suffered by Kansas defensive end Harry Murphy, which will keep him out two to three weeks and Oklahoma State backup quarterback Scott Burke, who suffered a broken wrist and may miss the rest of the year.

On the training front Monday, Kansas football coach Bud Moore moved three players up to the first team, including wide receiver Wadell Smith.

Smith moved ahead of Walt Little while offensive guard Roger Hammond moved ahead of Morris Pippin and Andy Reust replaced Caleb Rowe at cornerback.

Rainsberger ran his squad through a two-hour workout Monday, with emphasis on shining up the offense because the Wildcats managed to score only 13 points Saturday.

The Wildcat defense held Brigham Young to only 3 points in KSU's season-opening win, but the offense managed only 142 yards total offense.

Part of the offensive line problems were caused by injuries to center Tom Davis and right guard Greg Jorgensen, who saw only limited action. There were quite a few missed assignments that stopped plays that looked like they might go for good yardage.

Osborne liked the work of some of the younger players who haven't seen much varsity action in past seasons. He mentioned tight end Ken Spaeth, fullback Dottie Donnell, and middle guard Jeff Pullen.

He said quarterback Vince Ferragamo had a good game, but added, "I've seen him sharper." He said I-back Richard Berns had no very obvious errors and played very well.

Earlier, Osborne talked to the Big Eight Conference's weekly press conference by telephone and discussed ratings, which had the Huskers No. 1 before the LSU game.

"Ratings are more or less irrelevant. At the end of the year they have some relevance, but not too much," he said. "Our main concern is winning the Big Eight, but it's going to be hard to come out of it and win the national championship because we'll probably chop each other up. Ratings can't be a factor to us at this point."

O. J. Simpson (32) watches Buffalo teammate Vic Washington (33) crash through the line for a three-yard gain in Monday night's NFL clash with Miami in Buffalo.

Dolphins Steve Towle (56) and Barry Hill (44) stopped Washington.

Miami Sours Juice's Opener

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Bob Griese threw a 30-yard scoring pass to wide receiver Nat Moore early in the third quarter and Garo Yepremian kicked three field goals to give the Miami Dolphins 30-21 victory Monday night over the Buffalo Bills in the nationally-televised season opener for both clubs.

The Bills, buoyed by the return of premier running back O.J. Simpson, tied the powerful Dolphins twice at 7-7 and 14-14 in the first half, but a late second-quarter field goal by Yepremian and Griese's touchdown pass to Moore at 1:03 of the third quarter gave the Dolphins a 24-14 lead.

A 30-yard field goal by Yepremian with 5:42 left in the game clinched it for Miami after the Bills had closed the margin to 27-21.

Simpson saw more action in the game than expected, largely because of a knee injury to fullback Jim Braxton that took him out of the game.

Simpson, who rejoined the Bills late Sunday, gained 28 yards in five rushing attempts and electrified the near-sellout crowd of 78,321 with a 43-yard pass play late in the game, taking the Bills to the Miami 10. However, it went for naught as a 27-yard field goal attempt by John Leybold was wide.

Miami, unable to move in their first drive of the game, quickly took advantage of the young Bills' defense.

They pulled ahead 14-7 on Nottingham's one-yard burst at 4:42 of the second quarter.

Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson hit wide receiver John Holland up the middle for 53 yards at 53 seconds of the second quarter to tie the score at 7-7, then tossed a 58-yarder to Holland at 7:42 of the second quarter to again knot the score at 14-14.

Yepremian kicked his first field goal with just 21 seconds left in the half to make the score 17-14 and Griese hit Moore with his three-yard TD pass to Moore as the Dolphins' wide receiver outwrestled two Bills' defenders for the ball.

Yepremian kicked a 20-yard field goal at 9:53 of the third quarter to make the score 27-14 and kicked his clincher at 9:18 of the final period.

The Bills had a chance to move ahead late in the first half as defensive end Ken Jones recovered a Malone fumble at the Miami 24, but a 31-yard field goal attempt by John Leybold was blocked. Leybold also missed a field goal attempt in the third quarter.

Prep Grid Ties On Way Out?

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

If the Nebraska Coaches Association advisory group to the Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA) gets its way, ties will become a thing of the past in state high school football next fall.

"They very definitely will submit a proposal to the Board of Control," new NSAA executive secretary Jim Riley said Monday after attending meetings with the coaches at Kearney over the weekend.

Actually, the Board of Control could have incorporated a tie-breaker this season.

"The idea was presented to the board for consideration in June," Riley said, "but it was their feeling the schools should set things in motion. They decided it would be better to wait and see how the majority of schools felt on the issue."

Lincoln Southeast, Fremont, Lincoln High and Grand Island probably would have preferred quicker action. They all own ratings distinction, yet each has experienced a tie.

Creighton Prep and Lexington, the No. 1 teams in the Sunday Journal and Star's preseason ratings, retain that honor after two weeks of the season.

The two clubs rated behind them — Omaha South in Class A and Lincoln Plus X in Class B — may not have to wait around to stake their own No. 1 claims.

South and Prep will collide on Sept. 24th while defending state Class B champion Plus X will visit Lexington on Oct. 15.

Prep coach Tom Jaworski and Lexington coach Dennis Thorell

can hardly keep a straight face upon mention of such No. 1 v. No. 2 potentialities.

"We've got Benson to play this week before even thinking about South," Jaworski said. "It's good to be 2-0, but it looks like everyone's season is a long way from being over."

"That'll be great . . . if everything comes out all right," Thorell said of playing Plus X. "But I think people like Cozad might have something to say before we can think about it."

Jaworski's headaches are multiple. His Junior Bluejays are locked in the same district with the Nos. 2, 3 and 4 rated teams in the Sunday Journal and Star.

South, Bellevue and Ralston join Prep with identical 42-point averages, according to the NSAA playoff point formula. It's based on wins over, ties with or losses to first division teams (those winning more than 50% of their games) or second division teams (those winning less than 50%).

"I know the districts are determined before the season starts, but I'd like to know what they are before the season starts," Jaworski said, "because there might be a case where you're honestly better off to play for a tie."

Riley said a tie-breaker was not included in Nebraska's football playoff "because there was considerable opposition to it. I think the sentiment might be shifting now."

"The coaches advisory group cannot speak for all coaches in the state," added Riley, "but the district representatives seemed positive there would be a tie-breaker recommendation to the board of control. If it passes, it would go into effect next year."

Quite A Few Medals

The U.S. Olympic boxing team captured just three fewer medals than the entire U.S. track and field team this summer, and won more gold than the last three American boxing teams put together.

One of the major reasons had to be the spirit and camaraderie of the boxing team, which included the Spinks brothers, Mike and Leon, Sugar Ray Leonard, Howard Davis, Leo Randolph, silver medalist Sgt. Charles Mooney and bronze medalist John Tate.

There might have been a gold medal for Army Sergeant Mooney had he not had an extra bout with the flu and five Communist judges during his finals fight with North Korean Yong Jo Gu.

"I was ripped off in that final bout and I know the judges, all Communist, didn't help one bit," said Mooney, who was in Lincoln for the Nebraska State Fair to help the Army's recruiting.

"I believe I won the fight, but then again, I believe I win any fight I'm in," Mooney said. "We had such a togetherness on our team and everybody was looking to each other and getting a lot of support, so getting the silver medal wasn't all that upsetting when you saw how good the whole team did."

Started 4 Years Ago

Mooney started boxing for the Army four years ago while at Ft. Riley, Kan., but learned how to fight in the streets as a youngster in the "nongovernment" part of Washington, D.C.

"You could say I came from a rough environment," said Mooney. "You had to have a pass of sorts to get down the street we lived on. And being the only boy in my family, I had to protect my sisters, too."

"I learned a lot about fighting on my own, but I still had an awful lot of learning to do about boxing," said Mooney. "So I joined the Army. I knew that was a good way to get into athletics and for the past four years I couldn't ask for much more."

"I actually started boxing when I was 16, but time, equipment and top coaching just isn't available to the average kid trying to start boxing," he added.

The Army Provides

In the Army, though, Mooney gets up at 6 a.m., has breakfast and works out until lunch. Then he works out again in the afternoon until 4. Then the rest of the day is his.

"They pay for your clothes, food, equipment and provide some of the best facilities for boxing and working out that's available. Boxing in the Army is not a bad job," said Mooney. "And if the U.S. is going to keep up with the Communists, it's a fine way for an athlete to go."

Mooney added that four things make a good boxer. "Sacrifice, discipline, heart and desire to learn are the ingredients for success. And in the Army discipline comes easy."

"You have to avoid the temptations of drinking, women and partying in order to be somebody," Mooney said. "But it's just like studying — you can't cram all the time or your eyes will pop out. You have to take some time off or what you're doing will get boring."

Visits Local Club

While in Lincoln, Mooney visited the Easterday Recreation Center, where Ray Menefee's Stan's Lounge boxing team was working out in preparation for the 1976-77 season.

"Menefee is an outstanding coach and seems to be a guy kids can learn from," Mooney said. "I think that all the boxers need that I saw was better competition. That's one of the main things in making a good boxer . . . competition."

Mooney also visited the Nebraska State Penitentiary with the Stan's Lounge team and was impressed with the boxing program there.

"Boxing helps a guy on the inside because it gives him something to occupy his time. We can't punish a guy all the time and even if you're inside you need recreation. Those guys are God's children too," Mooney said.

"There's a lot of good boxing potential, even though there's not much equipment, in the pen. And with the inmates boxing against outside competition the sport has to improve overall," Mooney said. "Then you'll get some real competition and both sides are going to learn something about boxing."

Mooney, who said he will turn to coaching and retire from the ring, also mentioned that he was going to help the equipment problem at the pen, by sending some extra gloves from his current post in Ft. Bragg, N.C.

He may have gotten the discipline from the Army and learned sacrifice on the streets of Washington, D.C., but the heart is obviously from within.

Morning Briefing

Ron LeFlore
Knee Surgery

LeFlore Lost Till Next Year

Outfielder Ron LeFlore, injured in the second game of the Detroit Tigers' doubleheader at New York Sunday, underwent surgery Monday to repair a ruptured tendon in his right knee and will be in a cast for six weeks, his doctor said. The operation was called "very satisfactory" by his doctor and LeFlore could be ready to work out well before the Tigers open spring training late next winter.

Other Baseball

Chicago Cubs outfielder Jose Cardenal will be sidelined for the remaining two weeks of the season due to an injury sustained Saturday in a game at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium, the club announced Monday.

Football

The Chicago Bears have agreed to pay former linebacker Dick Butkus $600,000 to settle a $1.6 million damage suit, Butkus' attorney said Monday. Butkus had charged the Bears with breach of a five-year contract.

Tony Dorsett, the talented running back who led the University of Pittsburgh to a 31-10 romp past Notre Dame Saturday, heads United Press International's backfield of the week. Joining Dorsett in the backfield of the week are California quarterback Joe Roth, Ohio State tailback Jeff Logan and Missouri running back Curtis Brown.

Texas fullback Earl Campbell, leading rusher for the Longhorns for the last two years, may be lost for the season, Coach Darrell Royal said Monday.

Wide receiver J. D. Hill, for whom the Detroit Lions gave the Buffalo Bills a first-round choice this summer, is scheduled to undergo knee surgery Tuesday to correct ligament damage suffered in Sunday's 10-3 loss to the Chicago Bears.

An infuriated Chuck Noll, head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, accused the Oakland Raiders' defensive secondary of trying to maim Lynn Swann and other Steeler wide receivers, adding there was apparently a "criminal element" within the National Football League.

Veteran defensive tackle Lyle Alzado, injured on the first defensive play Sunday in the Denver Broncos' 17-7 National Football League loss to Cincinnati, will be lost to the team for the remainder of the season, Coach John Ralston said Monday.

The Seattle Seahawks Monday picked up veteran Minnesota defensive lineman Bob Lurtsema on waivers. Lurtsema played for Seattle coach Jack Patera with both the New York Giants and the Vikings.

There may be an "interloper" at the University of Michigan's football practice Wednesday, but Coach Bo Schembechler isn't concerned about him giving secrets to upcoming opponent Stanford. President Gerald Ford, starting center four decades ago, is scheduled to be in Ann Arbor to deliver a speech Wednesday and some observers expect him to visit a Wolverines' grid practice.

Kentucky football coach Fran Curci said Monday he has reinstated sophomore quarterback Bill Tolston, who had been suspended indefinitely after he was arrested on campus and charged with possession of marijuana. The charge was later dismissed.

Doctors checked Texas fullback Earl Campbell Monday — after Coach Darrell Royal had said he might be lost for the year with an injury — and gave him the green light to play. Doctors took x-rays for possible calcium deposits, said a report from the University of Texas athletic department.

Other Sports

High-powered right wing Mickey Redmond, twice a 50-goal scorer for the Detroit Red Wings, was forced to retire from hockey Monday due to a numbness in his right leg.

Heavyweights Ron Lyle and Jimmy Young, winners last Saturday on the same nationally televised card, will fight Nov. 6, promoter Don King said Monday. Young, of Philadelphia, upset Denver's Lyle Feb. 11, 1975. The fight site was not announced.

Top-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis was forced to withdraw and third-seeded Cliff Richey had to rally Monday to defeat unseeded Raz Reid of Greenville, S.C., 4-6, 6-2, 6-1 in the opening round action of the $50,000 Bermuda Grand Prix Tennis Classic.

Bobby Orr scored his first two goals in nearly a year Monday night to lead Team Canada to a 6-0 victory over Czechoslovakia in the first game of the best-of-three Canada Cup finals at Toronto.

Ron LeFlore

Knee Surgery

Outfielder Ron LeFlore, injured in the second game of the Detroit Tigers' doubleheader at New York Sunday, underwent surgery Monday to repair a ruptured tendon in his right knee and will be in a cast for six weeks, his doctor said. The operation was called "very satisfactory" by his doctor and LeFlore could be ready to work out well before the Tigers open spring training late next winter.

Other Baseball

Chicago Cubs outfielder Jose Cardenal will be sidelined for the remaining two weeks of the season due to an injury sustained Saturday in a game at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium, the club announced Monday.

Football

The Chicago Bears have agreed to pay former linebacker Dick Butkus $600,000 to settle a $1.6 million damage suit, Butkus' attorney said Monday. Butkus had charged the Bears with breach of a five-year contract.

Tony Dorsett, the talented running back who led the University of Pittsburgh to a 31-10 romp past Notre Dame Saturday, heads United Press International's backfield of the week. Joining Dorsett in the backfield of the week are California quarterback Joe Roth, Ohio State tailback Jeff Logan and Missouri running back Curtis Brown.

Texas fullback Earl Campbell, leading rusher for the Longhorns for the last two years, may be lost for the season, Coach Darrell Royal said Monday.

Wide receiver J. D. Hill, for whom the Detroit Lions gave the Buffalo Bills a first-round choice this summer, is scheduled to undergo knee surgery Tuesday to correct ligament damage suffered in Sunday's 10-3 loss to the Chicago Bears.

An infuriated Chuck Noll, head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers, accused the Oakland Raiders' defensive secondary of trying to maim Lynn Swann and other Steeler wide receivers, adding there was apparently a "criminal element" within the National Football League.

Veteran defensive tackle Lyle Alzado, injured on the first defensive play Sunday in the Denver Broncos' 17-7 National Football League loss to Cincinnati, will be lost to the team for the remainder of the season, Coach John Ralston said Monday.

The Seattle Seahawks Monday picked up veteran Minnesota defensive lineman Bob Lurtsema on waivers. Lurtsema played for Seattle coach Jack Patera with both the New York Giants and the Vikings.

There may be an "interloper" at the University of Michigan's football practice Wednesday, but Coach Bo Schembechler isn't concerned about him giving secrets to upcoming opponent Stanford. President Gerald Ford, starting center four decades ago, is scheduled to be in Ann Arbor to deliver a speech Wednesday and some observers expect him to visit a Wolverines' grid practice.

Kentucky football coach Fran Curren said Monday he has reinstated sophomore quarterback Bill Tolston, who had been suspended indefinitely after he was arrested on campus and charged with possession of marijuana. The charge was later dismissed.

Doctors checked Texas fullback Earl Campbell Monday — after Coach Darrell Royal had said he might be lost for the year with an injury — and gave him the green light to play. Doctors took x-rays for possible calcium deposits, said a report from the University of Texas athletic department.

Other Sports

High-powered right wing Mickey Redmond, twice a 50-goal scorer for the Detroit Red Wings, was forced to retire from hockey Monday due to a numbness in his right leg.

Heavyweights Ron Lyle and Jimmy Young, winners last Saturday on the same nationally televised card, will fight Nov. 6, promoter Don King said Monday. Young, of Philadelphia, upset Denver's Lyle Feb. 11, 1975. The fight site was not announced.

Top-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis was forced to withdraw and third-seeded Cliff Richey had to rally Monday to defeat unseeded Raz Reid of Greenville, S.C., 4-6, 6-2, 6-1 in the opening round action of the $50,000 Bermuda Grand Prix Tennis Classic.

Bobby Orr scored his first two goals in nearly a year Monday night to lead Team Canada to a 6-0 victory over Czechoslovakia in the first game of the best-of-three Canada Cup finals at Toronto.

Kropp Goes To Chicago

LANDOVER, Md. (AP)—Former Aurora High School and Kearney State College basketball standout Tom Kropp says he's surprised the Capital Bullets of the National Basketball Association traded him to the Chicago Bulls.

However, Kropp said he is looking forward to the change in scenery.

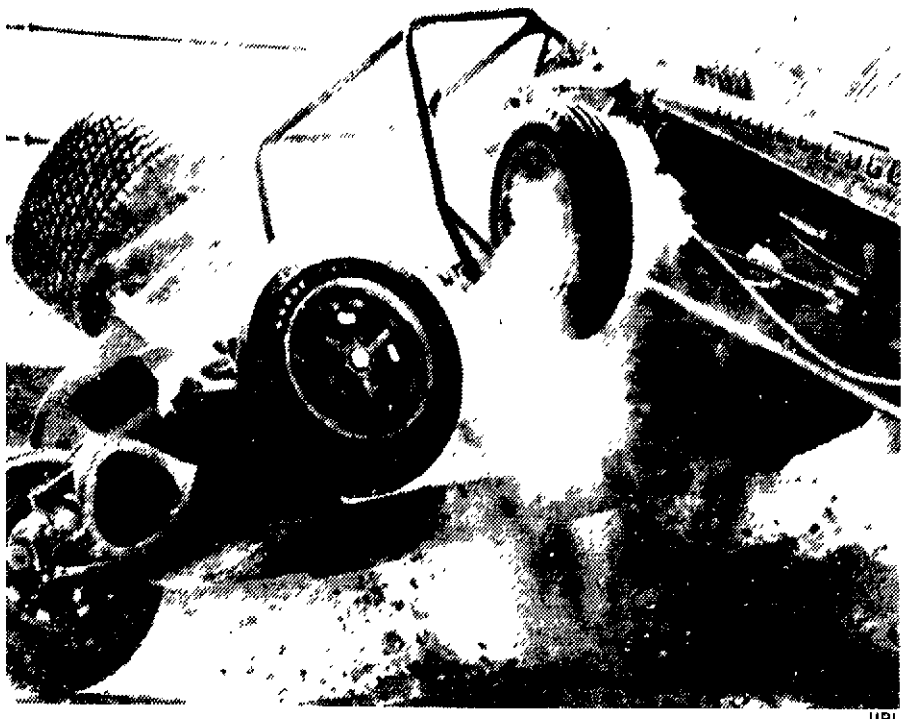

The Monday trade sent Kropp to the Bulls for a future draft pick.

The Bulls drafted Kropp in the third round of the NBA draft last year. Kropp was also drafted by the Denver Nuggets of the now-defunct American Basketball Association and by the National Football League champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

Late Monday, Kropp said Bulls' officials had already been in contact with him.

Kropp said he will fly to Chicago Tuesday, will take his physical Wednesday and begin practice Thursday.

Kropp, who played only 72 minutes last year, is hoping to see more action with the Bulls.

Opperman Critical

Tingelhoff Skein Intact

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Minnesota Vikings Coach Bud Grant says that sentiment had nothing to do with sending injured center Mick Tingelhoff onto the field for his 197th consecutive regular season start.

"Mick's streak did not influence me; I just sensed he could play," Grant said after his team's 40-9 rout of the New Orleans Saints Sunday. "And he did as well as he ever does."

Tingelhoff, an ex-Husker center from Lexington, whose streak is the second longest of any active player in the National Football League, behind teammate Jim Marshall's 223, severely bruised his left shoulder in the final exhibition game against Denver. He had been listed as doubtful before New Orleans.

"I felt better as the week went along and I began to think I might be able to play," he said. "But it was up to Coach Grant. I would not have been upset if I hadn't played. I'll never touch Marshall's record anyhow."

Despite that postgame denial, a source close to the team said the 15-year veteran was following the coach around "like a puppy" at practice begging to play.

"Mick never said a word to me," Grant said firmly. "And neither did the trainer. I made the decision myself the day of the game because I thought he could do it."

Tingelhoff played long enough—1 1/4 quarters—to see the Vikings jump to a 13-0 lead before giving way to Doug Dumler.

"The only reason Mick didn't play more was that he had not practiced all week," Grant said. "But he could have gone longer. I'm sure if we had needed him."

Dumler said he was counting on starting for the first time as a member of the Vikings, but it didn't surprise him when he didn't.

"The plan was I was supposed to be in there," he said, shaking his head and breaking into a grin at the turn of events. "But I wasn't surprised when I got the word Sunday morning Mick would start. He's no slouch to have to be playing behind and that makes being on the bench easier."

Tingelhoff says he expects to be near 100 per cent for next Sunday's home opener against Los Angeles.

NCAA Seeks To Lift Ban

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association asked the State Supreme Court Monday to lift a temporary lower court order banning the NCAA from requiring the University of Oklahoma to reduce its football coaching staff.

The NCAA asked the court to issue an order staying an injunction issued by District Court Judge Charles Owens of Oklahoma City.

Owens ruled Aug. 23 that the NCAA could not enforce its rule limiting the number of football coaches.

OU officials had said enforcement of the rule would result in assistant coaches Don Jimerson and Bill Shimek being fired.

The Supreme Court set a hearing on the NCAA request for 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The NCAA rule in question limits the number of coaches to one head coach, eight full-time assistants and two part-time assistants.

The assistant coaches and the OU Board of Regents filed the district court suit challenging the rule.

Prior to Owens' ruling, two other OU assistant coaches, Steve Barrett and Jim Helms, accepted coaching jobs at other schools.

Bennet — The top two seeded Class A teams won opening-round games here Monday night in the MUDECAS Conference volleyball tournament at the Bennet elementary school.

Top-seeded Elmwood stopped Palmyra, 12-15, 15-5 and 15-7 and second-seeded Lewiston downed Tobias-Meridian, 15-13 and 15-4. In other Class A action, Dawson-Verdon tripped Malcolm, 15-7, 12-15 and 15-7 and Murdock beat Douglas, 17-15, 11-15 and 16-14.

In Class B play, Elk Creek tripped Sterling, 15-9 and 15-12.

Tuesday's Class B schedule finds Adams meeting Elk Creek at 5:30 p.m.; Table Rock facing Diller at 6:30 p.m.; Barnestown encountering Nehawka at 7:30 p.m. and Filley facing Odell at 8:30 p.m.

Jaworski Has Injury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Ron Jaworski was lost to the Los Angeles Rams for at least six weeks Monday when the National Football League club announced he had a broken right shoulder.

Jaworski became the second quarterback casualty for the powerful Rams this season. James Harris suffered a broken thumb during preseason.

Domingue Suspended

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Louisiana State Football Coach Charlie McClendon Monday suspended linebacker Russell James "Rusty" Domingue, who has been booked on attempted second degree murder.

Domingue, 21, who blocked a key field goal attempt in Saturday's 6-6 tie with Nebraska, was arrested early Sunday morning after Richard Connelly, an LSU student, was stabbed.

Connelly, 24, was listed in satisfactory condition at a local hospital. He was stabbed once in the chest.

"I have talked with Rusty Domingue and with his attorney and I have been asked by his attorney to make no further comment regarding the situation," McClendon said. "However, I have a responsibility to my football squad and I have made the decision that Rusty will not practice or play in any game until the case has been resolved."

Domingue is free on a $5,000 bond.

Cager's Deed Ends In Death

ATLANTA (UPI) — A Clark College basketball player was shot and killed early Monday morning as he tried to rescue two coveys from a man who had abducted them.

Blair A. Thomas, 21, was slain as he and another physical education major ran to the scene where they heard the two women screaming, police said. Thomas, a guard on the Clark basketball team, was shot once and died of a bullet wound in his side. His body was found in a nearby athletic field where he had run after the shooting, a witness told officers.

The unidentified classmate said he was walking home with Thomas about 12:45 a.m.

Kropp Goes To Chicago

LANDOVER, Md. (AP)—Former Aurora High School and Kearney State College basketball standout Tom Kropp says he's surprised the Capital Bullets of the National Basketball Association traded him to the Chicago Bulls.

However, Kropp said he is looking forward to the change in scenery.

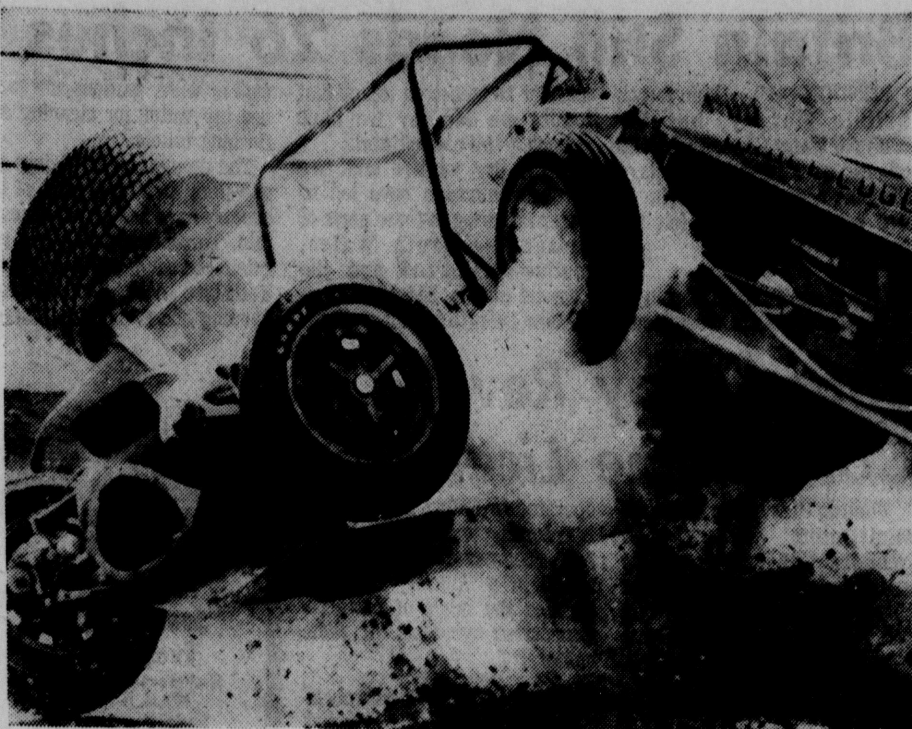

The Monday trade sent Kropp to the Bulls for a future draft pick.

The Bulls drafted Kropp in the third round of the NBA draft last year. Kropp was also drafted by the Denver Nuggets of the now-defunct American Basketball Association and by the National Football League champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

Late Monday, Kropp said Bulls' officials had already been in contact with him.

Kropp said he will fly to Chicago Tuesday, will take his physical Wednesday and begin practice Thursday.

Kropp, who played only 72 minutes last year, is hoping to see more action with the Bulls.

Young: Ag Institute Budget Separate From University

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

"The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources (INAR) will have a budget that is entirely separate from the rest of the university this year. It will have a separate account number," said Roy A. Young, chancellor of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Young made the statement to the Agricultural Committee of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce Monday. "I didn't feel I could do justice to the needs of the agricultural people unless it was in a separate budget," he said.

Young declined to discuss specifics in the budget, which still hasn't been submitted to the Board of Regents, but did note that it would include some salary improvement and some new teaching positions. "They can actually justify 32 new teachers but I don't know how many we will try for in the budget. The increase in enrollment is creating some real overload problems for the agricultural college people," Young said.

Young noted that Nebraska is still the 10th ranking major agricultural state in terms of faculty salary. "We have made some substantial improvements but are still having problems holding good people. We have lost 10 in recent weeks," he said.

The proposed multistate college of veterinary medicine was also discussed with the committee.

"We are going to set up a committee to study the impact that such a school would have on the university. We may find that we need to set some conditions for the establishment of such a school," he said.

Young reported two veterinary colleges that used to accept Nebraska students had terminated their agreements to do so in the future.

Young said the University Foundation is one of the bidders seeking to construct a laboratory for the federal Animal Plant and Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

"The bids will be opened in October. If we get the lab on the campus," he said, "there are a number of advantages to the university in terms of stipends to graduate students and some of the 30 people there might be added to our teaching staff."

Young noted that Missouri was trying to get the lab in spite of an announced selection of

Roy A. Young

Lincoln as the site by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Young credited Nebraska's 1st District congressman, Charles Thone, for acquiring the lab for Lincoln.

Thone has vigorously defended the selection of Lincoln against a claim by Missouri Sen. Thomas Eagleton, calling it "an effort to delay the construction until after the election in the hope that Jimmy Carter would be elected president and move the lab to Missouri."

Phone Hearing Slated At Macy

Macy — Residents of Walthill, Macy, Winnebago and Rosalia will have an opportunity to air their views today on local telephone service and rates.

A hearing by the Public Service Commission will get underway at 1:30 p.m. in the Walthill 4-H Building.

The commission is expected to hear testimony on the Eastern Nebraska Telephone Co. of Blair's "practices of charging $32 for a private line and $7 for a 10-party line at Macy," according to a Macy resident.

Faulty Wiring Blamed In Fire

Faulty wiring was blamed as the cause of a fire early Monday morning at the rural home of John Evasco. Firemen said the fire, in the Rt. 1 vicinity, was contained to a closet.

Damage to the house was estimated as minimum, about $300.

Britain Still Needs 26 Inches Of Rain

LONDON (AP) — Rain fell on Britain Monday, but the National Water Council said "No one can relax" and the effects of the nation's worst drought in five centuries will be felt for months to come.

"We need 26 inches of rain — six inches to wet the ground, and another 20 inches on top of that before we can say we have enough," the council said.

Three dry winters and two parched summers have led to water rationing in three parts of Britain — south Wales, southwest England and the Channel Islands. Elsewhere people are being told not to wash cars or water gardens and to re-use tap water for cleaning and flushing toilets.

The drought broke 10 days ago and since then most parts of the country have had 2 to 6 inches of rain. Torrential downpours and gale force winds struck northern Yorkshire over the weekend, flooding homes and washing out roads and rail lines.

The rain meant a reprieve for thousands of Yorkshire residents whose water was to be shut off later this week and replaced by standpipes in the street.

But area water officials said unless more heavy rain falls, the day had merely been postponed a week or two.

Board May Revoke Care Home Licenses

Whether the nursing home administrators' licenses of a Nebraska City couple recently convicted on embezzlement charges will be revoked probably will be decided within the next two weeks.

According to Rex Higley, director of the Nebraska Bureau of Examining Boards, the matter was taken under advisement following Monday's due process hearing. A decision is mandatory within 30 days.

The hearing on the possible revocation of the licenses of Albert and Arlene Inman was brought as a result of a recent Jefferson District Court case in which each of the Inmans was charged with two counts of embezzlement in connection with funds belonging to former residents of a nursing home they operated in Falls City. According to Jefferson County Atty. Thomas J. Gist, the Inmans, in a fiduciary capacity, handled the funds of some incapacitated residents of their home.

The cases in question involved the funds of two deceased residents which were never turned over to anyone after the deaths of the two women.

Gist said the embezzled funds amounted to $347.98 belonging to one of the women and $536.57 belonging to the second.

A Jefferson County jury June 3 convicted each of the Inmans on both counts and they were placed on probation.

According to Higley, the couple owns a nursing facility in Nebraska City which is still being administered by Mrs. Inman.

Rural Customers May Get Cut On 'Short-Distance' Phone Calls

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

By early next year, a farmer's phone calls to the school or hospital, the police station or firehouse might be cheaper — and easier to make.

Responding to rural customers' pleas, telephone companies Monday unveiled an "optional calling plan" that would provide individuals and businesses an alternative to expensive long-distance toll charges.

J. H. Hilsabeck, assistant vice president of Northwestern Bell, presented the Public Service Commission with the plan worked out by Bell, independent phone companies and the PSC staff. The independents' tariffs are keyed to Bell's.

PSC Chairman Duane Gay of Columbus said if the commission approves the plan, it will be "a real godsend" to Nebraskans. It will take about four months to implement once authorized, and 10 to 12 exchanges are expected to participate.

A public hearing date will be set later to discuss the one-year experiment, an alternative to extended area service. "EAS," Hilsabeck said, serves communities near a larger exchange but "generally results in the smaller exchange paying the rate of the larger" one. Also, EAS increases the need for additional equipment by both, affecting rates.

Moreover, EAS provides 100% coverage, whereas a third or more ratepayers might not want or need the service, Hilsabeck noted, and they object to paying more because of majority rule.

In "unusual tariff writing," he said the "optional calling plan" is designed to allow an individual customer to buy a piece of bulk service at a given rate above the regular monthly cost.

The proposal offers a two-part plan: $3.20 extra monthly for the first hour plus 32 cents for each additional six minutes for a customer calling in a 1-to-15 mile radius and a $4 plus 40-cent ratio for the 25-mile option.

A service charge will be made to order either plan, but no fee will be imposed for any customer suspending it. The option will be available on a monthly basis, with no in-out limit.

As proposed, any phone company or the PSC could also cancel change or extend the option based on later analyses. The plan provides for dial station-to-station calling.

Commissioner Jack Romans of Ord objected to the 25-mile maximum, noting some communities in his western Nebraska district are further apart than that and might need 50-mile service. Hilsabeck said, "We'd certainly be prepared to take a look at it."

eliminate Fremont-Omaha-Lincoln applications, which the companies want to avoid in the experimental plan.

The option would be available to businesses, but hotels, motels, hospitals, phone-answering firms and others that serve guests, patients or clients would only be allowed administrative uses. The intent is to prohibit resale of the service via institutional billing.

The scheme would also be set up initially to allow one-way calling, not two ways simultaneously as in EAS. Hours for the optional billing calls would extend from noon until 8 a.m. weekdays, and all hours on weekends and holidays.

Minimum timing per call would be a minute, and additional times would be computed just as all other long distance messages.

Hilsabeck said customers will only buy into the plan "if it gives them something that they want at that rate." He lauded the move, saying "it answers a need for individual ratepayers, and it takes a little bit of heat off the telephone companies," particularly in areas "where EAS is not the answer" but customers still need better service.

However, the phone companies "intend to continue to pursue EAS," Hilsabeck said, "if that seems to be the best answer in a given situation."

Assisi, Italy (UPI) — Tourists visiting this shrine town will be unable for the next two years to get a full view of Giotto's famed frescoes of Old and New Testament scenes on the upper floor of St. Francis Basilica. Experts have started restoration work expected to last until 1978 and the scaffolding from which they are working are partly concealing the frescoes.

Young: Ag Institute Budget Separate From University

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

"The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources (INAR) will have a budget that is entirely separate from the rest of the university this year. It will have a separate account number," said Roy A. Young, chancellor of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Young made the statement to the Agricultural Committee of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce Monday. "I didn't feel I could do justice to the needs of the agricultural people unless it was in a separate budget," he said.

Young declined to discuss specifics in the budget, which still hasn't been submitted to the Board of Regents, but did note that it would include some salary improvement and some new teaching positions.

"They can actually justify 32 new teachers but I don't know how many we will try for in the budget. The increase in enrollment is creating some real overload problems for the agricultural college people," Young said.

Young noted that Nebraska is still the 10th ranking major agricultural state in terms of faculty salary. "We have made some substantial improvements but are still having problems holding good people. We have lost 10 in recent weeks," he said.

The proposed multistate college of veterinary medicine was also discussed with the committee.

"We are going to set up a committee to study the impact that such a school would have on the university. We may find that we need to set some conditions for the establishment of such a school," he said.

Young reported two veterinary colleges that used to accept Nebraska students had terminated their agreements to do so in the future.

Young said the University Foundation is one of the bidders seeking to construct a laboratory for the federal Animal Plant and Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

"The bids will be opened in October. If we get the lab on the campus," he said, "there are a number of advantages to the university in terms of stipends to graduate students and some of the 30 people there might be added to our teaching staff."

Young noted that Missouri was trying to get the lab in spite of an announced selection of

Roy A. Young

Lincoln as the site by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Young credited Nebraska's 1st District congressman, Charles Thone, for acquiring the lab for Lincoln.

Thone has vigorously defended the selection of Lincoln against a claim by Missouri Sen. Thomas Eagleton, calling it "an effort to delay the construction until after the election in the hope that Jimmy Carter would be elected president and move the lab to Missouri."

Rural Customers May Get Cut On 'Short-Distance' Phone Calls

By early next year, a farmer's phone calls to the school or hospital, the police station or firehouse might be cheaper — and easier to make.

Responding to rural customers' pleas, telephone companies Monday unveiled an "optional calling plan" that would provide individuals and businesses an alternative to expensive long-distance toll charges.

J. H. Hilsabeck, assistant vice president of Northwestern Bell, presented the Public Service Commission with the plan worked out by Bell, independent phone companies and the PSC staff. The independents' tariffs are keyed to Bell's.

PSC Chairman Duane Gay of Columbus said if the commission approves the plan, it will be "a real godsend" to Nebraskans. It will take about four months to implement once authorized, and 10 to 12 exchanges are expected to participate.

A public hearing date will be set later to discuss the one-year experiment, an alternative to "extended area service." Also, EAS increases the need for additional equipment by both, affecting rates.

Moreover, EAS provides 100% coverage, whereas a third or more ratepayers might not want or need the service, Hilsabeck noted, and they object to paying more because of majority rule.

In "unusual tariff writing," he said the "optional calling plan" is designed to allow an individual customer to buy a piece of bulk service at a given rate above the regular monthly cost.

The proposal offers a two-part plan: $3.20 extra monthly for the first hour plus 32 cents for each additional six minutes for a customer calling in a 1-to-15 mile radius; and a $4 plus 40-cent ratio for the 25-mile option.

A service charge will be made to order either plan, but no fee will be imposed for any customer suspending it. The option will be available on a monthly basis, with no in-out limit.

As proposed, any phone company or the PSC could also cancel, change or extend the option, based on later analyses. The plan provides for dial station-to-station calling.

Commissioner Jack Romans of Ord objected to the 25-mile maximum, noting some communities in his western Nebraska district are further apart than that and might need 50-mile service. Hilsabeck said, "We'd certainly be prepared to take a look at it."

Another Bell spokesman said the 25-mile cutoff was devised to eliminate Fremont-Omaha-Lincoln applications, which the companies want to avoid in the experimental plan.

The option would be available to businesses, but hotels, motels, hospitals, phone-answering firms and others that serve guests, patients or clients would only be allowed administrative uses. The intent is to prohibit resale of the service via institutional billing.

The scheme would also be set up initially to allow one-way calling, not two ways simultaneously as in EAS. Hours for the optional billing calls would extend from noon until 8 a.m. weekdays, and all hours on weekends and holidays.

Minimum timing per call would be a minute, and additional times would be computed just as all other long distance messages.

Hilsabeck said customers will only buy into the plan "if it gives them something that they want at that rate." He lauded the move, saying "it answers a need" for individual ratepayers, and "it takes a little bit of heat off the telephone companies," particularly in areas "where EAS is not the answer" but customers still need better service.

However, the phone companies "intend to continue to pursue EAS," Hilsabeck said, "if that seems to be the best answer in a given situation."

Board May Revoke Care Home Licenses

Whether the nursing home administrators' licenses of a Nebraska City couple recently convicted on embezzlement charges will be revoked probably will be decided within the next two weeks.

According to Rex Higley, director of the Nebraska Bureau of Examining Boards, the matter was taken under advisement following Monday's due process hearing. A decision is mandatory within 30 days.

The hearing on the possible revocation of the licenses of Albert and Arlene Inman was brought as a result of a recent Jefferson District Court case in which each of the Inmans was charged with two counts of embezzlement in connection with funds belonging to former residents of a nursing home they operated in Falls City.

According to Jefferson County Atty. Thomas J. Gist, the Inmans, in a fiduciary capacity, handled the funds of some incapacitated residents of their home.

The cases in question involved the funds of two deceased residents which were never turned over to anyone after the deaths of the two women.

Gist said the embezzled funds amounted to $347.98 belonging to one of the women and $536.57 belonging to the second.

A Jefferson County jury June 3 convicted each of the Inmans on both counts and they were placed on probation.

According to Higley, the couple owns a nursing facility in Nebraska City which is still being administered by Mrs. Inman.

Skyjackers Held On $1 Million Bond Each

New York (AP) — The leader of a small band of Croatian-born nationalists and his American wife were held on bond of $1 million each Monday in the transatlantic skyjacking of a Trans World Airlines jet with 92 persons aboard. Their three comrades also were held on bail of $1 million each.

Capt. Richard Carey, pilot of TWA flight 355, told reporters the 30-hour weekend hijacking ordeal was "30 hours of hell."

"One man has died as a direct consequence of these acts," Asst. U.S. Atty. Thomas Pattison declared in Brooklyn federal court, in defending the size of his bail request.

He referred to the death of one police officer and the injury of three others while trying to deactivate an explosive device. Police found it in a locker in Grand Central Station after its location was messaged back by the airborne skyjackers.

The defendants apparently bore no arms during a tension-fraught 6,000-mile aerial odyssey that spanned four nations, beginning Friday night in New York and ending with the surrender of the hijackers in Paris on Sunday.

However, they cowed the passengers and crew of the hijacked Boeing 727 by displaying what they said were deadly explosives wired to their bodies — but which later turned out to be dummies, fashioned of harmless modeling clay.

State prosecutors from Manhattan and

The Bronx were to sit down with Brooklyn's U.S. Atty. David Trager to decide jurisdiction in the death of bomb squad officer Brian Murray, 27, father of two small children. Murray and three other officers were trying to deactivate the bomb found at Grand Central Station when it exploded at a police firing range in The Bronx.

The murder of a police officer in line of duty carries a possible death penalty in New York. Murray was only the third member of the squad to lose his life on duty. Two others were killed in an unexplained explosion of a bomb planted in the British Pavilion of the 1939 World's Fair.

Appearing at a bail hearing before U.S. Magistrate A. Simon Chreim on air piracy charges were Croatian-born Zvonko Basic, 30, an unemployed waiter identified by the FBI as leader of the hijack gang, and his wife, Julienne, 27, a native of Eugene, Ore., and an unemployed school teacher, both of New York.

Also appearing were Peter Matovic, 31, of New York, described as a football trainer; Frane Pesut, 25, a Cleveland, Ohio, machinist; and Mark Vlasic, a Stamford, Conn., electrician. All are natives of Croatia, a crescent-shaped Balkan territory in Yugoslavia, with a long history of separatist sentiment and violence.

Air piracy carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in federal prison, and the death penalty when there is loss of life.

Four Arrested In Air Crash

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — Four air controllers on duty when two jetliners slammed into each other in the worst air collision in history last week have been arrested, Yugoslav authorities said Monday.

The four Zagreb controllers had been detained for questioning after the disaster, which killed 176 persons. A fifth controller also detained has been released.

Those arrested were Gradimir Tasic, Mladen Hohenberg, Nenad Tates and Bojana Erjavac, the head of the Yugoslav investigating team, Judge Veceslav Jakovec, said at a news conference.

There were no survivors from the Friday collision.

3 Plead Innocent To Plot

Springfield, Mass. (AP) — Three persons pleaded innocent Monday to charges they conspired to murder Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The three, in Springfield District Court for arraignment, were assigned lawyers and the case was continued until Sept. 20.

Miss America Won't Pose Nude

New York (UPI) — New Miss America Dorothy K. Benham Monday added posing in the nude to the list of things she doesn't do, not even for $1 million.

"Oh for goodness' sake," said one of Miss Benham's chaperones when informed of the $1 million offer from the

After the hearing, two of the defendants — Sandra R. Rondau, 37, of Westfield, and David J. King, 31, of Springfield — were released on personal recognizance. Robert E. White, 42, of Springfield, who authorities say was behind the alleged scheme, was held on bail of $25,000, reduced from $50,000.

publisher of one of those centerfold-type magazines.

Miss America did confess that her love for old movies sometimes led her to play hooky.

"I used to stay home from school to watch Deanna Durbin movies," Miss Benham said. "I used to play sick."

Skyjackers Held On $1 Million Bond Each

New York (AP) — The leader of a small band of Croatian-born nationalists and his American wife were held on bond of $1 million each Monday in the transatlantic skyjacking of a Trans World Airlines jet with 92 persons aboard. Their three comrades also were held on bail of $1 million each.

Capt. Richard Carey, pilot of TWA flight 355, told reporters the 30-hour weekend hijacking ordeal was "30 hours of hell."

"One man has died as a direct consequence of these acts," Asst. U.S. Atty. Thomas Pattison declared in Brooklyn federal court, in defending the size of his bail request.

He referred to the death of one police officer and the injury of three others while trying to deactivate an explosive device. Police found it in a locker in Grand Central Station after its location was messaged back by the airborne skyjackers.

The defendants apparently bore no arms during a tension-filled 6,000-mile aerial odyssey that spanned four nations, beginning Friday night in New York and ending with the surrender of the hijackers in Paris on Sunday.

However, they cowed the passengers and crew of the hijacked Boeing 727 by displaying what they said were deadly explosives wired to their bodies — but which later turned out to be dummies, fashioned of harmless modeling clay.

State prosecutors from Manhattan and

The Bronx were to sit down with Brooklyn's U.S. Atty. David Trager to decide jurisdiction in the death of bomb squad officer Brian Murray, 27, father of two small children. Murray and three other officers were trying to deactivate the bomb found at Grand Central Station when it exploded at a police firing range in The Bronx.

The murder of a police officer in line of duty carries a possible death penalty in New York. Murray was only the third member of the squad to lose his life on duty. Two others were killed in an unsolved explosion of a bomb planted in the British Pavilion of the 1939 World's Fair.

Appearing at a bail hearing before U.S. Magistrate A. Simon Chreim on air piracy charges were Croatian-born Zvonko Basic, 30, an unemployed waiter identified by the FBI as leader of the hijack gang, and his wife, Julienne, 27, a native of Eugene, Ore., and an unemployed school teacher, both of New York.

Also appearing were Peter Matovic, 31, of New York, described as a football trainer; Frane Pesut, 25, a Cleveland, Ohio, machinist; and Mark Vlasic, a Stamford, Conn., electrician. All are natives of Croatia, a crescent-shaped Balkan territory in Yugoslavia, with a long history of separatist sentiment and violence.

Air piracy carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in federal prison, and the death penalty when there is loss of life.

Four Arrested In Air Crash

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — Four air controllers on duty when two jetliners slammed into each other in the worst air collision in history last week have been arrested, Yugoslav authorities said Monday.

The four Zagreb controllers had been detained for questioning after the disaster, which killed 176 persons. A fifth controller also had been released.

Those arrested were Gradimir Tasic, Mladen Hohberger, Nenad Tates and Bojana Erjavac, the head of the Yugoslav investigating team, Judge Venceslav Jakovic, said at a news conference.

There were no survivors from the Friday collision.

3 Plead Innocent To Plot

Springfield, Mass. (AP) — Three persons pleaded innocent Monday to charges they conspired to murder Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The three, in Springfield District Court for arraignment, were assigned lawyers and the case was continued until Sept. 20.

Miss America Won't Pose Nude

New York (UPI) — New Miss America Dorothy K. Benham Monday added posing in the nude to the list of things she doesn't do, not even for $1 million.

"On for goodness' sake," said one of Miss Benham's chaperones when informed of the $1 million offer from the

After the hearing, two of the defendants — Sandra R. Rondeau, 37, of Westfield, and David J. King, 31, of Springfield — were released on personal recognizance. Robert E. White, publisher of one of those centerfold-type magazines.

42, of Springfield, who authorities say was behind the alleged scheme, was held on bail of $25,000, reduced from $50,000.

Miss America did confess that her love for old movies sometimes led her to play hooky.

"I used to stay home from school to watch Deanna Durbin movies," Miss Benham said. "I used to play sick."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST by SIDNEY OMARR

Tuesday, Sept. 14, 1976

strokes could be considerable. Know it and act accordingly. If you don't mean it, say so. If you do, then do something about it. The choice is clear. If you're befuddled, take leave of absence. Applies very much to personal relationships.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't get into situation without knowledge of legal and other implications. Study Libra message. Finish rather than begin project. Be mindful of publicity, public relations, contractual arrangements. If single, marital status could be major concern.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New ways to get job done - these are featured. Health, diet, ability to communicate with coworkers - these areas also are spotlighted. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles. Basic material is available if you will but seek.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on speculation, change, love. Young person commands - and demands attention. Make intelligent concession. By giving a little, you ultimately will receive much. Pleasure principle and tendency towards extravagance - these are highlighted. You'll enjoy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Dealings with authority figure are indicated. Property, assessments, security are part of picture. One who had been elusive is available and may be too much a factor. Message will be clarified. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You're able to piece together bits of information. You're alert to clues. You sense changes, hints, moods, nuances. Short journey, unique message - these are also part of scenario. Social activity accelerates.

IF SEPTEMBER 14th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural character analyst. You size up people - you have an instinctive understanding of motive and potential. Gemini and Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You are fond of travel, understand nutrition, are curious about places and people. New contacts, projects favored this year. July was important. In October, you'll consolidate assets.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 6. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
